RATION VICTIMS STRAIN 'L' AND SURFACE CARS

Automobile Traffic Reduced Sharply.

Chicago's public transportation system groaned thru the first day of gasoline rationing yesterday, despite the use of extra cars and buses and the staggering of work hours in factories and commercial establishments.

Straphangers, accustomed to rush hour jams, appeared to take the additional crowding good naturedly. The weather was cold and the wind was raw during the evening rush hour, which added considerably to the general discomfiture brought about by the Washington regulations.

Preliminary reports on the effects of the shift in passenger traffic follow:

MOTOR TRAFFIC.

Chief Roger Shanahan of the Chicago park district police reported that motor traffic in the north section boulevards declined 30 to 35 per cent during the rush hours. On the south side, traffic was down 40 to 50 per cent; on the west side, 20 to 25 per cent, and in the loop, 70 per cent.

STREET CARS.

The Chicago Surface Lines, which normally handle 2,300,000 passengers daily, were swamped during the rush hours. The Milwaukee avenue line was jammed until 8 p. m., with many cars so crowded that the rear doors could not be closed.

One car, which left Washington boulevard and Dearborn street at 5:34 p. m. was fully loaded at Madison and Wells, and there were no seats available until the car reached Lawrence avenue, 4800 north. This car was forced to pass up 200 persons waiting to board it at Logan square, a transfer point from the elevated lines. Similar reports were received from other street car lines.

The company added 160 trips during the rush hours, using 3,200 cars and 301 buses. Traffic was heaviest on routes serving factory districts. During the midday slack period service improved on some lines because of the reduced number of private automobiles on the street. On narrow streets and in the loop this permitted street cars to make better time.

ELEVATED LINES.

The evening rush hour on the elevated lines started as early as 4:30 o'clock. Conductors reported that traffic appeared to be about 20 per cent greater than usual. The peak of the rush was reached at 5:30 at the Madison and Randolph street stations on northbound trains. For 20 minutes the Howard street, Ravenswood, and Evanston trains were obliged to leave crowds waiting on the last stations in the loop.

The company added 100 cars and scheduled 509 additional car trips for the day. Ticket takers at downtown stations reported that the evening rush crowd was not only larger than usual, but the rush lasted longer.

BUS LINES.

The Chicago Motor Coach company employed 97 per cent of its buses during the rush hours. All buses were crowded, as usual, but they were able to make their downtown loops faster in the cleared streets and thus maintained their schedules. Bus lines running to the railway stations were crowded from 4:45 to 5:30 p. m.

On orders of the Office of Defense Transportation, the Kimball-Homan and five other bus routes of the Chicago Surface Lines and several others operated by the Chicago Motor Coach company were discontinued yesterday. This threw extra loads of passengers on nearby trolley lines. Mayor Kelly said the city will file with the Illinois Commerce commission today a protest against the bus service restrictions on surface line routes.

RAILROAD LINES.

The Illinois Central railroad, which handles a large volume of traffic to the south side and southern suburbs, reported a 15 per cent increase in the number of passengers handled during the rush hours.

The North Western railway reported that its greatest traffic increase

INQUIRY VOTED INTO BUROCRAT QUESTION MAZE

Flood Saps Morale, Says Vandenberg.

Population Zooms

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 [Special].—The census bureau estimated today that the nation's war capital is more than one-third larger today than when the last census was taken in 1940. The census showed 663,091 persons living in Washington and the department believes the increase since that time has been 231,000. This is an increase of 34.8 per cent in less than 2 years. The present total population of 894,091 compares with 486,869 in 1930.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—The joint committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures today voted unanimously to investigate the red tape ensnaring business men and individual citizens thru questionnaires, forms, and reports ordered by federal burocrats.

The committee acted after Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], coauthor of a resolution proposing the investigation, had charged that the "burocrats are running wild" and had produced witnesses to support his contention that "the enervating enmeshments of red tape which have descended upon American business men and individual American citizens is a deadly menace to national morale and a serious threat to the war effort itself."

[War Man Power commission puts out new set of forms for war plant executives to fill out. Details on page 14.]

Morgenthau at Session.

The session was an impressive one, made the more so because of the prominent personages, including Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr., who are members of the committee which approved the investigation.

Sen. Vandenberg told the committee that since introducing the resolution on Nov. 23 he had received "literally thousands of letters—SOS letters—begging for the relief which is here contemplated."

Vandenberg presented to the committee a letter from a Kansas farmer who reported that he received a form from the Office of Price Administration to be filled out for a pair of rubber boots. The form contained the warning that the maximum penalty for lying about rubber boots is 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

A Formidable Key.

Just to give the committee an idea of the extent to which the OPA has obscured its operations in red tape,

BRITISH TURN DOWN SUGGESTION NOT TO CHAIN WAR CAPTIVES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The British government today was urged in the house of commons to issue a statement, in conjunction with the United States government, stating that the allies will not manacle prisoners for the duration of the war regardless of Germany's action.

Deputy Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee refused to make any such assurance. He also ignored an allegation by Frank Sanderson, Conservative, that the Germans not only are chaining British prisoners captured at Dunkirk, but are placing them in wire cages as well.

James Grigg, secretary of state for war, told parliament it was too early to say whether the Nazi occupation of southern France would affect the transportation of parcels to British prisoners of war. One ship carrying parcels for prisoners left Lisbon, Portugal, yesterday, the minister said. He said he hoped the service can be maintained and that any temporary interruptions will be covered by reserves of packages already accumulated at the prison camps.

Name Welder in Slaying of Ex-Chicagoan

San José, Cal., Dec. 1 [Special].—A stocky, black mustached shipyard welder, who was a suspect seven years ago in the still unsolved slaying of Kathleen Robinson of San Mateo, was named in a warrant today as the suspected slayer of Bernice Curtis, former Chicago girl.

Florencio Alcalde.

The suspect is Florencio [Frank] Alcalde, 29 years old, who has been in police custody since Saturday. Police believe he is the mysterious "Frank" with whom Miss Curtis planned a date Nov. 22. Her battered body was found next day in a field near Stanford university, Palo Alto, Cal.

The murder complaint was signed by Robert Drexel, Santa Clara county detective, and was filed before Justice of the Peace Brandon Miller. Arraignment was set tentatively for Thursday.

Wife Seeks Lawyer.

Alcalde's wife said she is attempting to arrange legal representation for her husband. It was said that Joseph Bullock, San Mateo attorney, who successfully defended Alcalde in the 1935 Robinson case, is ill.

Police said Alcalde quarreled with his wife two weeks before Miss Curtis' death and left home to live in a hotel. The day after the slaying he returned and effected a reconciliation, later insisting to police that he was playing cards with his father in a poolroom the previous evening. The Alcaldes have a son, 5.

A net of circumstantial evidence has been drawn about Alcalde, Drexel said. He said that shoe and tire prints found at the murder scene appear to check with Alcalde's shoes and tires, and bloodstained clothing has been found both in his home and hotel room.

Trace a Corsage Box.

A corsage box found in Miss Curtis' room was traced to a florist who picked Alcalde out of a police lineup as purchaser of the corsage.

When Miss Robinson, a laundry worker, was found shot to death on a San Mateo street in 1935 it was learned Alcalde had been friendly with the girl, and he was questioned. Two alibis were broken, but he won dismissal at a preliminary hearing when formally charged with the murder.

In Chicago yesterday Mrs. Bernard Ash identified a picture of Florencio [Frank] Alcalde, who is held at San José, Cal., as that of the man whose picture was showed her by her sister, Bernice Curtis, shortly before Miss Curtis was slain.

Mrs. Ash and her husband, who live in San Francisco, accompanied Miss Curtis' body to Chicago for burial. Services were held Monday at St. Hedwig's church, with burial in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Miss Curtis, who was 28, lived until nine months ago at 2212 Dickens avenue with her mother and her stepfather, Fred Miller. She then moved to San Francisco, where she worked in a cigar store.

KING GEORGE HONORS U. S. MAJOR AS HERO OF RAID ON DIEPPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Maj. Gregory Daymond of Los Angeles, Cal., a United States army pilot, attended a recent investiture at Buckingham palace to receive from King George VI. a bar to the distinguished flying cross for his services in the Dieppe operation.

The award was first announced Sept. 11 when Daymond still was leader of a royal air force Eagle squadron. The citation said he flew with distinction in the Dieppe operation and paid tribute to his high qualities of leadership and courage. He was credited with bringing down seven enemy planes.

Daymond was asked by the king what difference he had found between the American and British services and was reported to have replied that it "seems mostly to be a question of wearing khaki instead of blue."

ARMY CAFETERIA FOOD PROBED; 50 EATERS STRICKEN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—Fifty army officers and men and civilian personnel employed at the war department's huge new Pentagon building in Arlington, Va., were taken ill today, apparently of food poisoning, a department spokesman announced tonight.

He said none of the victims was in serious condition. All evidently had eaten corned beef hash in a cafeteria at the building, first reports showed.

U. S. Subs Sink Jap Destroyer and Four Ships

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—United States submarines have sunk five more Japanese ships, including a destroyer, the navy announced today, and damaged two others, one of which probably sank.

This bag of seven vessels raised to 148 the number of enemy ships announced as sunk or damaged by American undersea action in the Pacific since the war started. Naval officials said this total represented one of the greatest contributions made in the steady campaign of American forces to reduce Japan's ability to maintain her far-flung supply lines in the western Pacific and the China sea.

The ships announced sunk were a destroyer of unidentified class and size, a 9,000 ton tanker, and three cargo ships of 8,000, 6,300, and 2,000 tons respectively.

43,300 Tons Smashed.

In addition a 12,000 ton cargo ship was damaged and believed sunk and a 6,000 ton cargo ship was damaged. The total tonnage sunk or damaged was 43,300.

The communique dealt chiefly with the undersea operations but also mentioned the fighting on Guadalcanal Island in the Solomons, disclosing that both American artillery and fighter planes were supporting army and marine ground patrols in their campaign to clean up Japanese outposts in the vicinity of our positions on the island.

Routine patrol activity was reported, and no accounting was made of enemy troops killed or supplies captured.

Sank 70,000 Tons.

Prior to issuance of the communique a press conference was told that United States submarines in the Pacific were "doing a swell job." The navy had been asked for comment on stories from Honolulu regarding the exploits of a submarine commanded by Lieut. Comm. Thomas B. Klakring, 37 years old, of Annapolis.

His submarine was credited with sinking of enemy ships totaling 70,000 tons. He worked close in to the shores of Japan before loosing his deadly torpedoes.

Klakring's story occasioned considerable interest in naval quarters here because it is one of the few detailed accounts which have been published of the hardships and day to day accomplishments of the submersibles.

Seeks U. S. Aid to Put 300,000 French in Field

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP).—Adm. Jean Darlan, acting with the assertion that Marshal Henri Philippe Petain is a prisoner of the Germans at Vichy, has taken over authority as chief of state in French Africa, it was announced tonight from Morocco.

The Morocco radio said Darlan, who is coöperating with the allies, had set up an imperial council to advise him. This was announced after Darlan had conferred with Auguste Nogues and Pierre Boisson, governors general in Morocco and French West Africa, which embraces Dakar.

The London Daily Mail said the purpose of these conferences was to centralize plans for the immediate creation of a French army of 300,000 men to fight with the allies.

Expects Lend-Lease Supplies.

"A special staff appointed by Adm. Darlan will negotiate with American officers for the supply of munitions, food, and equipment under the lend-lease agreement," the newspaper said. "Darlan also asked Washington's aid in securing Gen. Charles de Gaulle's coöperation, which he feels is urgently needed."

Fighting French quarters in London, who still regard Darlan as a traitor to France because of his Vichy record, said they assumed that Darlan's assumption of his new powers was in an effort to strengthen his political position.

Presumably, it was his intention to set up a full fledged French government in North and West Africa.

One London source expressed belief that Darlan planned to use the vital West African port, Dakar, as a club over the allies and predicted that its naval base would be neutralized until Darlan's purposes were achieved.

Toulon Workers Riot.

The announcement from Morocco came as evidence grew of internal revolt in France, where rioting by hundreds of sullen workers at Toulon compelled authorities to drop their attempt to reopen the naval arsenal that was closed last Friday when French sailors scuttled the main fleet.

But orders, presumably from German officials, brought about reopening of Toulon's huge La Seyne shipyards, which still were enveloped by a thick pall of smoke from the hulks of the fleet and blasted oil tanks.

The Vichy radio itself told how French laborers first rioted yesterday when German conquerors tried to make the arsenal resume activity, leading Vice Adm. Marquis to broadcast a notice that the gates "will be closed until further notice."

Vichy Denies Toulon "Rumors."

Later the Vichy radio broadcast an official Vichy communique denying the "most dangerous rumors and most erroneous interpretations" on events at Toulon, which it said were being spread by foreign propaganda.

The communique, without giving an official Vichy version, said these "rumors, absolutely without foundation," concerned the scuttling of the fleet and the number of officers and men killed at Toulon.

From Vichy, Premier Pierre Laval's secretary of state, Adm. Rene Platou, addressed an appeal to French troops in Africa to offer passive resistance to their chiefs—presumably Darlan and Gen. Henri Honoré Giraud—"who, tempted by offers received from the enemy, have betrayed us."

Far more moving was another message from the commander in chief of Vichy French naval forces, Adm. Jean Marie Abrial, who told the crews of the destroyed fleet at Toulon to remember always the uniform they no longer can wear and to await the day "when a new navy will be re-created."

Hint Petain Under Guard.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—The Office of War Information tonight announced that the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter had received this report from its Vichy correspondent:

"Since the German occupation of the unoccupied zone, the Hotel Du Parc [residence of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain] has been inaccessible for the French people and is guarded by a chain of sentries."

WEDGE FORCED BETWEEN 2 AXIS BASES IN SOUTH

Air War Rages Over 4 Vital Ports.

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP).—An air struggle of an intensity unequaled since the battle of Britain was reported raging over Tunisia tonight as Germans and Italians rushed in reënforcements by sea and air in a frantic bid to keep their footholds on the coastal rim, and British, Americans, and French drove spearheads forward to slice them into at least three pockets.

The Morocco radio said one of these spearheads, composed of Americans and French, already had driven to the east coast between Gabes and Sfax, about 200 miles south of Tunis, cutting out one pocket. Sfax and Gabes are about 80 miles apart.

In the north, the Morocco broadcast added, the allies have driven thru enemy minefields and overrun the resistance of German heavy tanks in the drive to divide the Germans in Tunis and Bizerte.

Face Enemy's Greatest Strength.

Apparently, the radio continued, the British 1st army has now come up "against the nucleus of enemy resistance."

A delayed dispatch from a Reuters' [British] news agency correspondent with the British 1st army said that Medjez el Bab, 30 miles southwest of Tunis, was taken last Friday after a 48 hour hard fight that began on Wednesday, the beginning of the allied all-out drive against Tunis and Bizerte.

Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has thrown everything in his aerial armory, from Flying Fortresses to twin tailed P-38 [Lightning] fighters, in a virtually nonstop assault on Bizerte, Tunis, Sfax and Gabes, the four key coastal points held by the axis, in the last 24 hours. A spokesman at allied headquarters described the battle as at a critical stage.

Heavy Pressure Near Tunis.

An allied headquarters communique said heavy allied pressure was being exerted in the area of Djedeida, less than 12 miles west of Tunis, where one wedge was entering between Tunis and Bizerte, and in the area of Mateur, 28 miles south of Bizerte. The communique said there were frequent clashes with axis patrols in the mountains between Djedeida and Mateur. The towns are about 20 air line miles apart.

French forces to the south consolidated their holds from Djedeida to Pont du Fahs, 30 miles southwest of Tunis on an inland railway.

In the drive between Sfax and Gabes, a front which Italian troops were said to be defending, the allied aim was to cut the axis "escape highway" to Tripoli in Libya. This would leave the axis an exit only by sea or air.

Tried to Bolster Bridgehead.

An authoritative source said the axis had been trying to establish a secondary bridgehead at Gabes "apparently in order to keep communications open along the coast between Tripoli and Bizerte and at the same time have a place to fight if Tunis and Bizerte fell."

The allied communique spoke of perhaps another thrust in southeastern Tunisia, where French patrols were said to have damaged numerous enemy installations.

The German and Italian communiques both admitted the allies were advancing in Tunisia, but claimed the axis took prisoners.

Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's Flying Fortresses, light and medium bombers, and the P-38 fighters scored hits on the docks of Bizerte in a daylight high altitude attack yesterday, while medium bombers left hangars and railroad yards ablaze.

Blast Enemy Air Bases.

The light bombers returned with a blasting assault on the Tunis airfield this morning. British medium bombers unloaded a shower of explosives on Bizerte last night. Sfax and Gabes were bombed in daylight today. At Gabes American medium bombers hit hangars, landing fields and railway yards.

Axis anti-aircraft accounted for one allied bomber, of which the crew was saved by two P-38s which made a spectacular landing by the wrecked craft and picked up the stranded crewmen.

RATION VICTIMS STRAIN 'L' AND SURFACE CARS

Auto Traffic in Chicago Is Sharply Reduced.

occurred during the nonrush hours from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. On some trains during these hours the increase was as high as 40 per cent.

On the Wisconsin division, which runs northwest, the rush hour traffic gain was estimated at 7 per cent. On the Milwaukee division, running north, the rush hour gain was 12 per cent. On the Galena division, running west, there were similar increases.

The Burlington railroad reported an average increase of approximately 10 per cent in its suburban traffic during the day. The Rock Island lines had a gain of from 2 to 3 per cent.

PARKING LOTS.

Parking lots and garages in the loop were only partly filled. Some operators estimated their business was down 75 per cent, but others said they were handling 85 per cent of their normal volume of cars. All agreed that the full effect of gasoline rationing will not be shown until motorists start running out of the gasoline they obtained before rationing began at 12:01 a. m. yesterday.

Traction experts attempting to analyze the effects of the new restrictions said it will take several days to gather reliable data. They said the Christmas shopping season and the snowfall yesterday morning which made streets slippery had injected confusing factors into the situation.

Charles E. De Leuw, co-administrator of mass transportation for the metropolitan area, said the staggered work hour program, which also became effective yesterday, had been helpful in extending the length of the peak load period.

Full Staffs Arrive.

A survey of large offices in the loop and outlying war factories showed that full staffs arrived for work, altho in some cases five minutes to a half hour late.

Meanwhile, motorists and operators of trucks and other commercial vehicles continued to besiege rationing boards for gasoline coupon books or supplemental rations.

Motorists eligible for supplemental B and C ration books probably will receive them by next week, said Michael F. Mulcahy, OPA director for the Chicago metropolitan area. About 100,000 of the 475,000 motorists who have registered will be allowed the supplemental rations.

Mulcahy said that gasoline removed from storage containers must be deducted from the rationed allowance. He asserted that motorists who hoard gasoline will be guilty of violating the federal rationing regulations if they transfer gasoline from a container into their fuel tanks without canceling the proper coupons in their ration books.

Fire department officials warned against the dangers of improperly stored gasoline and said that many of the gasoline hoarders would be liable to fines for creating fire hazards.

Rationing boards will continue to work late at night processing belated applicatons for gasoline rations, Mulcahy said. He reported that many truck operators had delayed registering until Monday and yesterday. He said the board's processing machinery also had been clogged by the applications of motorists for extra rations.

Operators of commercial vehicles thronged headquarters of the Office of Defense Transportation motor transport division to file late applications for certificates of war necessity, without which they are unable to obtain gasoline.

The First Day of Gasoline Rationing

Looking north from North avenue at the Outer drive at about 8:15 a. m. yesterday, the first day of the gasoline rationing restrictions in Chicago.

Owner Sad as Firemen Pour Gasoline Hoard Into Sewer

Eighty-five gallons of precious, unrationed gasoline went swirling down a storm sewer under fire department supervision last night while its owner, Charles Van Hefty, 3831 Southport avenue, a war plant engineer, looked on sadly. Fire Chief Albert Bartke of Engine company 78, 1052 Waveland avenue, superintended the confiscation and said the hoard was one of four reported last night in his district by suspicious neighbors who smelled the fumes.

Van Hefty, who had counted on some 1,200 miles of unrationed motoring from the $16 investment, had the gasoline stored in two large drums and a couple of small cans in his garage. The fire chief told him he would have to "get rid" of the gasoline, pointing out that insurance underwriters' requirements allow storage of only five gallons or less in red cans with approved spring caps on residential premises.

Station Won't Buy It Back.

Van Hefty tried vainly to sell the gasoline back to the filling station where he had purchased it. Then he spoke of getting some smaller containers and transporting it to a safer spot. But a Town Hall policeman stepped in and told him he couldn't move the fuel. Baffled, he turned back to the fire department, who condescended to let him dump it down the sewer in front of the station while they flushed it with a big fire hose.

On three west side premises, reported by neighbors, the firemen confiscated improperly stored gasoline in quantities ranging from 5 to 20 gallons.

Order 30 Gallons Removed.

Fire Chief William C. Waters of Oak Park said six five-gallon cans of gasoline had been discovered in the rear of an undertaking establishment at 720 Lake street, Oak Park, and had been ordered removed.

Information reached George Knoll, fire chief at Cicero, that a man had several five-gallon cans of gasoline stored in an apartment at 5910 West 26th street. On investigation, the man was found to be removing the gas from the building.

'C' CARDS DENIED TO U. S. EMPLOYES IN AMARILLO, TEX.

Revenue Official Held 'Just Another Bill Collector.'

Amarillo, Tex., Dec. 1 [Special].—Federal officials and employés seeking preferential mileage books got rude shocks today from the Potter county gasoline rationing board, which announced bluntly that no special privileges would be granted persons merely because they work for the government.

"Just another bill collector," was the way the board's chairman, Chanslor Weymouth, six foot rancher, characterized Ralph Kenniston, deputy collector of internal revenue. Kenniston appeared with an application for a "C" book, but the board voted unanimously to deny such books to Kenniston and his assistants.

"We're treating everybody alike," Weymouth explained to the government man, "and we're going to administer rationing on a fair basis.

Cites Needs of Store.

"Blackburn Brothers' store needs extra gasoline for its collector in order to pay its income taxes and buy more bonds. We can't grant this request. The fact that you are a government employé doesn't allow you any special privileges in our opinion. We are placing every one in the same category."

John Wilson of the state controler's department, which collects gasoline, cigaret, and other state taxes, was turned down for the same reason. He promptly telephoned for help to State Controler George Sheppard in Austin. Sheppard promised to appeal to Mark McGee, state director of the Office of Price administration, Fort Worth.

Regional offices of the Farm Security administration asked preferred books for all their employés owning automobiles and for others driving government cars.

FSA representatives, asked why the extra mileage was needed, said they planned to recruit cotton pickers to send to Arizona and southern California.

The board denied this request and its spokesman commented: "They can't get any cotton pickers in the Texas Panhandle and they know it. At least they couldn't find any driving over the public highways."

Extra gasoline was denied to executives and fieldmen of the United States employment service.

"Most of their work is done either over the telephone or thru personal interviews at the employment office," said R. A. Stone, attorney and member of the board.

Looks to Firms' Needs.

"I know a lot of patriotic business firms who need gasoline worse than they do, and I'm not going to be responsible for putting these firms out of business and allowing nonessential government employés to have all the gas they want."

Weymouth said law enforcement agencies would get all the gasoline they need, but that all other applicants must meet the test of whether their driving is necessary to the war effort.

"State, federal, and city employés and private citizens are going to be treated alike," he said. "That's going to be our policy, and we think it is right."

Commercial Vehicles Get Tire Certificate Waiver

Commercial vehicle operators will be permitted until Jan. 1 to apply for tires under OPA rationing regulations without having a certificate of war necessity from the Office of Defense Transportation if their application for a certificate is still pending, Edward F. Stegen, regional OPA rationing executive, said yesterday. The OPA requires a certificate as the first step in proving eligibility for new tires.

PRESS AND BEER TRUCKS RATED ALIKE BY ODT

Newspapers Surprised by Gas Ration Ruling.

The rating of newspapers in relation to their value in the war effort is expected to be clarified from the protests publishers will make against reduced gasoline to be allowed their delivery trucks.

The unique contention that their vehicles, despite the great efforts of newspapers in aiding the American war cause, should be given the same consideration as beer trucks in the allotment of gasoline, has been advanced by Washington officials of the Office of Defense Transportation.

Thomas Snyder, assistant regional director of the ODT, asserted last night that newspaper publishers would be given every opportunity to protest the Washington rulings and added that a rule that 30 days must elapse before a protest may be filed would be waived so that the newspapers' story may be told immediately.

Pooling Edict Hinted.

It has been suggested by some ODT officials that in the future newspapers may be ordered to pool their deliveries with rival publications using the same trucks.

This attitude is considerably different from that held toward newspapers in World War I, when newsprint was placed high on priorities lists—as high as food and almost as high as ammunition—with war leaders concerned in seeing to it that adequate supplies were made available so that the public could get the facts concerning the war and public affairs.

Altho there has been no general ruling during the present war stating how essential newspapers are to the war effort, there have been individual listings which placed newspaper occupations in the essential category.

From many quarters has come high praise for the patriotism and morale building of newspapers which expended great effort in promoting bond sales—some papers in mammoth amounts—scrap drives, rubber conservation programs, recruiting drives, and the willing and wide dissemination of information on war, government, and military matters to officials and civilians alike.

Action Comes as Surprise.

Because of this and other obvious uses of newspapers in the nation's war problem, it came as a surprise to some publishers' representatives when they learned on Monday—only the day before gas rationing went into effect—that the ODT had imposed new cuts in their gasoline rations the effect of which could not fail to be a reduction in the amount of information for the public.

These slashes, ranging as high as 35 per cent, are in addition to the 40 per cent decrease in mileage for newspaper trucks which previously had been ordered by the ODT for newspapers as a rubber saving measure.

Apparently this order gave no consideration to the fact that large metropolitan newspapers, whose trucks must cover hundreds of miles in delivering papers to their large areas, would be much harder hit than small town papers who would receive approximately the same reduction of gasoline supplies.

The impossibility of pooling trucks of metropolitan newspapers for improving efficiency is readily discernible by noting the capacity loads hauled away from any publishing plant during its peak hours of operation. Such suggestions usually have been made, it is said, by the uninitiated, who have noticed empty trucks returning from deliveries.

PAPERS PRAISED AS SCRAP DRIVE EXCEEDS HOPES

Lessing Rosenwald, director of the War Production board conservation division, told Chicago salvage leaders yesterday the recent nation-wide scrap campaign was a magnificent piece of work which surpassed Washington's greatest anticipation. He spoke at a luncheon in the Electric club, 20 North Wacker drive.

Rosenwald gave credit for the success of the drive to the nation's newspapers and to the citizens. He warned against optimism in the 1943 scrap campaign, saying that greater effort will be necessary because the cream was taken this year.

The Chicago WPB region, which includes the states of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Iowa, ranked first among the 13 regions in the volume of scrap gathered in the recent drive. The Chicago region's total was 966,820 tons, or 113.7 pounds per capita.

Illinois ranked fifth among the states in scrap collection per capita, reporting 483,300 tons, or 122.4 pounds per capita. Vermont led all the states with 155.4 pounds per capita.

NAVY BACKS UP ON PLAN TO TELL OF PEARL HARBOR

Knox Says Complete Story Will Be Withheld.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—The navy department today was disclosed to be executing a strategic retreat on its plans to tell the complete story of Pearl Harbor on the first anniversary of the Japanese attack. The anniversary is Monday.

At his press conference Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said the complete story of the attack will be made public thru the Office of War Information.

Asked if the disclosure would be complete, he hesitated a moment and then said, "No." He explained that there are still certain facts that the navy is not going to let the Japs know, yet.

Inspection Trip Recalled.

He gave no intimation as to when the full and complete story which was promised will be given to the nation. Observers here have long felt that the true story of Pearl Harbor will not be told until after the war.

Last Dec. 15 Knox returned from an inspection of the naval disaster and reported what was heralded as the true story of Pearl Harbor. He announced that the battleship Arizona had been sunk, the battleship Oklahoma capsized, the target ship Utah sunk, and the destroyers Downes, Cassin, and Shaw sunk along with the minelayer Oglala.

Knox acknowledged damage to other vessels, ranging from slight to severe, and the serious loss of planes. More than 2,100 casualties were reported suffered in the Jap atack by the navy and the army.

Japs Claimed More.

On Dec. 9 the Japanese claimed two battleships, the West Virginia and the Oklahoma, were sunk and that four other capital ships and four cruisers were seriously damaged. The same report fixed the number of planes lost at between 100 and 300.

Nine days later the Japs revised their claims "on the basis of photographs taken from the air." Some of these have since appeared in THE TRIBUNE. The revised reports claimed five battleships were sunk—the California, Maryland, Arizona, Utah, and another battleship of unidentified class—and that three battleships and two cruisers were seriously damaged. This report listed American plane losses at 450.

In congress, Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott [R., Mich.] said America had lost control of the Pacific because eight out of nine capital ships in Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, were destroyed and that the United States lost 473 airplanes.

An interesting point in the story of Pearl Harbor is the fate of Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, the navy and army commanders, who were taxed with the sole blame for the disaster by an investigating commission named by President Roosevelt.

MEAT SHORTAGE MAY SHUT DOWN 1,500 N. Y. SHOPS

Supply Cut in Half by OPA Order.

New York, Dec. 1 [Special].—Closing of 1,500 butcher shops and reduction of the city's normal meat consumption by 50 per cent between now and the first of the year was predicted by members of the trade today as the meat shortage reached a critical stage. Many butchers thruout the city are out of fresh meat and have no prospect of deliveries, it was said.

An order of the War Production board on Nov. 1 reducing the New York meat quota to 70 per cent of the output of packers in 1941 is the cause of the acute shortage, according to dealers. This order superceded a previous quota of 80 per cent and caught most of the smaller packers unawares.

Many Are Oversold.

Many of the smaller packers had oversold their earlier quota in the fall, when demand for meats was great, hoping to recoup as the demand subsided, it was said. These firms were caught flat footed by the new reduction. Some smaller packers recently shut down all production for civilian consumption and are concentrating on meeting war needs, including lend-lease.

Dealers said the only source of beef remaining to New Yorkers in December are the large packers who have held sales strictly to a month to month quota basis and thus have small stocks left. It was estimated that small packers formerly supplied the city with 25 per cent of its beef.

Only Half Normal Supply.

If the big packers are able to supply their 75 per cent, which means 75 per cent of 70 per cent of the beef consumed at this time last year, New Yorkers will have a maximum of 52.5 per cent of normal beef consumption until Jan. 1, the dealers calculated.

As a result of the growing shortage, housewives have been revising marketing schedules and now buy week-end supplies early Friday, it was said. Those who do their buying at chain stores and larger shops find empty trays at the fresh meat counters if they wait until Friday afternoon.

Cold? You Shouldn't Be! Only 'Moderately' Frigid

Forecasting a "moderate" cold wave, the weather bureau announced one yesterday that Chicago was due for the coldest weather of the season, with temperatures early this morning as low as 10 above zero. Light snow flurries were due to accompany the low temperatures. The mercury was expected to drop sharply in the rest of the state as well.

SORRY FOR BLAST AT RATION FOES, HENDERSON SAYS

Apologizes for Calling All Critics 'Traitors.'

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today retracted a broadside thrown last week at foes of nation-wide gasoline rationing in which he charged that the opponents were either "ignorant or intentionally traitorous."

Leon Henderson.

Henderson was reported to be so disturbed over indignation by many congressmen and citizens who have been fighting rationing that he felt compelled to issue an apology in an effort to keep his job.

The charges, made in a nation-wide radio broadcast last Thursday night, were followed by a congressional uprising against Henderson on Friday. Members of congress charged that Henderson's statements showed he was unfit to hold office and demanded that he resign.

Calls "Impression" Incorrect.

In his apology today Henderson backed down from his previous statement. He said the "impression" gathered from his remarks was incorrect, altho he made no attempt to deny he made the charges. He asserted his remarks were not directed at honest opponents of the rationing program.

"In my radio talk I said a government survey showed certain organized groups were misleading the American people," Henderson said. "All thru the broadcast my remarks were directed at this group and not toward loyal individuals and members of congress. I had knowledge that Nazi propaganda, broadcast over short wave by a traitorous American, had sought to influence resistance to rationing."

Names Berlin Broadcaster.

Henderson said the "traitorous American" referred to is Fred Kaltenbach, a former resident of Iowa who for several years has been broadcasting Nazi propaganda from Berlin over the short wave station "Debunk." In recent broadcasts, Henderson said, Kaltenbach has asserted that gasoline rationing is unnecessary and urged residents of this country to oppose it.

Rep. F. Edward Herbert [D., La.], commenting on Henderson's statement, said: "Mr. Henderson's statement indicates clearly that the American public has been misled by his office. In this instance he has demonstrated once again that he is not worthy of the confidence of the American public or the job which he holds. I have carefully read his radio script which he now explains away. It is one of the most clever and most adroit pieces of vicious propaganda that has been perpetrated on the American public and as far as I am concerned there is one answer to it—resign."

War casualties among former Northwestern university students were increased to 19 dead and 3 missing by 4 listed as killed in the latest army and navy releases.

Lieut. Richard Barber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Barber, Dallas, Tex., who formerly lived in Oak Park, was killed in a plane crash near Quantico, Va. Lieut. Joe Finch of St. Louis, who was killed while serving aboard the U. S. S. Laffee in the South Pacific, was captain of the university's 1940 track team; and Lieut. Dan Cockrill of Nashville, Tenn., who died of wounds suffered in the sinking of a ship in the Solomons, was an honor graduate of his ROTC unit in 1935 and received the gold sword awarded the highest ranking cadet.

ILLINOIS LEGION CONCLAVE HERE TO START AUG. 27

Dates for the American Legion state convention scheduled for Chicago were set yesterday by a committee headed by N. Curtis Cation of Peoria, which met here. The convention will be held Aug. 27, 28, 29, and 30, and will be a full size annual meeting because the committee believes that the Legionnaires have many important matters that should be taken up at that time.

TRY 3D VERSION OF BILL TO ADD TO F. D. R. POWER

Committee Will Consider New Draft Today.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—The house ways and means committee today received the third proposed draft of legislation to clothe President Roosevelt in additional wartime powers. Containing restrictions not in the original versions, the new measure was prepared by a special subcommittee following White House demands for action on the project in the closing days of the present congress.

The new congress will contain increased Republican membership in both houses, with the G. O. P. and conservative Democrats expected to enjoy a working control of the house of representatives. Administration spokesmen are frank in confessing the fear that bills aimed at extending the authority of the executive branch will have little chance after Jan. 4 when the 78th congress takes over.

Bill Rejected Twice.

After the new war powers measure was considered twice by the ways and means committee and twice rejected, observers declared that it would never be enacted. However, Speaker Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.] was called to the White House for a conference last week and on Saturday after a meeting of Democratic leaders in his office he announced that another attempt would be made to secure passage of a bill satisfactory both to the congressmen and the executive department heads.

Odds on passage of the bill, even in modified form, have been quoted at 9 to 1 against. One of the main difficulties confronting the house leadership is that of keeping a quorum on hand to consider it should the opponents raise that point, it is admitted.

This danger was emphasized today as the house, attempting to take up a minor piece of legislation providing annuities for surviving workers who took part in the building of the Panama canal, was forced to adjourn because of the insufficient number on the floor.

Deals with Tariffs.

The subcommittee's latest version would empower Mr. Roosevelt to suspend by decree all tariffs, customs, and like restrictions governing the movement of materials, property and information in and out of the country.

It would also enable him to nullify the same regulations for the duration of the war with respect to the movement of persons out of the country. But the legislation would not give him any authority to tamper with the immigration laws restricting the movement of persons into the United States.

For the first time, the new version does not mention immigration, thus eliminating one of the most controversial features of the original bill. Under the measure as drawn by the White House—which congressional leaders said they introduced "by request"—the President would have been able to assume authority to let down all immigration barriers at his discretion.

The second version, also overwhelmingly rejected by the committee, would have permitted him to suspend immigration laws but with the added proviso that all those admitted by executive decree could not stay longer than six months. Yesterday, according to Rep. Jere Cooper [D., Tenn.], army and navy officials assured the congressmen that only those persons deemed necessary to the war effort would be brought into the country on a temporary basis.

The committee, however, refused to consider the matter further and it is believed by reliable sources to be dead.

Limitations Included.

The proposed new draft also provides that the powers end automatically on Dec. 31, 1943, or on the day after a proclamation that the war is over, whichever is sooner. They also can be terminated by concurrent resolution of both houses, which would not require the President's signature.

The revised version of the bill will be put before the full ways and means committee tomorrow, after which the members are scheduled to decide whether to hold public hearings. Several members said privately today that there are sufficient votes to force the hearings into the open and it has been predicted that such a step will delay action beyond the time when it will be possible for both houses to act on the measure.

Pvt. William N. Pence (left), Pvt. George W. Murray, and Pvt. Leroy O. Rockwell (right).

Three marines from Chicago who had been listed as missing in action among navy casualties announced Sept. 17 were reported safe yesterday by the navy department. They are Pvt. George W. Murray, son of Mrs. Jane Murray, 5531 West Adams street; Pvt. William N. Pence, son of Mrs. Helen Pence, 8236 South Peoria street, and Pvt. Leroy O. Rockwell, husband of Mrs. Leroy O. Rockwell, 330 South Homan avenue.

Mrs. Lillian Fuller, 201 Dean street, Woodstock, received word last Sept. 12 that her son, Pvt. Eugene J. J. Fuller of the marines was missing in action. Yesterday she was advised by the navy department that her son now is reported safe.

Mrs. Edward J. Obeirne, 303 North Commonwealth avenue, Elgin, has been advised by the namy department that her son, Lieut. Comm. Emmet Obeirne, U. S. N., did not suffer injuries of a permanent nature in a recent Pacific action, as was previously reported.

CANADA ELECTS THREE; LIBERALS LOSE HOUSE SEAT

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 1 (AP).—The Canadian house of commons had three new members today as a result of yesterday's by-elections in which the Liberal party of Prime Minister Mackenzie King lost one Quebec seat to an Independent.

Frederic Dorion, Quebec lawyer running as an Independent, defeated four opponents to win the Charlevoix-Saguenay seat vacated when Pierre F. Casgrain, Liberal, was appointed to the Provincial Supreme court.

Maj. Gen. L. R. La Fleches retained the Montreal Outremont seat for the Liberals by defeating Jean Drapeau, while in the Winnipeg North Center district the Rev. Stanley H. Knowles was elected, keeping the seat for the Coöperative Commonwealth federation, a Socialist type party.

78,000 MUST TRUDGE 600 MILES TO REACH BRAZIL RUBBER FIELDS

[By wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Dec. 1.—Transportation overland of 78,000 men, who must travel on foot more than 600 miles over mountains, river, jungle, and swamp, is the immediate task of the coördinator of economic mobilization, Joao Alberto Lins de Barros.

These men are rubber gatherers. Transportation of this huge army over routes that are devoid of railways and highways has been made necessary by the partial closing of sea navigation between some northeastern Brazilian points due to the war. Along the route will travel an estimated 2,000 men weekly—trekking seven or eight hours daily. It is estimated they will cover about 20 miles a day.

It is hoped to increase rubber production to 50,000 tons by the end of 1943 to meet Brazilian and United States war needs.

RUSSIAN FLYERS DESTROY 50 BIG GERMAN PLANES

Bag Aircraft on Way to Aid Haggard Troops.

MOSCOW, Dec. 2 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Russian airmen have destroyed 50 big German transport planes trying to supply Nazi troops fighting against a Red army encirclement in the Stalingrad area, it was announced early today.

The midnight communique, which was issued as the 100th day of the German siege of Stalingrad began, said the soviet armies continued to advance in the Stalingrad sector and on the central front west of Moscow.

The regular noon communique yesterday and the midnight bulletin disclosed that about 6,000 more Germans had fallen on the snow covered battlefields in an increasingly stubborn effort to hold up the Red army.

30 Destroyed on Ground.

Twenty of the tri-motored Junkers planes were shot down and 30 were destroyed on the ground Monday alone as the Germans attempted "to bring up supplies and war materials" in the areas west of Stalingrad between the Volga and the Don rivers, the communique said. Soviet reports on air activities generally are a day late.

The Russians still were reported fighting on the eastern bank of the Don river in their efforts to close a trap on the Germans. German railway communications to the rear already had been snapped by the Russians both northwest and southwest of Stalingrad.

The Russians said their troops had occupied additional populated places in the Stalingrad area. Large supplies of equipment and other materials also were captured or destroyed.

Southwest of Stalingrad, the Russian drive was reported to be nearing Kotelnikovo.

New Artillery Duels.

Inside Stalingrad the fighting mostly was confined to artillery duels and consolidation of hard won Russian positions.

Like the battle of the contracting trap at Stalingrad, the newer offensive in the Rzhev-Vyazma-Veliki Luki triangle on the central front became a wild mêlée of maneuver over frozen streams and soil.

The midnight communique said the Russians had occupied more towns between Veliki Luki and Rzhev "overcoming stubborn enemy resistance." Veliki Luki is 260 miles west of Moscow and 90 miles from Latvia.

[Stockholm accounts from Berlin quoted a military spokesman as saying the "greatest tank battle of the war" was being fought on the central front west of Moscow and the Nazi position was "very grave," with a compact wall of Russian tanks pressing against Nazi lines. Stockholm and London both said street fighting was in progress in Rzhev, 130 miles northwest of Moscow, and that the key defense city was surrounded.]

Direct Plea by Hitler.

Adolf Hitler was said to have appealed directly for the recapture of the vital Rzhev-Vyazma railway, which the Russians have cut. He also was reported to have ordered the Germans themselves to machine gun any retreating Nazi units. Red Star, the army newspaper, said a captured document quoted Hitler as saying the loss of Rzhev would "equal the loss of half of Berlin."

Dispatches said the enemy threw fresh reserves into the central front battle, making numerous counterattacks with tanks and strong infantry units in vain efforts to mend breaks in railway lines.

Russian successes in the area midway between Moscow and Latvia not only threatened the whole German winter defense line, but the year long siege lines around Leningrad farther north. All White Russia appeared in danger of being outflanked.

The German commander of the 9th tank division in Rzhev-Vyazma-Veliki Luki area was said to be begging frantically for aid.

The toll of 6,000 German dead yesterday raised the total to 161,700 for both the Stalingrad and central front sectors on the basis of previous announcements.

Tank Battle Rages: Nazis.

BERLIN Dec. 1 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command today reported that embittered fighting was raging in the Kalinin and Toropetz sectors, northwest of Moscow, with the Russians throwing tanks and newly arrived reënforcements into the struggle.

Continuing soviet attacks between the Don and Volga rivers have been frustrated and at some points the Russians have been thrown back beyond their initial positions, the high command said.

166 ALLIED SHIPS SUNK BY SEA AND AIR FORCES IN MONTH, NAZIS CLAIM

BERLIN, Dec. 1 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command issued a special announcement today asserting that German sea and air forces during November sank 166 ships totaling 1,035,200 tons. [There is no confirmation of this enemy claim. Similar announcements in the past have proved to be highly exaggerated.]

The announcement said the November sinkings exceeded those reported in September by 23,500 tons. It said U-boats accounted for 149 vessels, aggregating 955,200 tons, in the North and South Atlantic, the Arctic and Indian oceans, and coastal waters of North Africa. Other sinkings, according to this summary, included eight ships totaling 20,000 tons by E-boats [fast torpedo craft] in the North sea and English channel, and nine totaling 60,000 by the air force.

The communique listed destruction of three cruisers, six destroyers, two corvettes, and one submarine by U-boats in November. Torpedo hits were reported on one aircraft carrier, two cruisers, three destroyers, and several patrol vessels.

PICTURE OF TOWN IN RUSSIA FREED OF NAZI INVADER

Eyewitness Tells How It Backs Up Army.

BY RALPH PARKER.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ON THE RUSSIAN CENTRAL FRONT, Dec. 1.—I saw in this small Russian market town, about 30 miles from the front line of the central front, how the reoccupied zone is backing up the Red army's operations. I also witnessed how vigorously the work of reconstruction is undertaken by the Russians to create a solid rear for the offensive forces.

The town shows signs of the German occupation. For instance, in the park there is a common grave where a general, many soldiers and guerrillas and tortured citizens are buried.

Piles of Rubble.

One notices other things. Windows are gaping or are boarded up, there are piles of rubble where there had been movie theaters, a clubhouse and a garage. A church is destroyed.

The mayor said that 10 months ago the population did not smile. Now the inhabitants, as they pass by muffled up in winter coats, look normal and exchange good humored shouts with Red army men who fling logs down from trucks in the square.

Two days as a guest of the regional Communist party provided an opportunity to get a view of local problems.

I talked with farmers over whose land battles raged for weeks and whose plows lay idle for the lack of horses, with school children who were crowded in poorly illuminated temporary buildings, with factory girls stitching winter clothes for the Red army, with young women who had been beaten so that their faces and hands twitched with nervousness, and with priests whose churches were roofless.

Plow Acres by Hand.

The farmers, I learned, had plowed their acres by hand, picking up before the plow baskets of metal—rusty souvenirs of last winter's battles. The children had taken their examinations regularly and with average success.

The clothing and felt boot factories were supplying a large part of the needs of Red army detachments in the local forests. Local health was normal, typhus having been isolated and checked.

Much of this progress was due to the resilient toughness of the Russian character but much could be traced to the caliber of the men working to organize recovery thru soviet institutions.

With one exception these men were in their 30s and local born. When the Germans came to the region they worked on the evacuation of industry, inhabitants, cattle, and tractors. Then they went by prearranged plan into the forests and were guerrillas for three months. Two days after reoccupation by the Red army they were back at their administrative posts and had begun the process of reconstruction.

ASK SUPREME COURT OF CANADA TO RULE ON WARTIME POWERS

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 1 (AP).—The Canadian Supreme court was asked today to rule on powers of wartime controlers in governmental departments to issue orders having the effect of law.

The court will test the wide powers given to controlers of supplies, rentals, employment, and other factors in wartime living.

The justice department asked the ruling specifically on the appointment and powers of the chemicals controler. Several times courts in Toronto and Kingston, Ont., have dismissed charges laid under authority of wartime control orders which were not orders in council.

UNION REJECTS WORDING OF NEW WARD CONTRACT

The contract dispute between Montgomery Ward & Co. and Local 20 of the United Retail, Wholesale, and Department Store Employés of America [CIO] was deadlocked yesterday, awaiting War Labor board action. Francis Heisler, union attorney, refused to let union officers sign a proposed contract because he said a clause inserted by the company would invalidate it.

The union telegraphed William H. Davis, WLB chairman, asking that the company be required to comply with President Roosevelt's directive and sign the contract "with the exclusion of all extraneous matters." The President ordered the company to comply with a WLB ruling that they must agree to include a maintenance of union membership clause in the new contract with the union.

The union's telegram said the company had included this "objectionable" clause in the contract's preamble: "The following provisions are not voluntarily agreed to by the company. In the company's opinion they are illegal and unsound. These provisions are copied verbatim from the War Labor board's order of Nov. 5, 1942, and are incorporated herein, on the company's part, under duress and only because the President of the United States as commander in chief in time of war has expressly ordered that they be included."

CHICAGOAN TELLS HOW U. S. TROOPS INVADED AFRICA

Seaman Home on Leave After Ship Sinks.

A thrilling narrative of an American invasion of a continent was related yesterday by a youthful Chicago seaman who accompanied the movement of United States troops to African shores in the greatest convoy feat in naval history.

Richard Williams.

The seaman is Richard Williams, 2600 North Hoyne avenue, one of a force of 150 happy, hilarious sailors who "dropped anchor" in Chicago Monday night at the Illinois Central station. All were survivors of sunken ships; all were bound for their homes on 20 day leaves.

Williams, an electrician's mate, third class, was greeted by his mother, Mrs. Victoria Williams, and his sister Lucille.

Tells of Battle with French.

The 18 year old former Lane Technical High school student described in almost reverential tones the history making events that he witnessed and participated in.

"First there was the valiant but heart-rending resistance of the portions of the French fleet based at our landing point," he said. "From extreme range we fired upon these gallant defenders of a lost empire, then battling from their secondary base along the wild African coast.

"Our shelling at this juncture, and their inadequate return of our fire, lasted only a few hours; then, as darkness descended, the French vessels steamed to their primary base, several miles south."

Aided by Axis Planes.

When the battle was started the next day, Williams said, the enemy fleet's resistance was bolstered by German and Italian dive bombers that buzzed around our ships like deadly gadflies.

"Our ack-ack [anti-aircraft fire], however, kept them at a fairly respectful distance," he said. "I saw three or four of them shot into the sea, and each downed plane drew a howl of applause from the men aboard the ships."

To many of the men manning the guns of the American fleet, Williams said, it seemed strange and a bit pathetic to be aiming their projectiles at the sea power of our ally in the last war.

But this sympathy with an "enemy," he said, did not restrain our fighting seamen, and later soldiers, from battling with true American ferocity.

Troops Landed in Barges.

"The French 'enemy' was again encountered when we landed our troops and their equipment in barges," he said. "The shore line, on the ground and in the air, was a thunderous theater of flashing action, punctuated by the roar of artillery, the rattle of machine and tommy guns, with a constant roar overhead of screaming, diving planes."

But the loss of American troops, the seaman said, was surprisingly light. They went about their task of invasion in a businesslike fashion, and they gave far more than they received.

HITLER HONORS A GENERAL WHO RAN OUT OF GAS

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—The Berlin radio disclosed today that one of Marshal Rommel's top aids, Maj. Gen. Bernhard Ramcke, commander of a parachutist brigade, has been removed from North Africa after a shortage of gasoline had left him stranded in the desert.

It said Ramcke and Capt. Heinrich Schweikhardt, group commander of a Nazi fighter squadron, were at Adolf Hitler's headquarters today to be awarded oak leaves to the knight's cross of the iron cross.

Ramcke, the broadcast said, was left behind with some of his men at the battle of El Alamein because of a lack of gasoline, but captured some British trucks and he and his men reached Rommel's main forces in them.

CALL GUN DEATH SUICIDE.

Leo Waltersdorf, 33 years old, died in Elgin State hospital of bullet wounds self inflicted Oct. 22 in his home, 7435 Fullerton avenue, Elmwood Park, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

CHICAGO SOLDIER GETS SILVER STAR FOR GALLANTRY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Pvt. Adam E. Gross of Chicago was awarded the silver star today for "gallantry in action."

The posthumous award of a silver star to Corp. Hubert W. Crowell of Lenoir, N. C., for "courage and devotion to duty" while serving as waist gunner in a B-17 bomber on a combat mission over occupied Europe on Sept. 6, also was announced. When Crowell's bomber was attacked by Nazi fighter planes, he was wounded by the first blast of gun fire, but he continued to operate his guns, warding off further attacks, until he collapsed.

Sixteen awards of the Order of the Purple Heart also were made to members of the 8th air force for wounds incurred in action. Among the recipients were Sergt. Carson C. Richardson, 133 East Johnston street, Madison, Wis.; Sergt. Maurice W. Knutson, R. F. D. No. 1, Clear Lake, Wis., and Sergt. Andrew H. Burnett, Rocky Comfort, Mo.

GEN. CLARK DECORATED AND IT'S A GREAT DAY FOR HIS ORDERLY

ALLIED HDQ., North Africa, Dec. 1 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today personally decorated Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark with the distinguished service medal for his "outstanding characteristics of leadership, sound judgment, and soldierly qualities" in carrying out a hazardous secret mission to Africa before the allied invasion.

Eisenhower, a West Point companion of Clark, decorated the tall, youngest lieutenant general in the United States army in a simple ceremony. But Clark was flanked by the greatest collection of top ranking admirals, generals, and gold braid thus far assembled at headquarters here—and by Negro Sergt. William Chaney of Washington, D. C.

Chaney was the proudest man in the American army here today, for he has been Clark's orderly for many years, and he stood with the British and American generals and admirals while his chief was decorated.

MOVE TO SEND FOOD TO DUTCH THRU BLOCKADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Altho British officials have held that the allies are violating the economic blockade precedents by sending food to Greece, it is understood that the exiled Dutch government intends to ask Britain to grant the same concession to relieve the food shortage in Holland.

Up to now, it has been argued that Germany benefits when food is sent to the populations of the German occupied countries.

The latest information in Dutch circles indicates that the death rate among adolescents in Holland is up 43 per cent over 1939, while the death rate among children under 4 years of age has risen 31 per cent. Diphtheria cases are 70 per cent more numerous than in 1939; typhoid is up 125 per cent; dysentery has increased 553 per cent; and rickets, scabies, tuberculosis, and other diseases attributed to malnutrition are said to be substantially higher.

British Down 3 German Fighters; Raid in France

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP).—Three German fighter planes were shot down today as British Spitfires made an offensive sweep over northern France and attacked barges off the Dutch coast. One British plane was lost. A trawler engaged in sweeping mines shot down a German fighter plane off the southwest coast, the admiralty announced.

U. S. AND FRENCH TROOPS DRIVE TO SEA IN TUNISIA

Split 2 Axis Bases; Great Air War Rages.

ing the airdrome at Tunis encountered six Messerschmitts, believed to be 109Gs, and shot down one. Hits were scored on German aircraft on the ground. P-38s escorting Flying Fortresses to Bizerte encountered many fighters, but bad weather obscured observation of hits on the target.

Battle 10 Nazi Planes.

Another force of P-38s on reconnaissance near Mateur encountered 10 Nazi planes, believed to be 109Gs, and shot down one enemy plane and damaged three. One P-38 was lost in this brief battle, watched by allied troops on the ground.

From Malta and eastern Libya, other allied planes struck blows at Sicily and sea lanes of the Mediterranean narrows. Bases in Sicily including Comiso, Palermo, Gela, and Trapani were showered with explosives. A merchant ship was exploded near Pantellaria, the Italian fortress island in the narrows. The axis struck back at Algiers and Bone, allied supply bases in eastern Algeria, where they claimed some transport ships were sunk, and made low level attacks on allied columns in Tunisia.

The Germans were rushing in planes from western Europe and the Russian front. One Nazi pilot shot down in Tunisia had been flying less than two weeks ago over Stalingrad.

Face Enemy's Ace Planes.

Pilots of the P-38s had encountered Focke-Wulf 190s and Messerschmitt 109Gs for the first time, indicating that the Germans were bringing their best strength into the air battles. These fighters operate at high altitude and also could easily have operated from Sicily.

At El Agheila, at the eastern extremity of the North African coast still held by the axis, the British 8th army sent out patrols to probe at Marshal Erwin Rommel's narrow and deep defenses 400 miles east of Tripoli.

The Berlin radio said "very considerable reënforcements" of men and heavy armament had reached Rommel.

Ankara dispatches reported that German troops were reaching Greece at the rate of a division—10,000 to 15,000 men—a week to take up the slack left by the rushing of reënforcements to North Africa.

RAF'S BOMBINGS MAKE ITALIANS WANT PEACE, SWISS PAPER REPORTS

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 1 (AP).—Methodical destruction of Italy's industrial cities by royal air force raids has created "an immense desire for peace" in the Italian press, the Tribune, a Lausanne newspaper, said today.

The newspaper quoted reports that when the Italian king and queen visited Genoa after the great port's first bombings, people greeted their rulers with cries, "Peace! Peace!"

Prime Minister Winston Churchill's "invitation" to the Italians on Sunday to take their nation out of the war, the newspaper said, was made because London had learned that the Italian people, "possibly more than others," had wearied of the struggle.

Fascist newspapers reaching Switzerland have said little yet against Churchill's speech, but the Giornale d'Italia of Rome said reprisals for bombings would be made "at an opportune time."

HARTLE ASSUMES COMMAND OF U. S. ARMY IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Russel P. Hartle is temporarily in command of the United States army in the United Kingdom during the absence of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, American army headquarters for the European theater announced today.

Eisenhower is in active command of the allied expedition in North Africa.

Prior to this temporary assignment to the United Kingdom command, Hartle was commanding general of United States troops in Northern Ireland. He has been in the European theater of operations for several months.

REVEAL CHICAGO CAPTAIN AS NAVY HERO IN MOROCCO

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—A dispatch released by censors today disclosed that Capt. Francis C. Denebrink of Chicago, and Sheridan, Wyo., was master of a cruiser in the United States task forces sent to French Morocco.

Capt. F. C. Denebrink.

A Nov. 15 dispatch by the Associated Press told of the captain of a cruiser sending his men to battle with the victory formula "shoot first—hit first—kill first." The name of the ship's master was withheld from that story, but it can now be related that the skipper was Capt. Denebrink. Denebrink was born in Chicago, brought up in Sheridan, Wyo., and after finishing Annapolis in 1917 he went right to work aboard a destroyer convoying men and materials to France.

The Associated Press dispatch said "it was his master touch that rescued 1,174 men from the transport Wakefield last Sept. 3, when the liner caught fire at sea."

DESCRIBES SCENE BEHIND LINES IN TUNISIAN TOWNS

Natives Casual, but Dash When Alarm Sounds.

BY WILLIAM B. KING.

JUST BEHIND THE FIGHTING FRONT, Somewhere in Tunisia, Nov. 23 [Delayed] —(AP).— Mechanized and armored vanguards of the allied expeditionary forces are maneuvering over narrow mountain roads bordered by jagged caverns and barren peaks, and this dispatch is being written only a few miles from the British front.

Three other correspondents and I, with the consent of military authorities, drove on tortuous roads which must be a nightmare to drivers of heavy military equipment. We approached within rifle shot of a main German concentration.

Life Goes on as Usual.

Over roads and tracks with surfaces already cracked, holed and churned to dust, we passed convoys of both British and American armored vehicles. As we reached front positions, we were constantly slowed by road blocks, manned by the revitalized French army.

In scattered French and Arab villages of squat, stuccoed huts and in the squalid, thatched houses of the Bedouin tribes along the mountain roads, life seemed to go on as usual. Idle natives watched with expressionless interest as heavy tanks and trucks rolled thru their streets.

Cattle, goats, and an occasional camel grazing by the roadsides frequently wandered onto the roads to the consternation of tattered shepherds.

Raid Alarm in a Village.

At the village of Souk el Arba, where we stopped to buy oranges and wine to supplement our field ration lunch, the moanful bellow of a makeshift air raid siren sent the excitable natives dashing to recently dug slit trenches in the village square, their robes flying out behind them.

The local wine merchant closed his shop in haste, and mingled French and Arabic shouting filled the streets. British and American soldiers who remained out in the open, however, saw only RA FSpitfires heading east to meet the enemy.

We finally had lunch with officers of a French anti-aircraft battery.

"We left our wives and families in Tunis to come here and fight with you," one of the officers said.

Then some one offered a toast to 1918, and lunch was cut short by another alert.

F. D. R. REFUSES TO FORECAST END OF EUROPEAN WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—President Roosevelt today avoided a direct answer to an effort to get him to predict when the war in Europe may end.

The chief executive was questioned at his press conference about a prediction of Oliver Lyttleton, British minister for production, who is visiting here, that the war in Europe could be won in 1943.

Mr. Roosevelt answered with a note of impatience that it was perfectly all right for Lyttleton to make his own predictions. He added that he was sure the reporters had not noticed him making any predictions.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked if he had conclusive reports that the entire French fleet at Toulon had been scuttled. He replied that he had received various reports, none of which was conclusive.

He said there was nothing on the fire regarding reported plans for Harold L. Ickes to become secretary of labor with control over man power.

He also said that differences between the War Production board and the military authorities had been settled without interference with the production program.

Mr. Roosevelt was questioned about reports that Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French forces, is planning to visit this country. He said that reports he had invited De Gaulle were inaccurate, but that he would receive him if he came.

FEDERAL RULE OF AUSSIE CIVIL LIFE PROPOSED

SYDNEY, Australian, Dec. 1 (AP).— Under the stress of war, the federal constitution convention's drafting committee today proposed that the commonwealth government take over from the states broad powers over civil life, ranging from marketing to standardizing rail gauges.

Transfer of the powers for a period for five years from the war's end was unanimously voted by the committee. The bill would have to be ratified by the states, however.

Powers that would be transferred include legislation for control of trusts, employment and unemployment, distribution of commodities, production except "primary production," air transport, uniformity of rail gauges [Austrilian states now have different gauges], profiteering, prices, regulation of investments, national health, national works with the consent of states, family allowances, aborigines, and reënstatement and advancement of soldiers now at war.

TRIBUNE'S USAGE OF BRITISH TITLES BOTHERS A NOBLE

His Paper Gives Chicago Story Special Play.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The Daily Telegraph, owned by Viscount Camrose [William Ewert Berry], who is among the most recent of Britons to receive and defend a title, refuses to allow any sense of humor to be attached to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's policy of abolishing the use of titles as far as possible and still preserve the coherency of a news story.

The Daily Telegraph was the only London paper to carry an extensive dispatch on the Tribune editorial, in which it was admitted that THE TRIBUNE itself had said there might be difficulties encountered in completely excluding the use of titles. The Telegraph's Chicago correspondent, in a dispatch today, said that the difficulties which THE TRIBUNE foresaw have materialized.

What Correspondent Said.

Under the heading: "Peers Puzzle U. S. Newspaper—Knights Shorn of Titles," the correspondent reported:

"Diligent study of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE since it announced a week ago that it had decided to abolish the use of titles of the nobility in its columns indicates that this quixotic editorial policy is proving rather difficult to carry out."

Without referring to THE TRIBUNE's decision not to sacrifice clarity at any cost, the correspondent continued:

"For the most part it is the knights and baronets who have been shorn of their prefixes, but whether this is because such words as 'earl' and 'lord' are mistaken for Christian names is not clear."

The correspondent then pointed out that "sir" was omitted from the names of Stafford Cripps and Kingsley Wood.

Recall "Gov. Windsor."

"Other instances," said the correspondent, "are Gen. Bernard Montgomery, Air Chief Marshal Arthur William Tedder, Air Chief Marshal William Sholto Douglas, Air Marshal Philip Joubert de la Ferte, and Patrick Hannon, president of the National Union of Manufacturers."

"The duke of Windsor became Gov. Windsor of the Bahamas, but with the British ambassador THE TRIBUNE compromised, calling him 'Lord Halifax' [Edward Frederick Lindley Wood].

"On the other hand, its pages were graced with such names as the earl of Mansfield, Viscount Cranborne, and Lord Selborne."

Quotes Letter from Reader.

The correspondent then quoted an extract from a letter to THE TRIBUNE from a reader offering congratulations on "your bold decision" and suggesting the abandonment of the custom of referring to United States congressmen as "Honorable." He concluded with further quotations from the periodical Editor and Publisher, "predicting a short life for this experiment."

HERO OF CORAL SEA ASSUMES DUTIES AS GREAT LAKES CHIEF

Capt. Frank J. Lowry.

Capt. Frank J. Lowry, who holds the navy cross for distinguished service in the Coral sea battle, became commandant of Great Lakes Naval Training station yesterday, succeeding Rear Adm. John Downes. Adm. Downes will continue as commandant of the 9th naval district with headquarters at Great Lakes. He formerly held both assignments.

Both the incoming and outgoing commandants addressed 5,000 officers, enlisted men and guests in ceremonies at the station's main drill hall. Adm. Downes told how the station had grown in population from 8,000 in September, 1940, to its present personnel of about 75,000. He has served two tours of duty as commandant, from April 10, 1935, to Dec. 23, 1936, and from Aug. 29, 1940, until yesterday.

No successor has been named for Capt. Lowry, who formerly served as the station's executive officer. He is 54 years old, a native of Cresco, Ia., and a 1907 graduate of the naval academy.

'TOO OLD' AT 28, BUT FOSS SHOOTS DOWN 21 JAPS

Holds Record for Pilots on Guadalcanal.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GUADALCANAL, Nov. 12 [by air-mail].—Tangling with a Jap Zero miles above the earth at incredible speeds might not appeal to most young men, but to Capt. Joseph Foss, 28 years old, Sioux Falls, S. D., it's "the most fun you can have—just like playing a game."

Game or not, Foss plays for keeps. In the last month he has tumbled from the clouds 15 Zeros, two biplane fighters, and a big Mitsubishi bomber. He came in three times for dead stick landings and four days ago—after downing three Jap planes — was forced into the ocean when his engine conked out. He was recently awarded the distinguished flying cross for his skill and courage.

An hour ago Capt. Foss shot down two torpedo bombers and a Zero as his share of 16 bombers and five Zeros downed for four of our planes lost, bringing his total to 21 and placing him ahead of all other pilots.

"Too Old for Combat."

His spectacular success pleases Foss particularly because when he applied a few months ago back in the United States for transfer from a reconnaissance squadron to a fighting unit, he was told he was too old for combat work.

Foss, son of Mrs. Mary Foss of Sioux Falls, has been interested in flying since 1937, when he paid $65 to learn to solo. Then he decided to join the marine air force after attending Sioux Falls and Augustana college, working at a filling station to pay his way, and being graduated from the University of South Dakota. He's been a marine since 1940.

His luckiest days were Oct. 23 and Oct. 25, on each of which he knocked down four Zeros. He says he'd as soon mix with the Zero as with the easier bomber, and that the boys in his flight [known as "Joe's Flying Circus"] feel the same way about it. Foss is squadron executive officer. The squadron commander is Maj. Leonard [Duke] Davis, a former Chicagoan.

The first time Foss got his four a day tally he describes as "one of the best dogfights ever seen."

Fights Thru 20 Zeros."

"We went up to chase bombers," he said, "and my outfit was down below. We saw two Zeros off to the left and then three more, and my outfit headed straight at them. I thought it was funny that five would come after eight—because they're the biggest cowards in the word. Unless it's two or three to one they won't fight. I looked back and here diving out of the sun came 15 more of the sons-of-guns.

"So we turned and dove under them and they went right thru us, then we swung quickly and followed them down. Then Davis' flight came down, too. The first one I got I knocked off some one's tail. I switched off that son-of-a-gun and followed one down in a dive, then he went up in a loop and I got him right at the top. I caught the next one doing a slow roll, and the last one head on, as there was another behind me.

"One must have hit my motor because I came in smoking. Two Zeros made passes at me as I was coming down, but some one else got them both."

Foss said the Jap planes are "so cheap and light they can turn on a dime," but that when hit in a vulnerable spot they "blow up like a toy balloon.

Move in Close to Fire.

"Sometimes you just touch the trigger and they're gone. I always come in close before shooting and don't use all my guns, to save ammunition. At first I shot from far away, but now all my flight's been moving in closer and getting better results.

"The Zero has a 20 millimeter cannon that looks like Dizzy Dean's slow ball when the tracer comes at you, and I think six .30 caliber machine guns. I've never been in combat yet without getting bullet holes in my plane. They shot the oil cooler off one day and I've made three dead-stick landings, but the Grumman is a tough ship.

"The Zero pilots pull some pretty stupid stunts. I could put some of my pilots in a Zero and they'd shoot hell out of me in my own plane. But of course most pilots wouldn't want to ride in one because they're suicide if they're hit right."

What He Thinks About.

Asked what he thought about while he was fighting, he said:

"The only thing you think about is getting that son of a gun before he gets you. It's just a matter of fighting to the finish, and every time you see one blow up it's like a treat. You feel just like yelling Hallelujah!

"It's a beautiful sight: Both wings fly off, the motor goes one way and the tail another, and pilot and chute pop right into your face. Lately we've noticed lots of empty chutes floating down with only the seat attached. The speed of the plane must yank the man right out of the darn thing."

He credits the other men in his flight, a thoroly sifted group, for much of his success.

"If you have a flight of good tough boys backing you up you can do a lot," he said.

"I've got one man who's never gotten a plane yet, but the son of a gun always stays in there fighting till the last ditch. And the Zeros are scared to death of the Grummans, so that just sticking around helps plenty."

Foss wasn't at all upset about having been shot down four days ago into shark-infested waters, nearly drowning when his foot caught in his sinking plane.

Pilots "Burn Out."

"Going into the anti-aircraft fire is like looking into the door of a blast furnace," he said, "only there's something coming out. And when you leave the water is covered with a hail of falling shrapnel."

Foss said also that after so long any fighter pilot "burns out" and becomes "sorta dead between the ears" from the oxygen hops, excitement and strain. But he said he likes being a fighter pilot, adding:

"Those of us that are left—and some of those who went down—wouldn't trade it for anything. It's the most fun you can have."

You're sure to hear more from Joe and his flying circus.

Aviation Recruiting

Progress of the army aviation cadet recruiting campaign.

Applications for navy flight training to the cadet selection board in the Board of Trade building have exceeded all records since Monday morning. In two days 436 young men 18 to 26 years old appeared before the board, 195 of them yesterday. Among flight training applicants sworn in yesterday was Anthony Rulli of South Bend, Ind., 22 year old saxophone and clarinet player, who has been with such bands as Benny Goodman's, Harry James', Dean Hudson's, and Dick Stabile's.

The army aviation cadet examining board accepted 55 pilot candidates yesterday and now has 13,754 toward its goal of 20,000 by the end of the month. The army enlistment campaign started Sept. 1, 1941. Effective yesterday the Illinois army air force recruiting detachment was set up apart from the 6th service command recruiting and induction center. Lieut. Col. R. E. Porter now becomes head of all air force recruiting in the command. Maj. Floyd M. Showalter will continue to head board No. 3 in Chicago and traveling board No. 5, also with headquarters here.

Richard E. Schwanz, 18, a veteran of the British maritime service, enlisted in the United States merchant marine service yesterday. Schwanz was aboard a freighter off Australia five months ago when the ship was torpedoed by a Jap submarine and sunk in 1½ minutes. Schwanz is a native of Springfield, Ill. The maritime service enlisted 952 men in November and the first day of December toward a 3,500 goal by the end of February.

4 WARSHIPS SEEK TO BRING AID TO ENTRAPPED JAPS

Allies Close Ring Around Them at Buna.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Dec. 2 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Despite their heavy losses in previous abortive attempts to reënforce their isolated troops in the Buna-Gona area of New Guinea, the Japanese sent four destroyers toward Buna today in another attempt to strengthen their forces.

Allied planes scored hits and near misses on some of the ships, but there was no report whether this latest attempt at reënforcement had been turned back, a spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur said.

With MacArthur's air force smashing repeatedly at Japanese positions, especially in the vicinity of Buna, the American and Australian ground forces were slowly contracting their grip on the enemy, according to the allied communique.

Strafed by Planes.

Wave after wave of allied planes—Airacobras, B-26s, A-20s, and B-25s—hammered the Japanese lines and started fires in the vicinity of Buna Mission.

The Japanese sent fighters and dive bombers to strafe the allied held air strip near the northern coast, but two fighters and one dive bomber were shot down.

A spokesman for Gen. MacArthur said today the fighting was "close in" and particularly heavy on the Gona end of the 20 mile strip of beach which represents the sole Japanese foothold left in Papua.

Artillery hammered both sides yesterday and the allies called on heavy mortar fire to destroy some Japanese machine gun posts in the Gona area. Reports from New Guinea said artillery hits destroyed four barges and started towering fires among stores around Gona.

Ten Pilots Bag Seven Japs.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Nov. 30 [delayed] (AP).—Ten American fighter pilots had stars placed after their names on the bulletin board today when they returned from a patrol over the Buna area and established that they had shot down seven Japanese fighters.

Credited with definite hits were Flight Leader Lieut. Ray Malikan, Fresno, Cal.; Lieutenants Franklin Nichols, Wewoka, Okla.; Howard Nelson, Des Moines, Ia.; Donald Lee, Detroit, Mich.; Lucius Lacroix, Covington, La.; Harold Learner, Meriden, Conn.; Sneldon Brinson, Bainbridge, Ga.; John Landers, Joshua, Tex.; Arland Stanton, New Milford, Pa., and Robert Moose, Omaha, Neb.

The 10 pilots, some of them on their first combat mission, were a patrol above other P-40s which were dive bombing Gona. Zeros peeled out of the sky above them, swooping down at 7,000 to 3,000 feet. The engagement proved the P-40s excellent medium fighters.

Pana Sailor Electrocuted, Navy Informs His Mother

Pana, Ill., Dec. 1 [Special].—Mrs. Helen Ayers was notified today by the navy department that her son, Peter Rochkes, 26 years old, had been killed aboard ship by electrocution. No details were given. Rochkes is the third Pana boy to lose his life in the present war.

UPTON CLOSE HOLDS JAPS PREPARE BASES TO ATTACK MIDWEST

Upton Close, lecturer and writer on Asiatic affairs, speaking last night in the Medical and Dental Arts building before an audience observing the 60th anniversary of the Chicago Woman's Aid, deplored the "escapist" habit of thought which, he declared, is blinding America to real facts in progress of the war.

In Japan, he said, this country's armies face what probably is the "roughest, toughest, most unyielding enemy in the world." Japan so far has been the victor in the Pacific "hands down," he maintained, and the United States, beginning with Pearl Harbor, has faced "the most shameful year in all its history."

Japan has all but pushed us out of the Pacific, he asserted, and we have not "so much as penetrated her first ramparts." With six months of foggy weather ahead, Japanese engineers in the Aleutians are free, with but little molestation from our air forces, to prepare underground hangars from which they shall be able to bomb our west coast industries and factories of the Great Lakes area.

The realists among military strategists, he said, know that Japan can be successfully attacked only by the Great Circle route or thru China.

The anniversary celebration of the woman's aid culminated a $128,000 war bond drive among members.

6 TUGWELL AIDS IN U. S. SEEKING TO QUIET STORM

Miami, Fla., Dec. 1 [Special].—Six political associates of Rexford Guy Tugwell, governor of Puerto Rico, were here tonight on a flying trip to Washington, D. C. Their admitted purpose is to seek audiences with President Roosevelt and Harold L. Ickes, secretary of interior, in the hope of quieting the storm raging about Tugwell and averting a threatened famine in their West Indian island.

Heading the delegation is Luis Munoz Marion, president of the Puerto Rican senate, who more than once has helped to pass Tugwell's sociological legislation by slim margins. He said it is true that many Puerto Ricans are suffering from malnutrition, but added, "We have had long training in malnutrition."

Tugwell blames Puerto Rico's plight on the loss of shipping resulting from submarine warfare in the Caribbean sea. Puerto Rican leaders, however, blame it on mismanagement, blundering, and "socialistic" experiments.

CENSUS BUREAU ADDS 149,000 TO CITY SINCE 1940

Chicago's population has grown more than 149,000 since the 1940 census was taken, the census bureau in Washington, D. C., estimated yesterday in listing war busy cities whose population has mushroomed in the last two years.

An increase of 336,000 persons was computed for the Detroit district, 231,000 for Washington, 131,000 for Los Angeles, 107,000 for Norfolk-Portsmouth-Newport News, 97,000 each for St. Louis and San Diego, and 95,000 for San Francisco-Oakland.

The estimates were based mainly on the numbers of persons registering for war ration book No. 1 and did not include persons in the armed forces, enemy aliens, citizens of Japanese ancestry and others in internment or evacuation camps.

LEAVING FORMER FRIEND DANGLING COSTS HIM $100

It's not neighborly for one man to remove a ladder and maroon his next door neighbor on a roof, said Judge George L. Quilici in the Jury court yesterday as he imposed a fine of $100 on Walter Swierski, 8339 Marquette avenue.

The charge was disorderly conduct, preferred against Swierski by Joseph Mandrella, 8343 Marquette avenue. For 18 years Swierski and Mandrella have been next door neighbors. They were friends until 1939, and since then the opposite. Last Oct. 8 Mandrella climbed to his roof to rake off the leaves. Swierski took the ladder away, leaving Mandrella clinging to an eaves trough. He dangled there 25 minutes until police rescued him.

In court both made countercharges, as Swierski also had charged Mandrella with disorderly conduct. Judge Quilici told them people should be out to beat the common enemy and not their neighbors. When he tried to induce them to shake hands, they refused.

URGES COURSES GEARED TO WAR IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 1 (AP).—A fighting general of the army air forces appealed today for high school educators to "gear their programs to war needs" since their graduates are destined for the armed forces.

"It is not too much to say that until the war is won, the secondary schools must gear their programs to war needs," said Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce in an address before the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He added that with the transformation they should remember "we must include among our war needs a wise and proper preparation for the peace that some day must come."

Now commander of the army air forces southeast training center at Montgomery, Ala., Royce won the distinguished service cross for a daring bombing raid on the Jap infested Philippines.

BRITAIN IS GIVEN 'REVOLUTIONARY' SECURITY SCHEME

Post-War Plan Embraces Birth to Death Aid.

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP).—The shape of a post-war Britain freed from want and insecurity by a revolutionary social security plan was laid before the nation today by the government planning committee of William Beveridge.

William Beveridge.

In many ways, both in the variety of benefits it envisages and the range of population it would shelter from birth to death, it is the outline of the most sweeping plan for government sponsored social security ever set forth.

Issuance of the Beveridge commission report—to which opposition formed even before its contents were known—still leaves the plan a blueprint rather than a reality.

Commons Hearing Due Soon.

It is only one aspect of a broad tide of new ideas about community responsibility in future planning in Britain, however, and the house of commons already has been exhorted to give it an early and sympathetic hearing so that it can be adopted when the war ends.

The 300,000 word report recommended the creation of a new ministry of social security to administer the plan and the billions of dollars which the government, employers, and employés would pool annually for pensions, unemployment, and health insurance, death benefits, and birth and marriage bounties.

Beveridge acknowledged the program was "in some ways a revolution," but he said it was a "British revolution," with the people contributing, by their own preference, to a national insurance fund rather than taking a handout from the state.

Cost $2,780,000,000 in Year.

Not all of the cost would be new. Beveridge said it would be a substitution, in a large part, of a conscious security payment for an unconscious tribute to unemployment and disability.

In the first year the new program would cost about $2,780,000,000, of which the government would provide $1,404,000,000, employers $548,000,000, and insured persons $776,000,000. "Other sources," on which the report did not give details, would provide the remainder of the revenue, $52,000,000.

After 20 years, when the plan was in high gear, it would cost an additional $644,000,000 annually, but both employers and workers would contribute slightly less, the government making up the difference.

Covers Nearly Every One.

Virtually all workers would be covered in the plan, including agricultural, civil service, bank, insurance, railroad, and nonmanual workers earning more than $1,680 who are exempt from the present insurance system.

It would equalize unemployment and disability benefits, except for industrial ailments, where it is recognized that workers are in hazardous occupations and deserve more when stricken.

It would raise the industrial disability benefit rate to a scale comparable with that in the United States.

It would alter the system of compulsory health insurance, now under private companies paying varying benefits, so that all who paid the same would receive the same.

Main Benefits of Plan.

These are some of the principal benefits under the program:

OLD AGE PENSIONS—Double the present, from $4 to $8 a week for a typical man and wife.

MARRIAGE PAYMENTS—Up to $40 to working women at their marriage to compensate for their changed benefit status.

HEALTH INSURANCE — Extend limited medical service to comprehensive medical care for every member of workers' families.

In a typical family of four an ailing or unemployed father would get $11.20 a week indefinitely, instead of the brief period of payments ranging down to $1.50 which were in force before the war began.

How Pension Plan Works.

A married couple is seen by Beveridge as a team which would receive a joint "retirement" pension of $8 a week upon the husband's retirement at the age of 65. If he failed to retire at 65, the pension would not be paid, but for every year he continued to work, 40 cents a week would be added to his pension when he did receive it.

If the wife is working after the husband retires the husband would receive a pension of $4.80.

A single man and a single woman would each be entitled to $4.80 upon retirement at 65 and 60 respectively.

The present "old age" pension is $2 weekly to men over 65 and women over 60, single or married.

Broad Pension Base.

The increased pensions still would average less than in the United States, but would be distributed more broadly and there are phases of the plan—such as the health insurance, marriage, maternity, and funeral grants—for which there are no counterparts in the United States. Birth grants even would be given to unmarried mothers.

America's social security payments are based on the individual's wages and the length of time he contributes. In Britain the payments would not vary.

Probably the most controversial recommendation in the report was the proposal to take over the work of private weekly collection industrial insurance companies whose operating costs the commission regarded as unduly high.

Puts "Premium" on Marriage.

Another was the proposal that workmen's compensation—a state matter in the United States but handled here between individual employers and their workers—be nationalized with a central fund to which all, employers and employés, would contribute.

It urged recognition of housewives as career women in a separate insurance category to put a "premium on marriage instead of penalizing it."

Where workmen now contribute 20 to 55 cents a week to unemployment and health insurance and pension funds thru a complicated plan of cards and stamps, they would make one weekly contribution for all. It would range from 30 cents for unemployed 16 year olds to 85 cents for employed workers over 20. Employers' contribution would range from 40 to 65 cents for each worker.

How Family Would Gain.

A sample family of four, for instance, would have these increases in security:

	Old.	New.
Unemployment insurance	$7.60 for 26 wks.	$11.20 Indefinitely.
Nonindustrial Disability	$3.60 for 26 wks.	$11.20 Indefinitely.
Old age pension	$4 a week.	$8 a week.
Marriage [For working women]	None.	Up to $40
Funeral allowances	None.	From $24 for infants to $80 for adults

Industrial Disability.

Old.	New.
Half pay up to $7 weekly, plus $1.60 for two children.	$11.20 for 13 weeks, then two-thirds pay up to $15.20

The funeral grant was designed to replace voluntary private industrial insurance under which virtually every one in Britain is covered but, according to the report, "at excessive expense."

Beveridge said the increased allowances for maternity and children were in the hope of stemming Britain's falling birth rate.

Some Funds Now in Effect.

Britain, which led the industrial revolution, and has strong labor unions, has had workmen's compensation since 1906, compulsory health insurance since 1912, unemployment insurance since 1920 and old age pensions since 1925, but they have been separately managed by scattered agencies ranging from private insurance companies to county sheriffs.

The Beveridge committee included 12 representatives of government departments and branches appointed in June, 1941, to devise a plan for integrating the tangle of services and to improve the social security setup.

The Conservative party's "1922 committee" was reported organizing opposition to the proposed greatly increased government expenditure and collectors for industrial insurance companies, whose business is threatened, already have cited the possible policy loss to workingmen subscribers even tho the project still is in the plan stage.

The report now will go before parliament for action, which Beveridge urged to be started immediately so the program would be ready for inauguration right after the war. He said that "the proposals cover the ground which must be covered, one way or another, in translating the words of the Atlantic Charter into deeds."

First WAACs Reach England

[Associated Press Wirephoto: Sent yesterday from London by radio.]

American army headquarters in England announced yesterday that these five WAACs had reached London to take over secretarial and administrative duties. Left to right: Martha E. Rogers, Jackson, Miss.; Mattie A. Pinette, Fort Kent, Me.; Ruth M. Briggs, Westerly, R. I.; Arlene Drexmal, St. Paul, Minn., and Louise M. Anderson, Denver, Colo.

Take Up Work

LONDON, Dec. 1 (AP).—The first members of the Women's Army Auxiliary corps have reached London to take over secretarial and administrative duties with the United States army. Army headquarters announced today that the five officers who form the vanguard of WAACs to be assigned to duty here were Mattie A. Pinette of Fort Kent, Maine; Ruth M. Briggs, of Westerly, R. I.; Martha E. Rogers of Jackson, Miss.; Arlene Drexmal of St. Paul, Minn., and Louise Anderson of Denver.

WIFE CONCEDED DIVORCE LOSES JOB AS PICKET

Mrs. Margaret Dollinger, 40 years old, 1108 North Clark street, was granted a divorce from her husband, John, 50, by Judge Thomas J. Lynch in Circuit court yesterday, but was permanently enjoined from picketing a grocery which he owns at 1747 Winnemac avenue.

Norman Becker, attorney for Dollinger, asked the restraining order when he dropped a cross bill charging drunkenness and allowed Mrs. Dollinger to obtain the decree on a cruelty charge. "Prior to filing these complaints she kept customers away because her husband refused to give her money to buy liquor," he told Judge Lynch.

CANADA AND U. S. JOIN IN POST-WAR TRADE PLANNING

Agree on Lower Barriers as World Example.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—Canada and the United States disclosed tonight that they had reached an agreement looking toward a postwar world in which trade barriers would be lowered and the production, exchange and consumption of goods greatly enlarged for the "satisfaction of human needs."

The agreement, embodied in an exchange of notes made public tonight by the state department, sets forth the principles which will guide the governments of the two countries in approaching the problem of economic settlements after the war as an example to the world.

In language similar to that employed in the lend-lease agreements between the United States and Britain, China, Russia and other countries, the two governments formally agreed that postwar settlements must be of a sort to promote mutually advantageous economic relations between them as well as the betterment of world-wide economic relations.

Quote Lend-Lease Aims.

Indicating the objectives of such settlements the exchange of notes incorporates the aims set forth in article VI. of the lend-lease agreements—that is:

"To provide appropriate national and international measures to expand production, employment, and the exchange and consumption of goods, which are the material foundations of the liberty and welfare of all peoples; to eliminate all forms of discriminatory treatment in international commerce; to reduce tariffs and other trade barriers, and, generally, to attain the economic objectives of the Atlantic charter."

With these aims in mind, a state department announcement explained, the governments of the United States and Canada will soon begin conversations, between themselves and with representatives of other united nations, "with a view to establishing now the foundations upon which we may create after the war a system of enlarged production, exchange, and consumption of goods for the satisfaction of human needs in our country, in Canada, and in all other countries which are willing to join in this great effort."

Countries to Be Examples.

In these conversations, the announcement continues, "an effort will be made to furnish the world with a concrete example of how two friendly, economically interdependent countries, convinced that reciprocally beneficial relations of the sort prevailing between them must form part of a general system, may promote by agreed action their mutual interests to the benefit of themselves and other countries."

The exchange has the effect of enrolling Canada—which has no lend-lease agreement with the United States—among the nations pledged to further the postwar aims embodied in the lend-lease agreements.

HITLER STILL ALLIES' CHIEF ENEMY, DAILY MAIL TELLS BRITISH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Altho approving Prime Minister Winston Churchill's promise that Britain will come to America's aid when the war here is won, the Daily Mail this morning stresses that it first is essential to defeat Hitler, who it describes as "the chief enemy not only to Britain and Russia, but America and China as well."

The editorial admits that "as the war in the east diminishes in prospect when viewed from the west, so must we expect that our own special problems appear less important when viewed from the opposite direction," and suggests this may explain why "Chinese leaders have been slow to realize the difficulties confronting us in the Pacific."

Churchill's statement, it says, "will reassure them as to our ultimate intentions," but at the same time suggests that Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Chinese generalissimo, should be invited here so as to make the necessary contacts which "would help convince China that it is our determination to defeat Japan no less thoroly than the European members of the axis."

U.S. BOMBERS RAID JAPS IN ANDAMAN ISLES, RANGOON

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 1 (AP).—American heavy bombers flew hundrews of miles across the Bay of Bengal yesterday to assault the Japanese occupied Andaman Islands for the first time since enemy warships there were dealt a punishing blow by Flying Fortresses on April 3.

Coupled with this heavy daylight assault was a fiery raid last night upon the docks and warehouses at Rangoon, the Burmese port.

One bomber failed to return from these operations.

The Andaman raid was concentrated against Port Blair, where a 250 foot naval auxiliary vessel was hit.

Aurora Acts on Bond Issue for Purchase of Airport Site

The Aurora city council yesterday adopted a resolution preparatory to a bond issue to purchase the site of a new military airport near that city. The army has notified the Civil Aeronautics administration that another airport in this vicinity is essential. The aviation and industrial committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce has approved Aurora as the site for a new airport.

SOCIAL SECURITY PLAN CALLED REVISION, NOT AN EXTENSION, OF AID

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—Wilbur Cohen, technical adviser to the social security board, expressed the view tonight that the new British social security plan proposed "more of a reorganization than an extension" of Britain's social security basis.

Cohen said Britain already had a far more extensive social security system than the United States, altho President Roosevelt had asked congress last Jan. 7 to consider extending the program.

Cohen voiced belief that Britain's closer and longer contacts with the ugly aspects of war had made social security needs seem "more important" to them than to Americans.

Navy Yard Workers Escape After Blast on Launch

Bremerton, Wash., Dec. 1 (AP).—A gasoline launch ferrying approximately 40 navy yard workers across the harbor to Port Orchard was set afire by an explosion late today, but operators of the boat said all aboard were rescued. Three men were taken to the Port Orchard hospital for treatment for burns. The boat was the 30 foot Silver, the smallest in operation in the area. It has been in use while the regular ferry was laid up.

G. O. P. PREPARING TO SCALE PARTY MAYORAL TIMBER

50 Committeemen Await Meeting Next Week.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Republican ward committeemen will plunge into the problems of the mayoral election at a meeting to be held next week, probably Monday. They already are taking soundings, however, in preliminary huddles of a decidedly informal nature.

County Chairman John T. Dempsey, in announcing the meeting, emphasized his belief that the fresh air of free discussion will promote a better campaign than the proverbial meeting of a few minds in a smoke filled room.

"The gathering will seek an agreement upon a program for the mayoralty," Dempsey said. "It will be on a broad scale.

"The 50 ward committeemen will discuss the fusion question, conduct of the campaign, and candidates. As to candidates, everybody has been mentioned, but there absolutely has been no crystalization of sentiment. I am not a candidate."

Wide Open Possibilities.

Dempsey expects the city central committee to appoint a subcommittee to follow up on the general discussion of proposed candidates. All will be considered, he said, and then a report will be made back to the full committee.

This report also will deal with candidates for city treasurer and city clerk.

Mayoral timber includes George B. McKibbin, state director of finance; Rep. Charles S. Dewey, reëlected to congress from the 9th district Nov. 3; Attorney Roger Faherty; Ferre Watkins, attorney; Chauncey McCormick, civic leader in many causes; Elmer J. Schnackenberg, speaker of the Illinois house of representatives; Attorney George A. Lennon; Morgan L. Fitch, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, and Sheldon Clark, chairman of the state boxing commission.

Lorber Gets Mention.

A new name added to the list yesterday with labor backing was that of Herbert J. Lorber, prominent in many civic and charitable activities. Lorber is vice president and general manager of Rollins, Burdick, Hunter company, insurance brokers. For several years he directed the Chicago campaign in raising funds for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The "free" Democrats considered in fusion talk are County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, who again on Nov. 3 led the vote getters, and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney. If Jarecki became mayor, his important office, which includes control of the election machinery, would be filled by Probate Judge John F. O'Connell or the county or probate judge of any other county until a special election were held. This appointive power would be in the hands of County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

Mayoral nominating petitions may be filed as early as Dec. 30. The primary is Feb. 23 and the election is April 6.

City Vehicle Licenses for '43 Are Sold to 200

City vehicle licenses for 1943 went on sale at the office of Louis Rixmann, city collector, yesterday. At the close of business, the office reported 200 licenses had been sold. Car owners are required by ordinance to purchase them by Jan. 1.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

E. C. E. asks: "Can you give me the requirements for admission to the marine corps reserve officers' training classes?"

ANSWER: Applicants must be under 32 and between 66 and 76 inches in height, with weight in proportion to age and height. They must hold a bachelors degree in one of the following fields: Arts, science, education, philosophy, commercial science, journalism, forestry, agriculture, industrial arts, law [if preceded by two years' academic study], business administration, or any engineering degree. Accepted applicants will receive eight weeks' basic training followed by eight weeks in candidate's class. If successful in the basic training, the candidate will be given an additional 10 weeks in the reserve officers' class, and then will be assigned to active duty as a second lieutenant. The quota is limited so get your application in early. Application blanks are available at the nearest marine recruiting office.

C. O. M. writes: "Some one told me they saw an item in the paper about the war department wanting tourist pictures taken in various countries. Is this true? Where do I send mine?"

ANSWER: The United States Office of Strategic Services needs photographs, both stills and movies, taken by American tourists in their travels thru the Philippines, Africa, Europe, Asia, and some of the islands in the South Pacific. It has been found that many times such pictures disclose details of important military objectives and of the surrounding terrain and hence are invaluable to our armed forces. Persons believing they may have useful pictures are urged to write for a questionnaire to the Office of Strategic Services, P. O. Box 46, Station G, New York City.

T. E. O. asks: "Is there some school for men in service to attend for medical training? Who is eligible and who does one see about it?"

ANSWER: The war department announced the opening of nine medical centers Dec. 1. Special courses will be given regularly enlisted men for training in the technical phases of medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, surgery, veterinary medicine, roentgenism, and laboratory work. The minimum educational requirements for selection are high school graduation or its equivalent for pharmacy, laboratory, dental, and roent-genological technicians. Common or grade school graduates will be accepted for medical, surgical, veterinary, and sanitary technicians. The personnel to be sent to these schools will be chosen at medical replacement training centers and other echelons. See the adjutant of your post or camp for details.

M. M. C. writes: "I have completed my basic military training and have been recommended for O. C. S., but I've heard a rumor around camp that we are to be shipped within a week. If this happens, will I be sent back for my training or will I lose out?"

ANSWER: If you should be sent into foreign service before you are transferred to officer candidate school, it does not mean that you will lose the opportunity, because the army has established such schools at many points and in many countries overseas.

CAPTAIN FORGETS TO SIGN PASS AND WEDDING IS DUD

A hundred guests gathered yesterday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Wobley of Oswego, Kendall county, for the wedding of their daughter, Elizabeth, 21. Candles were glowing on the mantel of the flower bedecked fireplace. An orchestra was ready to play the wedding march. The bridesmaids and best man were in their places.

The bride, in her wedding gown, was arranging the orange blossoms in her hair. The bridegroom, Technical Sergt. Donald A. Sampson, 22, of the army air base at Walterboro, N. C., was expected momentarily. The doorbell rang, and a messenger delivered a telegram. It read:

"Captain left post without signing my pass. Will wire when I can get there. Donald."

The guests celebrated anyway by eating the cake. They reasoned it would be stale by next week-end, when Donald is expected to arrive for the ceremony.

SUPERIOR COURT CLERKSHIP PLUM TO SONNENSCHEIN

Slated to Be Elected Next Saturday.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Ald. Henry [Sonny] Sonnenschein [22d] was slated yesterday to be elected on next Saturday clerk of the Superior court. He will be elected by the judges to succeed Victor L. Schlaeger, who, on Monday, becomes county treasurer. The alderman, also Democratic committeeman of his ward, is said to be the choice of the Democratic County Central committee.

Election to the county office is considered a promotion for Sonny, who has been an alderman for 10 years and who previously was a member of the state legislature for two terms. Altho known to the public thru his own official positions it is as secretary to the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak that Sonny is remembered by old timers.

Served Cermak 25 Years.

For 25 years Sonny was the secretary, right hand and political adviser of Cermak during the latter's rise from peddler to mayor of Chicago. Sonny was reared in the Czech neighborhood on Chicago's west side. Cermak, who had been a coal picker in an Illinois mine, moved into that neighborhood and peddled wood, then engaged in politics.

Sonny was 19 years old when Cermak, elected to the Illinois legislature, chose him as secretary. Cermak went climbing up, becoming alderman, bailiff of the Municipal court, president of the county board and, finally, mayor. In each new job Sonnenschein went with him.

Goes to Legislature.

While Cermak was president of the county board, his secretary was elected to Cermak's old job in the state legislature. Nevertheless, he spent in Cermak's service all the time not taken up by legislative duties.

In 1931, Cermak moved to the city hall. Rep. Sonnenschein moved into the outer office. Then, in 1932, Sonnenschein was elected to the aldermanic seat once occupied by Cermak. But Ald. Sonnenschein remained at the desk outside Cermak's office.

When Mayor Cermak was shot to death in 1933, Sonny succeeded him as Democratic committeeman of the ward.

Master of Ward Strategy.

In the last election, as in others since he took full charge, Sonny's candidates had pluralities of from 17,000 to 18,000. The usual vote in the ward for some years has been approximately: Democrats, 22,000; Republicans, 5,000.

So Sonny gets a county office which pays $10,000 a year and in which there are 77 employes. The judges of the Superior court are Democrats, with few exceptions, and the recommendation of the County Central committee is expected to be accepted unanimously.

WINTER PARKING BAN EXTENSION MAY BE REVISED

A proposed city ordinance which would more than double the 175 miles of streets on which parking is prohibited between midnight and 7 a.m. from Dec. 15 to April 1 to facilitate snow removal will be sidetracked for the present, Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the city council's traffic and public safety committee, said yesterday.

The ordinance had been asked by the Office of Civilian Defense and had the approval of the army's 6th service command. The committee had planned to submit it to the council at its meeting next Thursday.

Ald. Kells explained an investigation showed it doubtful enough snow removal equipment could be obtained to serve so many miles of streets. He said the plan might impose too much hardship on business establishments along the streets and on car owners, who would have difficulty finding garage space for their vehicles. The committee, Ald. Kells said, may present the ordinance again in a revised form, to include fewer streets.

AAA SETS STIFF PENALTY AS WHIP FOR '43 PROGRAM

Becomes a New Deal Club Against Farmers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—Transformation of the Agricultural Adjustment administration from a free spending New Deal agency into a powerful administration arm to force farmers into acceptance of administration theories of planned agricultural production was announced today by the department of agriculture.

It announced that the AAA would set up crop goals for every farm in every county in the United States, decreeing how many acres of each particular crop every farmer may plant in 1943. Against farmers failing to plant soy beans, flax or other "war crops" on land heretofore used for raising wheat, cotton, or tobacco, the AAA is prepared to impose stiff penalties.

Marketing Quotas as Club.

The big club held by the AAA over the heads of wheat, cotton, and tobacco farmers who fail to accept its dictates, officials admitted, is to be its marketing quota program in which growers are not allowed to sell any of their produce unless they comply with the allotment program or pay stiff penalties for overproduction. Farmers will have little choice, for sharp deductions also are provided for underproduction.

Heretofore the AAA has been an agency using around half a billion dollars a year to get farmers to reduce their production of corn, wheat, cotton, tobacco, rice and peanuts. This year they paid farmers the following amounts for conforming to its allotments: Wheat, 9.9 cents per bushel; corn, 5½ cents per bushel; cotton, 1.2 cents per pound; rice, 2.4 cents per hundredweight; peanuts, $1.25 per ton, and tobacco, .5 to 1.3 cents per pound.

Thus to a man farming 100 acres of wheat land with a normal yield of 15 bushels per acre and an AAA allotment of 80 acres, who stayed within his allotment, AAA would pay $118.80. If he planted his full 100 acres and got a yield of 20 bushels to the acre, he would have to pay a penalty of 400 bushels of wheat before he could sell any of his crop.

May "Vote" on Quotas.

In 1943, AAA press agents reported, farmers may vote to accept or reject the marketing quota programs but the government has always threatened to withdraw its market support programs if the quotas are rejected.

The AAA also paid farmers vast sums for following certain planting practices such as contouring their land, putting lime or phosphates on depleted acreages, and for following other land conservation practices. About half the 450 million dollars it will start sending out to farmers in the next few weeks will be for this purpose, the other half for conforming to crop allotments.

But in its new program, its press agents report, its funds will not be used for holding down production of surplus crops but rather for pushing the production of oil seeds, potatoes, hemp, edible beans and other crops required in the war effort.

Use Law's Loopholes.

While AAA officials admit the new program is quite contrary to the purposes for which their organization was incorporated, they said it was designed to conform to existing legislation thru employment of certain loopholes in the law.

By refusing to pay a farmer his crop allotment for corn if he refuses to plant a certain number of acres of soy beans, the AAA officials said, soy bean production is made almost mandatory thru AAA legislation altho it was passed to reduce corn production.

Failure to plant at least 90 per cent of his allotment of a crop specified in the AAA program for his farm, will result in payment deductions at a rate five times the compliance rate. This means, the AAA announcement said, that a farmer's crop payment would be wiped out entirely should he plant only 70 per cent of his allotment.

Double Overplanting Penalty.

On the other hand, growers of basic corps will be penalized at a rate of 10 times the compliance rate for overplanting cotton, tobacco, and wheat since the 1943 allotments indicate the maximum production needed.

There will be no deduction for overplanting peanuts and rice, as these are considered vital war crops.

The 1943 wheat allotment has been set at 55,000,000 acres, cotton at 27,400,000, and corn at 43,423,000, but farmers have been urged to shift wheat and cotton acreage where possible into war crops to achieve a national goal of 52,500,000 for wheat and 22,500,000 for cotton.

Obtain $243,164 in Drive to Send Food to Greeks

Howell W. Murray, chairman of the Illinois citizens' committee of the Greek War Relief association, announced yesterday that the committee's campaign fund to send ships to Greece with food, medicines and clothing had passed the half way mark. A total of $243,164 of the $471,000 goal has been received, he said. Greeks and persons of Grecian descent have contributed $52,671. Murray said the committee hopes to reach its quota by Dec. 31. The Illinois campaign is part of a 6 million dollar national drive.

Blame OPA, AAA Restrictions for Threats of Famine to U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—Angry and aroused officials of state departments of agriculture, meeting here tonight for their 25th annual convention, assailed the price fixing policies of Leon Henderson and other restrictions, including the AAA programs, imposed upon them by the administration.

Clearly in revolt against these policies, the officials, constituting the National Association of Commissioners, Secretaries and Directors of Agriculture, came prepared to indorse the actions of their board of directors 10 days ago in demanding higher price ceilings on farm products and absolute removal of restrictions on farm production—the AAA program.

Red Tape Scored.

Tonight they heard representatives of their own body and members of congress hit the burocratic red tape which has ensnarled the nation's farmers. They heard warnings that famine faces the country if present policies are continued. Earlier, officials representing 35 states had appeared at their own request at a meeting of the senate farm bloc to voice their complaints.

Then sentiment of the farm group appeared to be well expressed in the terse warning voiced at the meeting tonight by Ralph Moore of Texas, representing the Texas commissioner of agriculture, J. E. McDonald.

"Unless something is done at once in the direction of increasing price ceilings on farm products," said Moore, "there will definitely be a slow-down of production on farms which will materially imperil the American food supply, to say nothing of the needs of our troops afield and our allies, whom we have pledged to feed.

Being Forced Out.

"It is not a question of a 'farm strike.' American farmers will not 'strike.' They are simply being forced to go out of business. It is impossible to continue in business at a loss. We as farmers utterly have no confidence in the administration of Leon Henderson. It is impossible that we could have confidence in burocrats without farm background whose program is designed only to starve America—the inevitable result if his policies are to be continued."

Sen. Walter F. George [D., Ga.] told the meeting that too many restrictions are being imposed unnecessarily. The American people are willing to have rationing imposed upon them, even when there are doubts, but the way the OPA is imposing it is hurting the morale of the people, he declared.

If the American farmers are allowed the power and energy to act they can produce all the food that is needed in the emergency, he said. The country got thru severe hardships during colonial days without any OPA, he recalled. "So many things are being done that are unnecessary," he commented.

Blames "Stupidity."

Frank E. Gannett, chairman of the board of the American Agriculturist, said to be the oldest agricultural publication in America, and who recently resigned as assistant chairman of the Republican national committee, told the meeting that most of the current food problems have been created by the administration thru "frightful mistakes, due to lack of understanding and stupidity."

He hit the proposal that control of the selective service system be placed under the department of labor, saying that "the trend toward control of man power, especially agriculture, by agencies not familiar with the factors involved is bad."

At their earlier session with farm state senators the state officials declared that "famine, starvation, and more and more trouble" are in store for the country if the OPA continues enforcing maximum prices on meats. R. A. Trovatten of Minnesota, president of the association, said that farmers have been "almost put in a straitjacket by some of the rules made by these bureaus."

Slaughtering Dairy Cows.

Leo V. Card, Michigan commissioner of agriculture, declared that in many instances as high as 75 per cent of the cattle slaughtered by small, independent operators were dairy animals which cannot be replaced for two or three years.

E. H. Everson, South Dakota, warned that "it is quite possible that we may face starvation in view of the way food is being sent into defense areas and to our allies." Tom Linder, Georgia commissioner, said "a food famine is inevitable" if existing price maximums are maintained under which the farmers cannot afford to produce.

Dianne Edmunds, 19 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edmunds, 726 West 64th street, suffered severe burns yesterday when she pulled a pot of coffee upon herself from the kitchen stove.

FAT STOCK SHOW GIVES SPOTLIGHT TO YOUTH TODAY

300 Boys and Girls to Vie for Championships.

BY GAIL COMPTON.

The Chicago Market Fat Stock show opens this morning at the stock yards with 4-H club youngsters parading their carefully groomed steers, pigs, and sheep before the judges. More than 300 boys and girls will vie for grand championships, displaying animals they raised themselves.

With the animals shown by the youngsters will be thousands of fat cattle, more than 1,000 swine, and hundreds of sheep, all products of the breeding and care of experienced stockmen in 19 states and Canada.

Wartime Version Bars Frills.

The market show this year is a wartime version of the famous International Live Stock show, which has been called off because of world conflict. The show will be held in the open yards, and will be shorn of all the famous frills of the International, such as the parade of champions, horse show, and exhibitions of ponderous draft horses. Admission will be free, and the show will be open only during the day. It will last thru Friday.

Among the boys and girls back for the market show who will be remembered by those who have attended the International will be the Goecke children, Calvin and Louis, of State Center, Ia. They will show three calves today. Kenneth Disch of Evansville, Ind., well known for his sheep, is hoping to repeat his triumph of last year with the prize pen of lambs.

Youngsters Won in Past.

In previous Internationals, calves exhibited by the youngsters have gone on to compete against the best the adults could produce and have swept five grand championships. The last 4-H winner was Evelyn Asay of Mount Carroll, Ill., who captured the coveted prize in 1940.

The junior champion steer will be selected today. The animal will compete tomorrow against the steers shown in the open classes for the grand championships. Auctions of all the animals will begin on Friday.

By a special ruling of the Office of Production Management, the animals shown by the boys and girls this year will not be subject to ceiling prices. This is because many of the young exhibitors count on their prize money to help them thru school.

B. H. Heide, manager of the show, expects a good attendance, both by farm and by city people. Competitions are scheduled for 22 different breeds of live stock.

W. J. Brodie of Stouffville, Ont., yesterday won his sixth successive grand championship in the carlot class for sheep, with 50 Southdowns. George and Karl Hoffman, Ida Grove, Ia., won the grand championship for carlots of swine, with Berkshires. It was the Hoffman's second successive win in this classification.

Two blue ribbons went to Marshall Brothers of West Chicago for different classes of lambs.

Six Health Champs Chosen.

Chosen as the healthiest children in the country, in competition with more than 750 rural boys and girls, six victorious 4-H champions attributed their high standings to years of "early to bed and early to rise," brushing their teeth, eating plenty of fresh vegetables and participating in hard work and play in the outdoors.

The six health champions of the nation are: Nancy Lu Kingzett of Perley, Minn., 15 years old; Norman D. Ramey of Redwood Falls, Minn., 16; Dorsey Martin of McBaine, Mo., 17; Roger Otto of Phillips, Neb., 18; Paul Wayne Tomlinson of Dougherty, Okla., 17, and Joyce Compton of Nanafalia, Ala., 16.

Nancy Likes Sleep and Dancing.

"I have to work so hard on my father's 300 acre farm that I don't have time for sports," said Nancy, "but I get lots of sleep and I like to dance."

Norman, who stands 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighs 153 pounds, also works hard on his father's farm. "I don't worry about my health," he explained. "I guess that is my health secret."

Because he believes the youth of America must keep healthy, Dorsey has concentrated on a rigid program of eating slowly, sleeping with his windows open, standing erect and taking care of his teeth, hair, and clothing.

Neither Roger nor Paul follow any set health program, but both are rugged examples of American youth. A freshman at the University of Nebraska, Roger has an application in for the army air corps. Paul runs a tractor in a construction gang at an air base near his home.

Girl Wants to Be Doctor.

Joyce wants to be a doctor. She said: "Girls who diet are silly. I eat lots. I love to eat and I'm not afraid of getting fat."

Thirty-nine rural boys and girls were awarded prizes for excellence in club projects at the annual 4-H banquet of the 21st National 4-H Club congress in the Hotel La Salle.

Miss Gertrude L. Warren of the United States department of agriculture presented the awards to 22 girls and R. A. Turner, also of the department, made the presentation to 17 boys. College scholarships, valued at $200 were offered to 19 girls and 12 boys by various companies for projects in food preparation, achievements, leadership, live stock, canning, keeping of records and rural application. War bonds for $100 were given to three girls and five boys for excellence in gardening.

FARM MANAGERS AND APPRAISERS SEE A LAND BOOM

Members of the American Society of Farm Managers and Rural Appraisers yesterday said there is prospect of a boom in land values such as occurred during the last war.

In a panel discussion in the La Salle hotel the members reported sharp increases in the amounts of money being loaned on land by banks, individuals, and various agencies, with only second mortgages as security. This is one of the signs, they said, that generally precedes an inflation of land values.

The sizable income now being received by farmers is another factor that may lead to a serious land inflation, the members said.

MISS NELL MOBERG.

Can you deduct employment agency fees when you file your income tax return for 1942? What about deducting the cost of premiums on insurance required to hold your job . . . expenses incurred attending business or professional conventions . . . cost of trade magazines used in your business? What steps should be taken before December 31 of this year to keep your income tax at a legal minimum? Miss Nell Moberg, manager of the Merchandise Mart Book Shop, has a handy manual that gives the answers to all these questions and hundreds more. It's the new 1943 edition of "Your Income Tax," by J. INQUIRY IS VOTED INTO MAZE OF U.S. QUESTIONNAIRES

'Burocrats Running Wild,' Says Vandenberg.

C. M. Van Kirk, vice president of the Squibb company, exhibited an OPA form bearing the following identification number: 1-1071-PL-OF-5-NOBU-COS.

Van Kirk testified that the filling out of forms and reports required by the various agencies of the federal government is costing his company $100,000 a year. He exhibited one OPA form which comes in four sections, explaining that there is room on this particular form for the cost analysis of only four of his company's products. His company makes 26 products and a form large enough to accommodate them all is 4 feet wide and 20 feet long, he said.

Six Weeks of Prodding.

Van Kirk testified that the reports required by the OPA compel his company to use two different systems of cost accounting and that a third entirely different system is required by the treasury department for income tax purposes.

He said his company produced a new serum for whooping cough but could not sell it until it received a price authorization from the OPA. After six weeks of prodding, he said, he finally told an OPA representative he thought he could prove "that infants are dying while you fellows pussy-foot around." The price authorization came thru the next day, he said.

Ernest Brier, representing Parke, Davis & Co., testified that it requires 350 hours of the time of highly skilled employés of his company to fill out one OPA cost analysis form.

H. E. Foreman, managing director of the Associated General Contractors, testified that the filling out of government reports had increased the overhead cost of the general contracting business by 50 per cent, which amounted to a 10 per cent increase in the total cost.

"Executives of contracting firms used to spend 80 per cent of their time in the field supervising construction," Foreman said. "Now they spend 80 per cent of their time in the office supervising the filling out of forms."

Byrd Presents Figures.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.], chairman of the committee and co-author of the resolution for the inquiry, presented to the committee a book of instructions containing 24,000 words, copies of which have been distributed by the Office of Defense Transportation to 4,495,000 farmers and other nonmilitary truck owners for use in filling out applications for gasoline allotments.

Byrd disclosed that the National Association of Manufacturers, which will make its report to the committee on Thursday, found that 89 companies were required to fill out a total of 3,479 federal reports, an average of 164 each, in a single quarter. This required work at the rate of 495,480 man hours a year, he said. The association found that 64 per cent of the reports contained some duplication, 34 per cent were completely duplicated by other reports, and only 2 per cent had no duplication. The association found that 43 per cent of the reports were wholly unnecessary.

"Running Wild," Committee Told.

"The burocrats are running wild," Sen. Vandenberg told the committee. "They are flooding the country with ponderous questionnaires which not only demand a detail of information which it is impossible for the average business man or average citizen to answer, but which also strike positive terror to the hearts of citizens who wish to be totally loyal yet who find their loyalties channeled into maddening inquisitions."

Vandenberg quoted the following remark by Sen. Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.], chairman of the special committee to investigate the national defense program: "Washington has become a city where a large portion of the population makes its living not by taking in one another's washing, but by unreeling one another's red tape."

Sen. Vandenberg asked the committee to "find out who is responsible for this pattern of needlessly intimate inquisition" and also "what happens when the information reaches Washington."

Two Dutch marines, Cornelius Thyssen, 21 years old, and George Middelman, 27, who have undergone German fire many times, visited the marine recruiting office in the United States courthouse yesterday, and expressed gratification over the husky type of American fighting men applying for enlistment.

They were guests of Capt. Charles E. Lighter, recruiting officer. During their Chicago stay, Thyssen and Middelman are visiting the latter's aunt, Mrs. C. C. Van Keulen, 1747 Monterey avenue. Both are attached to a Dutch destroyer now in the east.

"We're proud to be serving with the American fleet," said Middelman and Thyssen. Thyssen told how he and 200 comrades fought the Germans across Holland, Belgium, and into France to Dunkirk after Hitler invaded the lowlands. Middelman recalled being on one of the escorting ships which brought Princess Juliana and other Dutch royalty to Canadian shores. Both men have been on convoy duty in the Atlantic and Pacific.

1,000 BID FOR WAR SCARCE ITEMS AT DEAD MAIL SALE

Bidding was spirited yesterday as more than 1,000 attended the auction of packages which found their way thru the mails to the dead package branch of the parcel post during the year. The auction, which is being held in the postoffice at Canal and Van Buren streets, will continue until about 4 p. m. today.

Altogether 1,007 lots of such mail are listed in the catalogue compiled by the postoffice.

Funds from the auction—about $7,000 this year—go to the United States treasury.

WMC Forms to Determine Draft Deferments.

A new set of government forms which busy war industry executives may fill out if they wish to keep irreplaceable workers on the job or if they wish to gain time to train replacements before the draft plucks workers out of the factories was described yesterday in an Office of War Information release. The new forms are the "manning tables" and "replacement schedules" of the War Man Power commission, which is headed by Paul V. McNutt. The program, so far, is voluntary and is confined to plants doing 75 per cent or more of war work and to some other essential industries.

McNutt and Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, are quoted in the release as saying: "The War Man Power commission and the selective service system propose to leave in industry the irreplaceable worker and allow employers time to train replacements for those who are taken into the armed forces."

What Employers Must Do.

To do this, under the "manning tables" plan, the employer must:

1. Apply to the regional WMC director.
2. List every occupation in his plant.
3. Describe the occupations in terms of the dictionary of occupational titles of the United States employment service or by means of job description.
4. List the percentage of time each worker spends in each movement or operation of his job so that the total is 100 per cent. [No time for loafing.]
5. List the minimum time for training a replacement.
6. List the number of workers employed.
7. List the number of additional workers required to meet increased production schedules or to replace workers who will enter military service.
8. List the number needed to take care of normal turnover from other causes.
9. Make a census of male employés by age and marital status.

Schedule Based on Tables.

From the "manning tables" the selective service system makes up the "replacement schedules" which show how long will be required to train a worker to replace one facing military call. If his "manning tables" are accepted, the employer receives an acceptance number and stamp.

He then will file affidavits bearing this stamp with each worker's draft board, saying that the time for replacement of the worker as represented has been accepted by the state selective service director. One form is required for men without dependents and another [occupational certification] for those with dependents.

Local draft boards have final discretion on deferments, but it is assumed they will consider the time required to train a replacement before removing a war worker from his job.

NORWEGIAN SHIP SUNK BY U-BOAT IN CARIBBEAN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—The navy announced tonight that survivors have been landed at a United States east coast port from a medium sized Norwegian merchant vessel which was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy submarine in the Caribbean area early in November.

Forty-four of the 45-man crew abandoned ship shortly after the torpedo struck. A gunner, standing by at his station in a pillbox aft, was killed.

The stricken vessel caught fire and drifted out of control. An hour later allied vessels picked up the survivors and sank the fire gutted ship.

The sinking raised to 546 the number sunk in Atlantic coastal waters since Dec. 7, 1941. In these sinkings 3,660 have been killed, 2,023 are missing, and 16,550 have been rescued.

Share the MEAT

SHARE THE MEAT

Spread your share of meat over the week—Make the most of it nutritionally

Meats shown—(left to right)—Shoulder lamb roast (2 lbs.); beef pot roast (2½ lbs.); pork tenderloin (1¼ lbs.); sliced bacon (½ lb.); lamb stew (1½ lbs.); veal chops (1 lb.); ground beef (1¼ lbs.). Your meat-man can suggest other assortments of available meats.

Only a strong people under the best of nutritive conditions can win the war and rebuild a war-torn world.

For good nutrition it universally is recognized that meat should be eaten at least once a day.

Meat is man's outstanding protein food. In addition to its complete high-quality proteins, meat supplies valuable amounts of the B vitamins—thiamine, riboflavin and niacin—as well as the necessary minerals, iron, copper and phosphorus.

To make sure that our fighters and our allies get the meat they must have, the government is asking civilians to limit their meat consumption voluntarily to 2½ lbs. per week for each adult or child over 12; 1½ lbs. for each child of 6 to 12; ¾ lb. for each child under 6 years of age.

You have a moral contract with 128 million other Americans not in uniform to give them an equal chance at the available meat supply.

Here are simple ways to stay within your allotment and still keep the good nutrition and good flavor of "meat on the table."

1. "Manage your meat." Distribute it over the week. Your meat-man will help you plan meat and sausage selections.
2. Learn more cuts of meat—learn to make delicious dishes out of available cuts, even if you haven't served them before.
3. Use more nonrestricted meats (as available) including the Variety Meats—liver, sweetbreads, kidneys, brains, tripe and hearts. Learn how to prepare them deliciously for rounding out meals each week for growing children—and grown-ups as well.
4. Spread the good nutrition and flavor of meat by combining with such foods as cereals, rice, noodles, dumplings, macaroni, spaghetti, potatoes and other vegetables.
5. Plan leftovers carefully for use in such dishes as stew, hash, croquettes, soufflés and chop suey.
6. Remember meat goes further when cooked at moderate, even temperatures.
7. Send for the booklets shown below.

Why we must share

The Foods Requirement Committee of the War Production Board has asked civilian consumers to limit their use of meat to 2½ pounds of meat per person per week—on a voluntary basis. Why? The answer is simple.

The meat packing industry, now serving three customers—the American armed forces, our fighting allies and the domestic civilian population—has converted from normal peacetime operations to an all-out effort for victory.

The Army, Navy, and Lend-lease come first. For victory, civilians must share what is left. Patriotic citizens prefer to follow the American way—of choosing to share. The "Share the Meat" Program is based on the honor system; it is a voluntary plan.

THESE BOOKLETS WILL HELP YOU

1. "32 Tested Meat Recipes"—Step-by-step recipes and complete menus.
2. New Edition of "Meat Buying Guide for Thrifty Meals"—Purse size—48-page handbook of more than 80 meat cuts. What to ask for, how to prepare, what to serve with them and easy ways to plan meals for good nutrition.

FOR BOTH BOOKS, send 5¢ in coin to AMERICAN MEAT INSTITUTE, Dept. 10, Lock Box No. 1133, Chicago, Illinois.

CHICAGO SOLDIER REACHES ALASKA ON NEW HIGHWAY

First U. S. Truck Arrives at City of Fairbanks.

BY WARREN BAKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WHITEHORSE, Y. T., Nov. 30—[Delayed].—Word came back today to Brig. Gen. James A. O'Connor's headquarters that the two men he chose to drive the first truck over the new Alcan highway have reached Fair banks, Alaska, with their cargo.

The drivers were Corp. Otto Gronke of Chicago and Pvt. Robert H. Bowe of Minneapolis. These two men drove the first truck from Dawson Creek to Whitehorse, the lower 900 miles some weeks ago to make their record complete. Gen. O'Connor gave them the first truck in the convoy that went thru the red, white, and blue ribbon at Soldiers Summit, Nov. 20.

On Their Way Back.

The two soldiers became the first persons in history to travel on wheels from the interior of North America to the Alaskan peninsula. They are on the way back here from Alaska with their truck, which will be preserved for history in Whitehorse.

Gronke was inducted by Chicago local board 28 last Feb. 2. He took his basic training at Camp Grant. He was assigned to the engineers and he worked on the Fort St. John sector of the Alcan highway since April 28. His new job will be driving for Gen. O'Connor. Bowe was inducted the same day as Gronke. He was trained in the engineers and was sent here last April. His new job will be mail clerk for the northwest service command.

Maintenance work along the new highway will be continued thruout the winter. It is being straightened and widened while the traffic flows over it. Every effort will be made to haul to Alaska this winter the maximum amount of freight that can be carried.

WAR BOOMS OLD GOLD TOWN

BY WARREN BAKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WHITEHORSE, Y. T., Nov. 29.—[Delayed].—For the third time in its 45 years of history this town is having a boom. The first one, of course, came with the Klondike gold rush in 1898, which built the town. Now the war and the army are putting on the finishing touches.

Building lots are at a premium. The people would have built a real hotel here if they could have obtained the necessary space to put it on. As it is, there is a hotel of sorts, but the army has condemned the water, so the only folks who stay there are the ones who cannot get accommodations elsewhere. This treeless little town with a normal population of about 700 has become a city almost over night. The population now is a military secret, but it's many times normal.

Beer Parlors Without Beer.

The town lies in a cup of forested hills. It has a couple of good stores which supply most everything but run out frequently when shipments are delayed. There are a couple of beer parlors without beer and they won't have any more, they say, until the ice goes away in the spring.

There is a town postoffice, too, but the army has set up a separate postoffice up the street and handles all the military business. There is the old log church and across from it the cabin of Sam McGee, which some of the women have restored in the memory of the man who was cremated according to the verses of Robert W. Service. Now some construction workers are living in the cabin.

Actually, Sam McGee was a prospector who came back here in 1938 to look over the scene of his earlier trampings. He died about a year ago in Victoria, B. C. The bank where McGee once worked and above which he lived is still doing business at the same old stand.

Cremated Aboard Ship.

The story of Sam McGee, around which Service built his poem, took place in the fall of 1898 when the steamer Olive May became stuck in the ice of Lake Lebarge. Police were told that a man was sick with scurvy at the head of the lake. A physician who lived with Service went to town to see what he could do. When he arrived at the man's cabin he found the patient dead.

It was about 50 below zero and there was no way of digging a grave without dynamite so the surgeon took the body to the Olive May and cremated it in the ship's furnace. When he came home he told Service the story and the "The Cremation of Sam McGee" was the result. The only reason the name Sam McGee was used was because it happened to fit the meter and McGee, who had caused this town to be built, was a friend of the poet.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

[THE TRIBUNE will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by THE TRIBUNE. Today's question was submitted by Donna J. Hocutt, 517 North Harlem avenue, Oak Park.]

THE QUESTION.

What interesting incident do you recall from your nonprofessional days? [Asked of actors in "Claudia."]

WHERE ASKED.

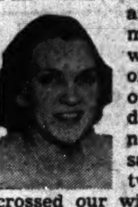
The Selwyn theater, 180 North Dearborn street.

THE ANSWERS.

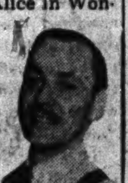
Dorothy McGuire, Claudia—When I was about 12 or 13 I played a minor part in "The Little Princess." She was my heroine because she lived in the dark attic all by herself. I thought my mother was mistreating me by continually moving me and my belongings out of the attic and back into my own room.

Frances Starr, Mrs. Brown—When I was 15 a stock company came to town and advertised for more experienced actors. I had played what I considered an important part in the local church play and had clipped the favorable comments from the newspaper. My first job was given to me on the strength of that.

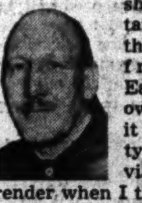
Olga Baclanova, Mme. Daruschka—I had been attending the school of dramatics for many months when the voice teacher asked my instructor if any of his students could sing. They made tests and I was given the leading rôle in a heavy French opera. By chance my career was changed to a musical one.



Audrey Ridgwell, Julie—"Peter Pan" was one of my first performances. I was one of the many children who took wing and fluttered out of the window. Wires, operated from above, did the trick and I'll never forget what a sensation we caused when two of us accidentally crossed our wires and were whirled around in the air.



Wilton Graff, Jerry Seymoure—In a small town showing of "Alice in Wonderland" the supply of actors was smaller than the demand, so I took on five heavy parts. My costumes were put on in layers so I changed by slipping off the top one. Once I dashed out on the stage after peeling one too many, and that the last.



Frank Tweddell, Fritz—In a one act drama where the villain was to be shot just before the curtain dropped we noticed the gun was missing from our properties. Each of us made up our own ending to smooth it over. It made a pretty weak finale as the villain offered to surrender when I threatened to stab him.

Judge Gives Week's Gas to Help Army Officer

Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten donated a week's gasoline ration yesterday—the first day of nation-wide rationing—to get a neighbor's son, a newly commissioned army lieutenant, to the airport. The lieutenant was unable to get a taxicab and Judge Hasten offered his car to the officer's father. The trip from the judge's home at 4436 North Paulina street to the airport at 63d street and Cicero avenue and return is about 40 miles.

FRANCE WILL RISE.

Postwar France went thru the disintegrating experiences common then to continental Europe without, happily as it seemed at the time, finding an equilibrium in the repressive and rapacious dominance of one man, one party, and one credo which crushed other great peoples. However, that escape, to be a blessing, required self-discipline. It imposed upon the nation's intelligence and patriotism the duties which force had imposed on the others. There was need of voluntary reconciliation of antagonisms.

When potential enemies were being molded and disciplined by ambitious and unscrupulous men into armies driven by fanatical will it was no time to dissipate the energy and thought of a country threatened by the new forces. France was not made a vassal of the fuehrerprinzip nor, without that, did it achieve the necessary unity of purpose, concentration of activities and solidarity of front needed to preserve itself. Chaotic democracy could not survive with such rifts as were represented by the span from the Communists to the Royalists, both of them carrying their fights to the street.

That sort of thing in Russia had led to Lenin and then to Stalin, in Italy to Mussolini, in Germany to Hitler. In France it did not find its solution in a successful seizure of power. Even government by decree under grants of authority was feeble. Ministries rose and fell under the pressure of groups which had made self-interest their state religion. What were called the social gains of the Blum government were purchased at the expense of the national security. There was a time when France was governed from Moscow. The French Communists in the chamber of deputies held the balance of power. They took direct orders from Stalin.

Venality and corruption flourished in this soil. The costly mistake France made, in which the friends of France elsewhere joined, was in not realizing that the evil had bitten into the vitals of the country. It was not a superficial tumult of politicians and special groups. It had eaten into the army, the administrative functions, the spirit of the people, and the resolution of their leaders.

Defeat in war did not bring an end to the internal enemy. There were Frenchmen who hated other Frenchmen more than they hated the Nazis. Under the armistice France did not cease the really disastrous conflict. It was still at war with itself. No ordinary event would still this conflict which had lasted thru the bitter armistice. A miracle was needed and that seems to have been offered at Toulon.

THE PRICE OF HOGS.

Almost nothing a farmer raises is subject to as wide price swings as hogs. Since 1940 pork on the hoof delivered at Chicago stockyards sold for as much as $15.50 per hundred pounds and for as little as $5 per hundred pounds. Between 1919 and 1933 the range was from $22 to $3. In the last seven weeks the price has dropped from about $15.50 to $13.50. This is equivalent to a 15 cent drop in wheat.

Pork production in 1942 was the greatest since 1924. The crop amounted to nearly 11 billion pounds. On Sunday the secretary of agriculture told the farmers that the government wanted them to raise nearly 3 billion pounds more of hogs in 1943 than they did in 1942. A statement like this is just so much applesauce taken by itself. On his say so farmers cannot afford to gamble more on so risky a venture as hog raising. But the secretary announced that until Sept. 30, 1944, farmers would receive a minimum of $13.25 for good to choice porkers delivered to Chicago. Assuming that the deal is not subject to renegotiation, it makes sense and will affect production.

This was not a revolutionary move. Herbert Hoover, food administrator in the last war, determined late in 1917 that at $15.50 farmers would raise the desired quantity of hogs and called upon the packers to pay no less than that. To make the minimum effective the food administrator brought to the packers agreements to buy finished products at a minimum price by the army and navy, the allies, and others.

But while Secretary Wickard, following good precedent, was announcing his plan to keep pork prices up, the Office of Price Administration was laying before the live stock industry a complicated arrangement for keeping the price of hogs down. It is no wonder that federal civilian pay rolls are increasing at the rate of one hundred thousand a month when two sets of officials are maintained, one to put up prices and another to keep them down.

If any one can make sense out of this confusion then he is qualified to consider the government's latest policy on cheese. Mr. Wickard in the past year has called upon people to eat less cheese and to eat more. Meanwhile a ceiling price of 23¼ cents per pound was established by the government for American cheese delivered by the farmer in Wisconsin. Now the government wants more cheese, presumably for lend-lease export use. Mr. Wickard's plan is to boost the price to 27 cents a pound, the difference not to be paid by the consumer but by the Commodity Credit corporation. In other words part of the cost of the American consumer's cheese is to be paid out of taxes collected from the people.

It is difficult to see how this squares with a plan to control inflation. With cheese prices to the consumer held down, the consumer will have more spending money available. The subsidy paid to the farmer increases his surplus spending money also. Here's another matter for the new congress to deal with.

CRIPPS GOES OUT.

Stafford Cripps' retirement from Mr. Churchill's war ministry did not, according to London observers, find a satisfactory explanation in his transfer to supervision of aircraft production. It is assumed that he and Mr. Churchill parted on questions of empire policy. The prime minister has been unusually outspoken of late in defining his position on postwar settlements and has made it plain that nothing impairing the imperial possessions of Britain as he found them will be considered.

Mr. Churchill said that he did not accept the position of the king's first minister to preside at the liquidation of the British empire. That statement so far as the present government of Britain is concerned would close the door on most of the ideas that the war is to make a great change in the status of the peoples subject to the British raj. Mr. Churchill quite apparently intends that there shall be no preconceptions of what Britain intends to do stalking around a peace table and haunting men who have no intention of departing from traditional policies of British colonial government.

Cripps did not meet the national desires of the Indian Congress party when he undertook to reach a working agreement for the duration of the war with a promise of something more substantial when peace came. The Indian leaders with whom he talked thought he was making no important concessions whatever and was carrying out Tory policies in spite of his natural bent in the other direction. However, it is said that Cripps could not indorse the construction Mr. Churchill put on the purposes of the negotiation and that he could no longer be a figurehead in transactions which would mean so little to the future of India, either as a free country or a self-governing dominion in the commonwealth.

Mr. Churchill is too old a servant of the crown to change his ideas at his age. He isn't in the war to suffer what he regards as a defeat in the peace. The British empire is the main stake for the traditionalists and it is an advantage for every one to know precisely how they feel about it. If they are on top and are to stipulate what the peace shall be, it will not impose outside of Europe many conditions which did not exist before the war began.

Outside of Europe the status was satisfactory to the old timers then and they can't imagine that the war has offered any reason for a changed opinion. Altho Mr. Roosevelt has taken his tune from another sheet of music and has qualified his demands for freedoms with only the statement that some peoples will need education such as we gave the Filipinos, it is not to be expected that he will make much trouble for the imperialists when they undertake to preserve their colonial assets at the peace table.

We may save the colonial domain from Britain's enemies, but we will not then give it away, even to the people who inhabit it.

LESSON FROM BOSTON'S DISASTER.

The Cocoanut Grove night club in Boston was inspected as recently as Nov. 20, according to testimony given at the inquest. The city's inspectors reported the exits satisfactory and the fire extinguishers ample in number and in good repair, yet nearly 500 people lost their lives in the fire and the panic that accompanied it only a week later. Perhaps the extinguishers didn't work. Certainly some of the exit doors were not in working order.

The government of Boston is neither much better nor much worse than the governments of other metropolitan cities in this country. The tragedy may therefore serve as a reminder that municipal inspections often leave a great deal to be desired.

That is to be expected in view of the political origins of many of these services. City governments need revenue and political machines need jobs. The fees often charged for inspection contribute a trickle to the municipal treasuries and the inspection corps provide jobs for a good many precinct captains. The patronage abuses by corrupt Democratic machines in control of most of the metropolitan governments today have been particularly flagrant.

This is not to say that there is no need for inspection. It is true, of course, that the vast majority of building owners will maintain their elevators, plumbing, fire escapes, etc., in a safe condition without governmental prodding, but there is always a minority of the stupid and the improvident who won't. The protection of the public requires periodic inspection, but if the task is entrusted to incompetents or petty grafters, the surveillance is of no great value. Indeed, it may serve to give people a false sense of security.

Each city learns from its own disasters to avoid similar ones in the future. Theater regulation in Chicago is probably stricter than anywhere else in the world. In San Francisco, we have been told, the one misdemeanor that can't be fixed is interfering with the movement of fire apparatus in response to an alarm. No doubt in future the night clubs of Boston will be as safe as they can be made. It is perhaps too much to hope that all the cities will learn from the Cocoanut Grove disaster to keep their various inspection services free of political influence.

Editorial of the Day

AN EMBARRASSING PREDICAMENT.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

One of the most important anti-trust suits ever filed under the Sherman act is that which the department of justice brought against the Aluminum Company of America for "possessing a monopoly in the production and sale of aluminum." The trial in the New York federal court was the longest in American legal history—two years and two months. So involved and so detailed was the case that it took Judge Francis B. Caffrey 10 days merely to deliver the court's opinion.

Obviously, a proceeding of such importance should have the benefit of a conclusive decision by the United States Supreme court. Yet the news has now come from Washington that the Supreme justices cannot review the finding of the District court that the government failed to prove its contention of anti-trust law violation. Four justices have disqualified themselves and, with six justices required by law to pass on an issue before the court, the Supreme bench is powerless to act.

This means that even the appointment of a ninth member to fill the Byrnes vacancy will not produce a judicial quorum. With four justices still disqualified, only five would be in a position to pass on the case.

This impasse is a result of the practice of President Roosevelt of choosing Supreme court members from his official family. Two of the disqualified justices, Jackson and Murphy, are former attorneys general, with official relations with the aluminum case. Justice Reed, as solicitor general, was even more intimately connected with it. Chief Justice Stone has previously disqualified himself from Aluminum company litigation, presumably because of his activity against the corporation on anti-trust matters when he was attorney general under Coolidge and Andrew Mellon was secretary of the treasury.

Here is a highly practical reason why the Byrnes vacancy, and the next one as well, should be filled by some one outside the President's inner circle, preferably an outstanding member of the lower courts. For if either Attorney General Biddle or Solicitor General Fahy should be appointed—and both are now prominently mentioned—it is possible that the court might again find itself in its present embarrassing predicament.

WITHOUT A SMILE.

The Iroquois fire disaster in Chicago caused reforms in building codes all over the United States and in many cities of Europe. The Cocoanut Grove tragedy in Boston, which approaches the Iroquois in loss of life, will cause—what?

* * *

The parallel is close: In both cases it was not the building that burned, but interior trash—scenery as inflammable as tinsel in the Iroquois; imitation palms that could be ignited by the flame of a single match at the Cocoanut Grove.

* * *

The fashion of dim lighting in night clubs was the first link in the chain of circumstances which turned the Boston place of amusement into a fiery temple of Moloch, the devourer of youth. An employé had to strike a match to find the socket for replacement of a bulb. Dimness draws the crowds, according to café philosophy. Perhaps that fashion died with its victims in the Cocoanut Grove.

* * *

Many years ago there was a disastrous theater fire in London at a spectacle in which peacock feathers were profusely used for decorations. The tragedy caused a superstition among players that peacock feathers are unlucky. This causes us to wonder if the palm tree, widely used in night club decoration as a symbol of tropical romance, has not come to the end of its run.

* * *

The portal of the Iroquois was perhaps the most ornate of any theater in Chicago until the movies began to build their "palaces." The souvenir program for the opening said, "It will impress the most superficial observer by its beauty and grandeur." Strangely enough, it resembled in design the façade of a building in Paris that was a memorial to the numerous victims of a fire and panic at a fashionable charity bazar in the 1890s. A coincidence, of course, but an omen nevertheless.

JOURNEY'S END.

December,
Radiant against the lowering sky,
Rests on a snowy crest,
His journey done;
Then raises high his staff.
A star gleams from its tip—
A single star
Lighting the dying year.
And at its sign
The surpliced fields lift up their heads
And like a mighty a cappella choir
Sing to the skies in heavenly harmony
A hymn of hope and praise,
Of good will and of peace,
And life renewed.

New Era Arithmetic.

The latest attempt to reduce all living to a scientific formula comes from selective service headquarters. To be deferred as a farmer, the selectee must prove that he is nursemaid to at least eight cows. If the selectee happens to be a shepherd rather than a dairyman, then his status is determined on the basis of X sheep equals 1 cow.

This calls for a new table of measurements to be added to arithmetic books. It should run something like this:

Draft Measure.

150 chickens	equals 1 pig.
8 pigs	equals 1 cow.
8 cows	equals 1 farmer.

I am informed that our local board is trying to determine how many traveling salesmen equals one farmer's daughter. Q. H. F.

White Horses Are Gray at the Post.

Thorobred foals are not registered as white in the American and English studbooks. The French publication, "Registre des Chevaux de Pur Sang," is the only one that registers foals as white with the abbreviation "bl" [blanc].

All gray thorobreds of today, in any country, descend from Alcock's Arabian or the Brownlow Turk. Those sires were imported into England in the early 1700s.

English and American thorobred race horses of pale color are registered as gray. Altho they may become white, they must be described as gray when being registered for racing.

Ah, visitors both rich and poor
Once came to barter at your door;
But they shall come to you no more;
Your day is done.
Bedecked in colors bright and gay,
You served your clients night and day,
And sped them laughing on their way;
Your task was fun.

You're now relieved of all your wares,
You're freed from burdens and from cares,
There's no more need for brilliant flares
To point you out;
You have no signs to meet the gaze,
No service now that merits praise,
You're just a ghost of other days,
A worthless lout.

Your fate by all shall thus be shared,

Back to the Lost Frontier.

Mrs. Roosevelt, our commandress in chief, is quite right about saving coffee grounds and using them again. Out in the western range country the cook always started off with a pound of coffee in the old four-to-five gallon pot. He added more coffee from day to day, emptying the pot about once a week, or when there was not enough room left for water. Once, running short of coffee, a cook threw his old corncob pipe into half a pot of coffee grounds and kept right on going. That produced the most stimulating coffee ever dealt off the tailboard of a chuck wagon. C. H. P.

So the commandress in chief is going to help Gov. Lehman feed the cock-eyed world. Boy, hand me a dozen comets! I want to play marbles.

DROPSY—HOARDING UNNEEDED FLUIDS.

Dropsy is a symptom, not a disease. It indicates that an abnormal amount of fluid has accumulated in the spaces between the cells, beneath the skin, or within certain cavities of the body.

Where does this excess come from? The blood is the only source. Liquid oozes thru the walls of the capillaries. It is as tho the circulation, in passing by, left some of its dissolving material behind. Edema [swelling] ensues and the victim may be extremely uncomfortable because he is unable to rid himself of the overload.

Many who are perfectly well may spot the tendency in mild degree. For example, if one who has been accustomed to sit or recline most of the day will remain on his feet, the ankles by nightfall may become puffy. The following morning, however, the tissues will be normal. In a sense this may be thought of as postural. Should the condition persist we may need to check the performance of the heart, the kidneys, and the liver.

A like condition accompanies an injury—for example, a sprain. A blow may rupture thousands of tiny conduits. In such an event the liberated elements will include cells, fibrin, and water. Nature then uses these substances for repair.

Not infrequently disease will be responsible for the manifestation. The most common is cardiac failure. The "pump" is not up to par and, in consequence, pressure within the venous capillaries rises. The delicate channels are not sufficiently powerful to withstand the strain. They become sievelike. In fact, they may allow proteins from the blood as well as water to escape. As soon as the heart action is restored the "puddles" will drain away.

If the sufferer is put to bed, if liquids are limited, if the ingestion of salt is greatly reduced, and the heart muscle aided by digitalis—equilibrium may return promptly. Occasionally, however, if the pleural sacs have become filled, it may be well to assist withdrawal via a drainage needle.

The same problem may present itself should the liver be diseased. There is a type of hardening [cirrhosis] which leads to the formation of a miniature lake within the abdomen. This may call for "tapping" which will provide relief for the time being—perhaps several months. It may be necessary to repeat the procedure at intervals.

There is a class of drugs, called diuretics, which will be of value in regaining fluid balance. Some one of these compounds [salyrgan] may be employed. The effect is to hasten the elimination of water which has been withheld and which acts as a foreign body. Sometimes these patients can help themselves with gravity. The feet may be elevated when seated.

One other form should be mentioned. During starvation, particularly when the diet includes but little protein, tissues over the entire body may puff. This is similar to nephrosis, in which large volumes of albumin are discharged via the urine. The feeding of generous quantities of meat will bring back the normal proportion of protein and stop the leakage.

AT ST. LOUIS.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—The Republican national committee men and women who meet in St. Louis to pick the successor of Chairman Martin are being cautioned by the administration newspapers and their columnists to be extremely careful in their selection. Some one favorable to Willkie, the New Deal, and postwar planning is necessary else the Republican party is dead, they say.

Naturally such a chairman could give Willkie an opportunity for a big buildup, both prior to and during the convention. This buildup and subsequent publicity would be all that Mr. "Campaign Oratory" will need to start the third party movement and divide the Republican party to make the fourth term possible.

A real Republican chairman such as Werner Schroeder could circumvent this possible coup by Stooge Willkie by not allowing the next Republican convention to become a farce, as was the last.

Let's hope the Republican party will not be caught napping. George Healy.

THE LOWDOWN ON SQUIRRELS.

Shelbyville, Ill., Nov. 27.—In answer to Mrs. Phillips' tirade against squirrels: evidently she doesn't know her squirrels. The ordinary type of squirrel found in the woods builds his nest of leaves high in the treetops. He does not eat the roofing on or off of houses. He does not eat the bark off the trees. He does not dig up seeds. When you see him digging he is hiding a nut to be eaten later when he is hungry. He is a clean, harmless, friendly little animal. Evidently Mrs. Phillips is thinking about the flying squirrel. He is not so common. He is found, usually, around summer cottages or dilapidated, abandoned houses. He makes his home in them and he will gnaw anything he can sink his teeth in. He is smaller than the bushy tailed squirrel and his tail is flat. He has a web of skin between the front and hind legs. He uses this to sail on and doesn't really fly. Furthermore he isn't friendly. So for goodness' sake don't let Mrs. Phillips influence you to use arsenic and old lace tactics on our friends the red and gray, bushy tailed squirrels. Continue to feed, protect, and love him for he is innocent of the charges brought against him by Mrs. Phillips.

Now, gold fish for pets—but we won't go into that. Okla H. Sturgis.

MONA DOESN'T BITE.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—What right has George Potter of Milwaukee to question the right of Walter Winchell to wear the uniform of our country? Let me say this: That serving in the capacity that he does, I would much rather have him on our side of this war than against us.

People who find fault with men of Mr. Winchell's character are the same people that would find fault with Leonardo da Vinci's Mona Lisa. Phil Cohn.

A QUICKER WAY.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—The New Dealers killed off the hogs, plowed up the wheat, corn, cotton, and what not, and now they are going to give away 500 of our factories. Wouldn't it be a quicker way to make a scarcity of everything for us by taking the plows away from the farmers?

Maybe I shouldn't have tipped them off. I still think Dr. Wirt was right.

Chas. N. Minot.

GOOD TO THE LAST COLUMN.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—For the last four years I have been sending The Chicago Sunday Tribune to Ed Nordman, a friend, at far away Papeete, Tahiti, he who has the only candy shop and ice cream freezer in all the Polynesian South seas [of course our Hawaii not included]. All the captains of interisland ships, and now and then a tourist, drop into his place; and they are all happy to find a paper to read; tho six weeks old at the time. As you see, this is the one spot where yesterday's newspaper is not a "dead duck," as the saying goes.

This Nordman appreciates the paper so much that he sends me, at great intervals, souvenirs—stamps and unique photos like the one Mike Kennedy and Leon Harpole of our Sunday room reproduced for me today. This is the fifth time one of the Tahiti photos was reproduced in our Roto and all were liked by the general public. The $5 given me in each instance is spent to buy medicines for Nordman, such as aspirin, quinine, etc., or toys for his children—so in a measure it is a very happy circle.

However, what I am leading up to is that I know you will be happy to know that he has found a new use for The Tribune heretofore unheard of. Only last week I received a letter in which he mentions the scarcity of paper of all kinds on the island, and so is using The Tribune to make candy bags out of—and thought that was rather a new use to which The Tribune has been put—they can glance at The Tribune and get the news while munching a hunk of sweets.

I don't know whether we have a base in Tahiti; but I am sure if we have soldiers there, that especially our Chicagoland boys will be very happy to drop in at Nordman's shop to buy candy and get the latest news from the World's Greatest.

THOUGHTFUL HUSBAND.

Chicago, Nov. 28—The following note from my husband at my place at the breakfast table Thanksgiving morning made me so very happy that I feel I must share it:

"My darling: It has been quite some time since I have expressed my thanks for all that you mean to me—and now also to our little son. It is hard to express in words the true extent of my feelings for all of the love, patience, and sacrifice that you have so unselfishly given to us and for the wonderfully happy home that you are making for us. You also are bringing up our little boy so splendidly with so much of the burden upon you alone.

"And so for myself and sonny, we thank you with all our hearts for all that you are and hope that we can continue to do all that we can to help keep our home a real refuge from worry, trouble, and care.

"With all of our love, —— and ——."

Proud Wife.

IS THE BUND STILL WITH US?

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Last Saturday night a group of us, including one man in uniform, stopped to dance in a tavern on Division street. After dancing an hour or two one of us decided that we should have one American piece played. One of the men approached the orchestra and said that altho he was part German he would like to hear them play "God Bless America." He was told, "Nothing doing, and besides, us Germans got to stick together." Then the soldier asked them and was told to mind his own business. Then I asked them to play any American piece, just one, and was likewise rebuffed.

Appealing to the crowd we were stunned to find every one there on the orchestra's side and their mounting belligerance proved we were in the wrong place.

The soldier appealed to a squad car, which he called, and was told there was nothing he could do. L. J. P.

A JOB FOR JAPS.

Ottawa, Ill., Nov. 26.—I was much interested in a short item in your issue of Nov. 24 relative to the quelling of a revolt among the Japanese in one of the relocation centers in western Arizona. Why not put these Japanese to work at once in the nearby copper mines and pay them fair wages? Give each family 10 acres of land to live on and help each family to get a small flock of chickens and a couple of milk goats. If we will do that, I do not believe we will have any more trouble with them and we can use our army elsewhere. B. U. Hiester.

TRIBUTE TO A FATHER.

Chicago, Nov. 29—He died a few days ago and left a heartbroken wife and four children that adored him. He was successful in business, yet in his lifetime he never raised his voice to any one. When things went wrong he used his head, not his mouth. Every one who knew him was charmed by his gentle, soft spoken manner. Now that the Lord has him back again, I pray that He will create more grand people like my father so that this world may never again find itself in such chaos.

RACE AGITATION BY REDS SUBJECT OF DIES INQUIRY

Charge Communists Aim at Transit Line.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1.—The Dies committee is investigating reports of agitation by Communists to raise racial issues in the nation's capital, particularly against the local transit company, it was learned today.

The President's committee on fair employment—on the basis of alleged complaints that the Capital Transit company refused to hire Negro bus and street car operators because of their race—issued an order yesterday directing the transportation company to bring its employment policy into line with the President's executive order that there shall be no discrimination against war workers because of race, creed, color, or national origin.

Disputes Commission's Charges.

The local transportation company had been declared a war industry, thus bringing it under the jurisdiction of the committee on fair employment practices which operates within the War Man Power commission. The company has denied the charges of racial discrimination and declared it hired more Negroes than any other privately owned local transportation company in the nation. It reported 565 Negroes in employment, as about 10 per cent of its total pay roll.

The Dies committee investigation centers on the stabbing here the other day of a bus driver, in which case the assailant, a young Negro, carried Communist literature and admitted attending massmeetings at which speakers identified with the Communist movement urged a campaign against public utilities to demand the hiring of more members of his race, even suggesting violence, according to records of the Dies committee and the police.

Evidence Manufactured.

The assailant disclosed that he had been urged by district Communist leaders to apply to the transit company for employment as an operator. According to Dies committee investigators it was assumed by the agitators that he would be turned down. Then his application and an affidavit by him could be used as evidence to be presented to the President's committee on fair employment.

Investigators said that this theory was borne out by the fact that he told the police he was making $206 a month at his present job, while the pay of a bus driver runs between $120 and $140 a month.

Charged with Slashing Driver.

Following rejection of his application, the man, now in custody, remained standing behind the driver on a bus, refused to heed the driver's request that he move to the rear to clear the aisle for incoming passengers and insisted upon leaving by the front door instead of the rear exit. Finally, when the bus reached a stop the man slashed the driver in the neck with a long knife and fled, but later was apprehended by the police. The driver was released from a hospital after 11 stitches had been taken in his neck.

The arrested man was found to carry Communist pamphlets on his person, one on recruiting 75 new members of the Communist party in the District of Columbia to replace 75 members of the party who had gone into the armed forces of the country, according to the Dies committee and police records.

Attends Communist Meeting.

Also, these records showed that he attended a rally of Negroes here on Nov. 3 at which A. Clayton Powell Jr., Harlem member of the New York city council and a follower of the Communist party line, according to the Dies committee, spoke on a similar campaign against utilities in New York and reported that when they turned down Negroes for employment, windows were broken and seats were slashed on the vehicles operated by the transit system.

Martin Chancey, secretary of the district Communist party unit, and other prominent Communists also spoke at the meeting on the campaign against local utilities, according to the official records.

Similar Rallies Reported.

According to Dies committee records, various other rallies have been held here at which racial questions involving local utility companies have been pressed. One of these was a second front rally on Oct. 12 on the steps of a government building at which literature for the campaign against utilities was distributed.

Another rally on Nov. 8 of the local Communist party to observe the Russian revolution produced Communist speakers on the utility issue, who drummed on racial prejudices, according to these committee records.

One of the speakers at this rally was Ben J. Davis, secretary of the Harlem unit of the Communist party, who declared it was necessary for the war effort for the nation's capital to set an example by hiring Negro bus and streetcar operators, according to the files of the Dies committee.

Rep. John E. Rankin [D., Miss.] took the floor of the house today to denounce the order against the transit company and to charge that the complaint was the result of "alien influences." He warned that the effort to arouse racial issues might lead to disorders in the capital and elsewhere in the country.

Hunt Masked Bandits Who Robbed Church Society

Police were searching yesterday for three bandits who stole $395 in a holdup Saturday night in the basement offices of the parish credit union of St. Aloysius Catholic church, 2342 Le Moyne street. John H. Schell, 1516 North Oakley boulevard, union manager; John Kunz, union president and Mrs. Margaret Delli, 1509 North Kostner avenue, a parishioner, were threatened. The bandits wore masks colored red, white and blue.

NAVY DISCHARGES TONY MARTIN AS UNFIT FOR DUTY

Ouster Not Dishonorable, Announcement Says.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 1 [Special].—Tony Martin, one time radio and screen singing star, today was on his way back to the draft board he flouted nearly a year ago by enlisting in the navy thru the assistance of a navy procurement officer to whom he presented a $950 automobile.

Tony Martin.

Martin's ouster from the navy for "unfitness" was announced today by the 12th naval district, which said the order was "not a dishonorable discharge and does not carry any degradation." The order came from the navy's bureau of personnel in Washington.

Managed Navy Theater.

The curly haired singer has had a rating as a chief specialist since his enlistment last Jan. 2, and has been manager of the navy theater on Treasure Island here.

Altho no charges ever were preferred against Martin as a result of the "gift" of the automobile, the navy last summer court martialed and discharged its recipient, Maurice N. Aroff, then a lieutenant commander, on charges of accepting Martin's car "for and as a fee, compensation, and reward" for facilitating the singer's enlistment.

Martin's troubles over his status in the armed services began in Chicago during Christmas week a year ago. While engaged there in a round of personal appearances he was notified that his draft board had issued a warrant charging him with failure to appear for an examination.

Going to Draft Board.

Service of the warrant was held up while Martin flew to San Francisco and was inducted into the navy as a chief specialist Jan. 2. Testimony at Aroff's court martial later revealed that Martin turned his automobile over to the procurement officer the next day. Appearing as a government witness, Martin said there had been no understanding that Aroff was to pay for the car.

Naval officials said that Martin has twice applied for sea duty since joining the navy. He was quoted as saying he did not want to walk around in civilian clothes and that he would report immediately to his draft board in Beverly Hills. Pending against him is a government income tax lien for $24,753 on his 1941 earnings.

CURB ON WAGES WILL DECREASE STARS OF RADIO

It's likely that the $25,000 yearly salary limit may bring some changes in radio's guest star list. Movie celerities who have been called in to glamorize many shows may decrease because of the desire of the stars not to boost their incomes too high. Madeleine Carroll has been on the air as a guest almost every week the last year. Several others have appeared often—too often, some listeners say.

It is possible that the salary limitation may result in switching attention to less well known entertainers from the stage and night club field. Thus new radio stars may be developed—and they possibly will come under the salary restriction.

The Chicagoland Music Festival, presented in Soldiers' field last Aug. 15 and broadcast over W-G-N-Mutual, is still entertaining radio listeners. Jack Brickhouse, W-G-N announcer, reported receipt of a letter from Corp. Richard W. Morey, a friend, stationed in a Pacific outpost, in which he told of hearing a rebroadcast of the festival highlights from station KGMB, Honolulu, on Nov. 21. Hawaiian stations during the year of war have rebroadcast many American radio shows in transcribed form.

WMAQ will begin carrying the broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera from the Blue network starting at 1 p. m. next Saturday. First program will bring "La Traviata" to listeners with Lawrence Tibbet and Licia Albanese in the leading rôles.

NEW LAKE COUNTY PROSECUTOR.

Daniel J. Dalziel, 33 years old, 2030 Miraflores avenue, Waukegan, began his term as assistant state's attorney of Lake county yesterday. A graduate of Northwestern university law school in 1933, Dalziel succeeds John Bedrosian, now a chief specialist in the navy.

NEW U. S. BUDGET EXPECTED TO HIT 100 BILLION MARK

Sum 30 Billion Above This Year's Costs.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—Production and strategic plans in Washington are shaping up toward a 100 billion dollar budget for the nation in the next fiscal year, it was learned authoritatively today.

Tentative figures for the next year, beginning July 1, were described as already exceeding $90,000,000,000 and threatening to reach about $100,000,000,000 by the time President Roosevelt sends his annual estimates to congress the first week in January.

This budget, biggest in the history of any nation, aims at creation of the maximum weapons and mobilization possible. Should the war end before the year's end, it was said, the plans could be canceled.

70 Billion This Year.

The United States in the current year is spending for itself and lend-lease slightly more than 70 billions, some 30 billions less than next year's expected figures. Much of this spending was improvised, since bombs fell on Pearl Harbor in the midst of last year's annual budget season.

This year plans for future fighting have been made in the conference rooms of the combined chiefs of staff. The armed services and the lend-lease administration have taken these plans and estimated requirements in supplies and other costs.

The War Production board and other agencies have calculated what the factories and mills can produce and what new plants are needed.

Estimate of Top Output.

In an over-all sense, the budget is expected officially to represent an estimate of the maximum output of all war industries and suppliers. Generals and agency heads may continue to debate how to split this production among airplanes and ships and tanks.

A new factor in this year's budget making is the figuring of price levels. James F. Byrnes, economic stabilization director, and Leon Henderson, price administrator, thus are having at least an indirect voice in determining the size of the budget. Failure on their part to hold down prices might make costs of the program now contemplated rise to 110 billion dollars or more.

BAR ENLISTMENT OF MEN NEEDED FOR FARM WORK

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—Selective service headquarters has instructed local draft boards, a spokesman said today, not to release for voluntary enlistment in the army or navy any men granted deferment as essential farm workers until a replacement has been obtained or trained. The spokesman said the army and navy had agreed not to accept essential farm workers unless they had releases from their draft boards.

PAPERS INDORSE GROUP DEFENSE FOR AP IN SUIT

Messages Received from All Over Nation.

Decatur, Ill., Dec. 1 (AP).—Scores of newspaper executives today indorsed the action of representatives of 1,000 smaller newspapers who joined the defense against a government suit charging the Associated Press with monopoly.

Edward E. Lindsay, editor of the Decatur Herald and Review and chairman of a committee formed by Associated Press members from smaller cities, reported that indorsements of the committee's statement had been received from all sections of the nation and that "telegrams are still coming in." He stated:

"Response to the committee's emphasis of the government's monopoly suit as a threat to the principle of coöperative news gathering and, therefore, to the life of small newspapers has been prompt and sincere."

Interested in Factual Report.

The committee issued a statement Monday saying the important issue to the rank and file of AP members is the "preservation of an unbiased, factual news report that is the foundation of a free press in the United States . . ."

In indorsing the committee's statement, President Roy Eddins of the Marlin [Tex.] Democrat wired to Lindsay:

"Often I have used valuable time in collecting news vital to public morals and upbuilding democracy when the monetary return was less than nothing. To have got identical news on a money basis would have been out of the question. There would have been no news coverage. Destroy the association of news gatherers and you create true monopoly."

Cites Importance to Public.

Columbus P. Giragi, publisher of the Holbrook [Ariz.] Tribune-News, Winslow [Ariz.] Mail, and Flagstaff [Ariz.] Coconino Sun emphasized the public importance of the monopoly suit.

Among the indorsements was one from Edgar G. Harris of the Times-Leader in West Point, Miss., "the smallest city in the United States receiving leased wire service."

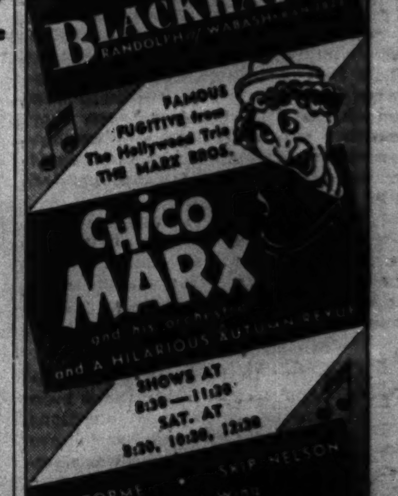
CHICAGO PAYS HONOR FRIDAY TO MARQUETTE

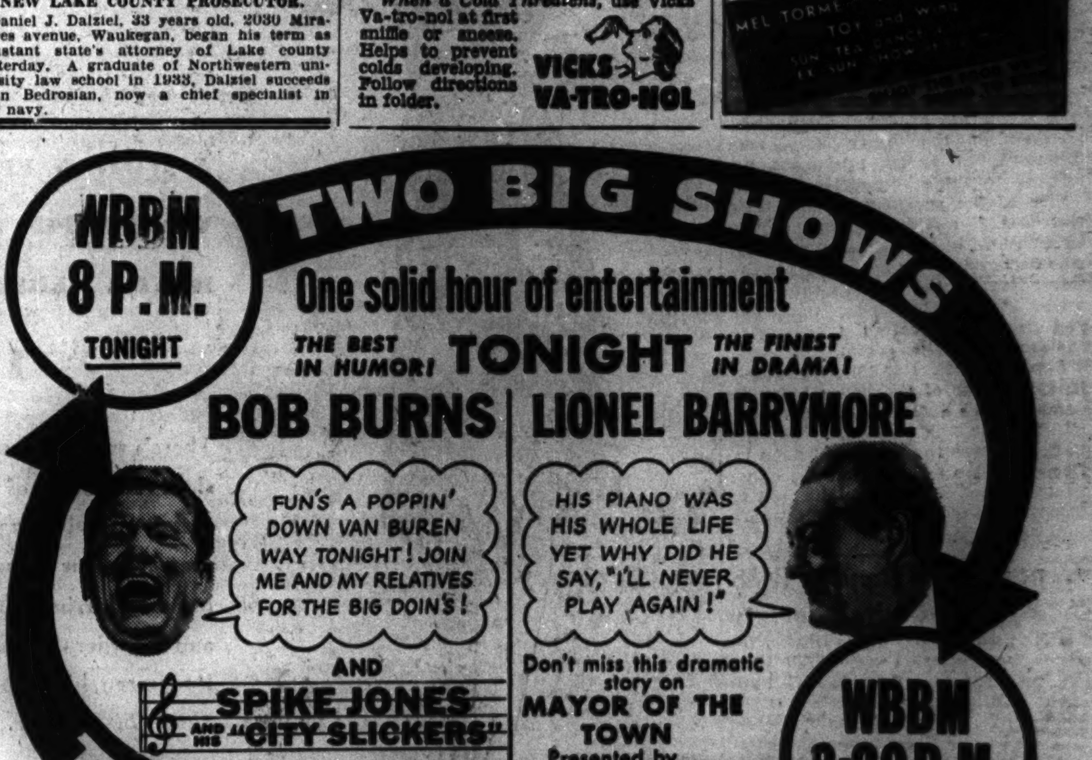
Chicago will celebrate next Friday the 268th anniversary of the arrival of Father Marquette, the city's first known white visitor. Mayor Kelly has proclaimed it Marquette day, in memory of the famous Jesuit missionary-explorer.

Students at Mundelein, St. Xavier, and Rosary colleges will place wreaths on the monument to Father Marquette at the Michigan avenue bridge in a ceremony at noon. At 8 p. m. there will be a memorial service in the city hall.

Brenda H. Lane, Former Actress, Is Found Dead

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—Brenda H. Lane, 32 year old former actress, was found dead last night in her small furnished room. Police said she died of a heart ailment. Oscar Schoneman, landlord of the building, who discovered her body, told police she recently had been writing. He said her stories had appeared in several magazines.





PROTESTS GREET RAW EGG WHITE DIET FOR CANCER

X-Ray Specialists Contend Efficacy Unproved.

A paper by Dr. Ira I. Kaplan, in charge of cancer treatment at Bellevue hospital, New York City, advocating raw egg white as an important dietary factor in the treatment of cancer, evoked a storm of controversy yesterday afternoon at the annual meeting of the Radiological Society of North America in the Drake hotel.

Three leading members of the society followed Dr. Kaplan to the platform to warn against premature emphasis on an experiment which might be interpreted by the public as a cancer cure with such answers as the declaration that "the interests of medicine and, indeed, of humanity, were not well served by the presentation of such nebulous material."

Fed 36 Egg Whites Daily.

Dr. Kaplan, who said he had been engaged in cancer work for 29 years, illustrated with slides the results of treatment of seven patients for 15 weeks in which he declared advanced cases had responded, in some instances after other methods had failed, by a diet that included 36 raw egg whites daily.

Pointing out that, since biotin, a constituent of vitamin B, is necessary for tissue growth, an excess of biotin might be a cancer factor, Dr. Kaplan said he decided to try avidin, antibidin substance found in raw egg white, as an experiment. Seven advanced cases were given diets that daily contained 400 units of avidin but were lacking in biotin.

Chief criticism against the paper was that too few cases had been observed over too short a time to warrant any conclusions.

Dr. Robert S. Stone of San Francisco said he hoped Dr. Kaplan would continue his work, but that it was "regrettable that it was brought before this meeting at this early date."

Decry False Hopes.

Dr. Lowell S. Goin of Los Angeles, chairman of the publicity and educational committee, declared the paper expressed "senior lack of controls and lack of accurate diagnosis," and that Dr. Kaplan's conclusions "are not sound." Dr. W. Edward Chamberlain of Philadelphia recalled the dashed hopes of thousands in earlier false cancer cures and expressed hope the Kaplan paper would not have the same result.

Dr. E. P. Pendergrass of the University of Pennsylvania, delivering the annual Carman lecture, a memorial to Dr. Russell D. Carman, reported last night on a new technique for examination of kidneys. A dye injected into the blood stream is excreted thru the kidneys, where structures become visible to the radiologist who studies them under the X-ray. Early diagnosis of many diseases has been made possible as the result of this new method of examination.

ISSUE WARRANT FOR EX-CLERK IN JOB DOLE FRAUD

Neil Kent, a former clerk in the north side branch of the state unemployment compensation division, was named yesterday in a warrant charging him with obtaining $270 in state funds by means of false pretenses. The warrant was issued by Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Felony court at the request of Assistant State's Attorney Leslie V. Curtis and William M. Wilson, head of the special investigation division of the compensation office.

Kent, whose home address was given as 1225 South Austin avenue, Cicero, but who now is working for a railroad in Indiana, allegedly obtained the money early this year by filing unemployment claims in the name of Matthew T. Foley, 5140 Wilson avenue, without Foley's knowledge or consent. Foley received no money, officials said. Checks made out to him were cashed in a north side tavern.

Attorney General George F. Barrett exposed the case last week when he placed evidence in the hands of the state's attorney. Prosecutor Curtis said that other persons are being investigated.

Photographer with Obscene Pictures Given Six Months

Charles Ginnaven, 53 years old, 4524 South Ashland avenue, a photographer, was sentenced to six months in jail yesterday by Judge George L. Quilici in the Jury court on a charge of possessing obscene photographs. Police said they found thousands of pictures and plates in his quarters. Assistant State's Attorney Francis McCurrie and Assistant City Prosecutor Harry Eisberg recommended the sentence, which is the maximum.

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Horse Falls on Icy Pavement

James Stewart with his horse, which slipped on the ice at 29th and La Salle streets last evening, pictured after the horse had lain there for seven hours. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Lies There for Hours

A ragged old horse that furnished motive power for the junk wagon driven by James Stewart, colored, 2833 Federal street, lost its footing on the icy pavement at 29th and La Salle streets last evening, becoming Chicago's first winter time equine casualty since wartime gas rationing brought scores of horses back to the city streets.

For hours the horse lay on the pavement while its owner covered it with a blanket, and sand and ashes were sprinkled about in an effort to provide sufficient footing to enable the animal to regain its feet.

The fire department, notified of the horse's predicament, said the situation was out of its hands. Pekin station police advised watchers to call the Anti-Cruelty society. The Anti-Cruelty society decided there was nothing it could do. Early today, with the temperature a few degrees above zero, the horse still lay on the cold pavement.

BAN NIGHT LIFE ENTERTAINMENT IN BOSTON PROBE

Taverns, Clubs, Cafes Hit by Edict.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 1 [Special].—An edict halting all entertainment in Boston hotels, night clubs, restaurants, cafés, and taverns was issued today by the city license committee as an aftermath of Saturday night's Cocoanut Grove night club fire.

This action came as the gloom shrouded city and scores of communities thruout New England sadly devoted themselves to the funeral services and burials of victims. Revising previously announced totals on fatalities, the Boston committee on public safety said that the number of dead is 474, instead of 484. All but 4 women and 1 man have been identified, it was said, and there are 172 injured survivors still in hospitals.

30 Funerals in Boston.

There were 30 funerals in Boston today, with scores more arranged for tomorrow. In nearby Worcester, funerals are expected to reach 20 by tomorrow.

The license commission issued its ban on entertainment after a statehouse conference with Gov. Leverett Saltonstall, who advised the commissioners to "act first and let some one question their authority afterward."

Inquest Passes Third Day.

The inquest before Fire Commissioner William Arthur Reilly passed thru its third day with additional testimony from survivors and safety officials. A photograph of a locked "safety" door in the front of the building, blamed for causing much of the panic, was received in evidence along with other photographs showing the shambles of the club's interior.

Evidence of possible law violations will be presented to the Suffolk county grand jury, which convenes tomorrow, according to District Attorney William J. Foley, who conferred today with Attorney General Robert T. Bushnell, State Fire Marshal Stephen C. Garrity, and state police representatives.

ALDERMEN URGE CURB ON SALE OF PACKAGE LIQUOR

An amendment to the city's liquor license ordinance prohibiting sale of package liquor, other than 12 ounce bottles of beer, for consumption on the premises was recommended to the city council for passage yesterday by the council's license committee. Restaurants and private clubs would be exceptions under the measure.

Aldermen explained tavern groups had asked for the new rule, which they said would aid them in preventing sale of liquor to minors, but observers foresaw in the amendment increased revenue for tavern owners thru larger sales by the drink.

Ald. Benjamin Grant [3d], sponsor of the amendment, said many taverns now sell bottled liquor, or beer in larger containers, to customers who drink it at a table in the establishment.

WEATHER CODES A BOTHER, AIR LINE PILOTS TOLD

Seventy delegates representing 3,200 members of the Air Lines Pilots' association last night heard the suggestion advanced that weather bureaus use plain language instead of code signals in reporting weather conditions to planes in flight.

Capt. W. S. Shannon of New York, American Airlines pilot who made the suggestion, told the group that because of war demands for flyers, many inexperienced co-pilots are flying the civil airways now, and deciphering of code weather signals takes much valuable time.

He pointed out that such information would be of no value to an enemy because they already have learned the approximate weather conditions by "stop flight" orders holding planes to the ground.

Representatives of the Canadian and Mexican airways pilots are attending the sessions. Both have made application for affiliation with the organization.

BOGUS SOLDIER, 15, JAILED AFTER RAPE, AUTO THEFT

Hostess Victim of Boy on Solo Crime Tour.

Kankakee, Ill., Dec. 1 [Special].—Jail bars brought an end tonight to a two months crime splurge of a 15 year old boy who wore a stolen soldier's uniform, basked in the home comforts of a couple who thought he was a lonely recruit, and then raped his hostess and stole her automobile.

The "one boy crime wave" is Elmer Cooksey of Moline, who had been, until last June, a pupil at the Glenwood Manual Training school near Chicago. He said his mother sent him to the school after he had "got into some scrapes."

Then He Gets Uniform.

Elmer left home several weeks ago and struck out toward the west. Just before leaving Moline, however, he broke into an ice cream plant and stolen $13. He stopped in Omaha, Neb., long enough to burglarize a filling station of $23. Police said he also had burglarized a filling station in Chicago Heights of $11.

The young traveler came back to his home grounds wearing the uniform of a soldier. The uniform, which Elmer's big frame filled out sufficiently, was bona fide army issue. But, aside from Elmer having no right to wear it, it happened to belong to Pvt. William Pekinpaugh of Jefferson Barracks, Mo., from whom Elmer admitted he stole it.

Cockily wearing the uniform, Elmer was loitering on a street in Lockport on Sunday when a couple drove by. Deciding he "looked lonely," they invited him to their home for dinner.

After spending the day with his hospitable hosts, Elmer was invited to accompany the woman when she drove other guests to their home in Joliet. On the way back, Elmer admitted, he raped his youthful hostess, pushed her out of the car and sped away with her machine.

Out of Gas, Quits Auto.

He drove to Kankakee, where he ran out of gas and abandoned the car. The machine was found yesterday by police who had been notified by the couple about the activities of their ungrateful guest. A search for Elmer was in progress when Sergt. Fred Etchill, military policeman from nearby Chanute field, stopped the uniformed boy on a street here late last night.

Elmer insisted he was a soldier from Jefferson Barracks and his companion, James Wilson, 42, vouched so emphatically for him that both were arrested. Wilson was fined $8 today for interfering with an officer. Elmer, who admitted his pose when he was unable to produce soldier's identification data, faces a host of charges by both military and civilian authorities.

ORDERS 4 COMPANIES OF SURFACE LINES TO PAY OVERDUE INTEREST

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday ordered that overdue interest payments totaling $1,833,447 be made to first mortgage bond holders of three of the four underlying companies making up the Chicago Surface Lines. The payments by each company are: Chicago City railways, $704,936; Calumet and South Chicago, $84,980, and Chicago Railways company, $1,043,531.

The surface lines have been in receivership since 1927. Altho the bonds have been in default as to principal since that year, the first mortgage holders had been getting their interest regularly until last August. At least one of the companies, Chicago City, lacked the cash to pay at that time and the whole array of bondholders had to wait until heavy travel in September and October furnish-d the necessary funds.

The street car system was granted a 1 cent temporary fare increase in April, but much of this will be needed to pay a retroactive [to June 1] pay raise of 9 cents an hour granted last week to union employés by an arbitration board. This award is to be reviewed by the War Labor board. The next interest due date is Feb. 1.

"KAISERPLATZ" NOW "MUSSOLINI."

ROME, Dec. 1 [from Italian broadcasts]—(AP).—The Rome radio broadcast today a dispatch from Augsburg, Germany, reporting that the Kaiserplatz in that south German city had been renamed "Benito Mussolini platz" in a gesture "symbolizing the solidarity of the axis."

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — "Silence You Most Could Hear"

CHICAGO SCHOOL COSTS TO DROP 3 MILLIONS IN 1943

Board to Cut Expenses in Spite of Tax Slash.

Voluntary war emergency reductions totaling more than $1,000,000 will be made in the expenditures of the Chicago board of education next year, it was predicted yesterday by James B. McCahey, president.

This is in addition to the $2,226,000 lopped off the schools' tax revenue for 1943 by the state legislature when it reduced the building fund tax levy to 38 cents from the 48 cent rate used in figuring the 1941 taxes collected this year. The total estimated saving to taxpayers is over $3,303,000.

McCahey made his estimate after receiving the report of Business Manager Howard P. Savage on resources and requirements for the coming year. This report is, in effect, a tentative budget upon which the budget committee to be named at the next school board meeting will base its deliberations.

To Save Million on Buildings.

"Careful examination of the building fund situation convinces me that we can cut it at least $1,000,000 below the estimated expected revenue and still keep up our high standard of maintenance, repairs, and reconstruction of our $250,000,000 school plant," McCahey said.

"I also believe we can make a substantial cut in the free textbook tax [a pegged levy of $1,150,000 this year]. While the board is authorized by law to levy this amount, we will reduce it considerably to save an additional sum for the taxpayers.

"No reduction is possible in the educational levy, which has been pegged at $52,000,000, because it is already too low."

The business manager's report showed an increase was necessary in only one item, the bond redemption and interest fund, for which $546,489 more will be required next year than this.

SUBMIT CITY ESTIMATES

City Controler Robert B. Upham's 1943 budget estimates provide $844,240 more than was appropriated in 1942 to meet city expenses paid out of the three major municipal funds—corporate, water, and motor vehicle tax. This includes $457,266 of estimated corporate revenue which Upham did not earmark.

This was disclosed yesterday as the controler filed his annual estimates of revenue and appropriations with the city clerk for presentation to the city council tomorrow. The following table gives Upham's appropriation estimates for the three funds and the amount actually appropriated to them in 1942:

	1942.	1943.
Corporate	$55,511,063	$55,498,510
Water	16,949,357	18,343,899
Vehicle tax.......	6,256,015	5,261,000
Totals	$78,716,435	$79,103,409

The 1943 corporate fund estimate would be increased to $55,955,776 by the $457,266 of unappropriated surplus shown by Upham's corporate fund balance sheet. Mayor Kelly has suggested this unappropriated surplus can be used for restoring pay cuts given higher salaried city employés Jan. 1, 1941.

Gas Ration to Cut Revenue.

The $995,015 reduction in estimated revenues and appropriations in the vehicle tax fund reflects Upham's estimate that only 437,800 passenger car owners will purchase city vehicle licenses in 1943 as a result of gasoline rationing. This would be a 20 per cent decline from the 547,250 car owners who obtained them this year.

The bureau of streets appropriation absorbs $818,116 of this anticipated vehicle tax fund decline, and takes another $93,369 loss in its appropriation from the corporate fund. This bureau, with a total cut of $911,485, would receive a total appropriation from the city in 1943 of only $10,463,861.

Also Gets State Funds.

The bureau of streets also receives money from state motor fuel tax revenue, but this also is expected to decline in view of gasoline rationing. Members of the controler's staff, however, said there is a sizable balance due Chicago from the state fund which has not been appropriated for city street projects in recent years.

The water fund appropriation estimate is $1,394,542 larger than the amount appropriated to this fund in 1942. Accounting for this increase is a $1,492,520 rise, from $1,340,000 to $2,832,520, in the appropriation for "work in connection with the water works system, including national, state, and local defense."

As provided in the budget estimates, this money could be used in part for additional retirement of water system indebtedness or for other water system improvement expenditures. The aldermen, however, could use all or part of it for employé pay increases by switching the money to other funds.

The largest change among appropriations in the corporate fund is a $157,516 cut to $2,422,094 given the board of health.

PLANE ACCIDENT IS BLAMED ON WATER IN FUEL

Quincy, Ill., Dec. 1 [Special].—Charging that gasoline sold him at Quincy's municipal airport contained water and sediment, Merle Zuehlke of Menomonee Falls, Wis., notified the city council today that he will sue the city of Quincy for injuries he received in an airplane crash last June 4.

Zuehlke, 31 years old, a Milwaukee airport manager, and a passenger, A. J. Harvey, 34, also of Milwaukee, landed their plane at the Quincy airport for fuel. After taking off the motor cut out at altitude of 200 feet. The plane went down in a cornfield nosing over and landing on its back. Zuehlke's nose and chest were injured and Harvey injured the right side of his head.

COUPLE IN AUTO FIND SLED CRASH VICTIM IS SON

Boy, 8, Glides Into Path of Car; Badly Hurt.

Mr. and Mrs. George Veemstra of 15348 8th avenue, Phoenix, were driving in 155th street yesterday when a boy on a sled shot out into the street and under the wheels of their automobile. Leaping from the car to assist the lad, they found he was their 8 year old son, Kenneth. County highway police from the Homewood station hurried the boy to Ingalls Memorial hospital, Harvey, where he is in a critical condition with both legs broken and internal injuries.

Police said Kenneth had "hitched" a ride with his sled behind a truck and suddenly had veered away from the truck into the path of traffic in the opposite lane. Police held Carl Tisdale, 16 years old, of 15240 Walton avenue, Phoenix, the driver of the truck, when they learned he had no driver's license.

"Deathless Days" End.

Meanwhile Chicago and Cook county had their first traffic death after going for four days without a fatality. Mrs. May Nelson, 69, of 6514 Diversey avenue, died last night in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries sustained a short time before when she was struck by a transport truck at 66th street and Ashland avenue. Englewood police held Ernest Fenner of Edon, O., driver, for an inquest today.

Two men were killed and a locomotive engineer was severely burned yesterday when a Baltimore and Ohio passenger train struck an automobile carrying a spare can of gasoline a mile south of the Kingsbury shell loading plant, Kingsbury, Ind.

Mark E. Sands, 33 years old, formerly of New Lexington, O., who moved to La Porte, Ind., recently, driver of the car, and Robert E. Wesch, 27, of La Porte, who was riding with him, were killed. E. D. Van Anda, Garrett, Ind., engineer, suffered severe burns on his face and hands when flaming gasoline from the extra supply in the automobile was thrown into the engine cab. Wreckage of the car also burned.

One of First Draftees.

Sands was an engineer at Kingsford Heights federal housing project, and Wesch, one of the first three La Porte draftees in 1940, later honorably discharged, worked with Sands as a rodman. They were on their way to work.

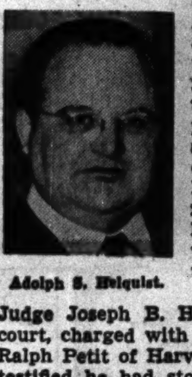
Four persons standing on a safety island at Ashland avenue and Cortez street were injured yesterday when they were struck by a hit and run car. The machine skidded into them, then the driver drove away. Those hurt, and given aid at the North Avenue hospital, were Miss Rose Goldecker, 26, of 1938 North Spaulding avenue; Miss Marie Sargent, 46, of 2037 North Damen avenue; Miss Barbara Neja, 16, of 1936 North Winchester avenue, and Thomas Jordan, 27, of 4720 Armitage avenue.

The traffic safety bureau of the state division of highways reported a 50 per cent reduction in highway fatalities for October. The deaths in October, 1942, totaled 109 as against 218 deaths in October, 1941. Statewide travel declined 19 per cent during October.

Up to 4 p. m. the toll stood at 612 in the county since Jan. 1. Of these, 464 died in Chicago where 18,223 were injured in the same period.

A CRUSADER JUST ABOUT CRUSADES HIMSELF TO JAIL

Adolph S. Helquist, who sallied forth as a one man grand jury last July to investigate gambling, almost sallied to the County jail for 15 days yesterday. Helquist's personal crusade against gambling caused three police raids to be made. This time he was on the wrong side of trouble.



Adolph S. Helquist.

He stood before Judge Joseph B. Hermes in Safety court, charged with reckless driving. Ralph Petit of Harvey, a bus driver, testified he had stopped his bus at the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at 119th and Halsted streets, after which his vehicle was rammed from the rear by Helquist's car and shunted upon the tracks.

Petit said he quickly drove his bus off the track and alighted, only to be accused by Helquist of "trying to leave the scene of an accident." Petit called police and both he and Policeman George Dempsey yesterday testified that Helquist had been drinking.

Judge Hermes sentenced Helquist to 15 days in jail, but later canceled the term and substituted a $100 fine at the behest of Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Pope, who apparently recalled Helquist's efforts on behalf of the law last July. Helquist lives at 12717 Elm street, Blue Island.

The review was written by Norman B. Eaton and will be produced under direction of L. Duncan Lloyd, chairman, and the association's entertainment committee.

Since May 1 a special committee of the Cook county board has handled the collection of back taxes on more than 10,000 pieces of real estate in the county and has received and accepted bids of $5,893,000 to settle taxes amounting to $9,135,000. This was disclosed yesterday by Clayton F. Smith, president of the board. Commissioner Daniel Ryan is chairman of the special committee.

Smith said that the board had recommended the filing of 250 involuntary foreclosures by the state's attorney against delinquent properties and that 46 such suits involving more than four million dollars have been filed. He estimated that foreclosures against other properties at least 30 million dollars delinquent were still to be instituted.

The state's attorney's office yesterday filed a petition in County court for the appointment of the county treasurer as tax receiver for the apartment buildings at 195-201 Lake Shore drive and 194-202 East Walton street because of unpaid taxes on the buildings, amounting to $133,331.91 and $48,763.98, respectively.

PUFFER SEEKING EDICT TO FREEZE TEACHER IN JOB

The proper education of hundreds of thousands of children may be jeopardized unless something is done to halt the steady flow of teachers from their schools to the armed forces and war industry, Noble J. Puffer, superintendent of Cook county schools, predicted yesterday. James T. Gaffney, assistant city superintendent in charge of personnel, said the shortage of certain types of teachers is only slightly less serious in the city's public schools.

Puffer said 106 Cook county teachers have quit to take better paying jobs in business and industry since school opened in September. In addition, he said, small numbers of male teachers are steadily being taken by the armed services.

School board heads have managed to replace these teachers so far by raiding downstate areas in which teachers' salaries are lower than Cook county's.

Puffer said he is preparing to request the war man power commission to freeze teachers in their jobs.

As a stopgap for the shortage of teachers in the meantime Puffer yesterday announced that two year normal school graduates may be employed as regular teachers on substitute certificates for the balance of the current school year, regardless of their experience.

PRIORITIES HALT ONLY TWO PHONE CALLS IN MONTH

Only 6,853, or .65 per cent of the 1,050,015 toll calls handled by the Illinois Bell Telephone company in Chicago last month were made under the priority system that went into effect on Nov. 1, it was announced yesterday. Altho Chicago is one of the nation's largest military nerve centers, it was necessary to interrupt regular long distance calls only twice in favor of those of war urgency.

Priorities are given urgent toll calls affecting the war effort or public health and safety. The caller, if eligible, need only specify the type of call when placing it to obtain priority. Once a month the telephone company must report to the Board of War Communications in Washington the names of priority callers, the numbers called, and the number from which the call is made.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

PHOENIX OFFERS WIDE OPEN SPACE TO VACATIONERS

And, of Course, Sunshine and Dude Ranches.

BY DOROTHY JOHNSON.

Due southwest of Chicagoland, in an oasis in the "valley of the sun," is Phoenix, Ariz., for decades the objective of travelers seeking sunshine, health, and the outdoor life. Phoenix is typically metropolitan, the state's capital and its largest city. But it's not as a seat of government that Phoenix is a by-word among vacationers; rather, it's the surrounding desert and mountains which claim devotees of dude ranching and sightseeing.

Zane Grey's country is sporty country, where leisure is spent on horseback and dreaming the hours away in a deck chair in the sun. A vacation spent in the Phoenix area finds the visitor variously occupied. One may go riding over desert and mountain trails, golfing on all-grass courses, play tennis, badminton, shuffleboard, go hunting and fishing in mountain streams and lakes, picknicking in an arroyo, and exploring Indian cliff dwellings and ruins that were old when America was just beginning to claim the attention of explorers.

Many Scenic Points.

For travelers who would rather see the sights there are many scenic spots which may be visited. A few miles from the heart of Phoenix there are Pueblo Grande, once the home of Indians who inhabited the valley; Papago park, rich in the natural beauty of the desert; Hieroglyphic and Echo canyons; Casa Grande ruins, watchtower of an Indian race whose history is lost in antiquity; Superstition mountain, holding the secret of the legendary Lost Dutchman mine; the Apache trail, winding thru colorful canyons past a chain of irrigation dams and lakes which have turned 400,000 acres of desert to agricultural advantage. A little farther afield there are the Grand Canyon, the Petrified Forest, the Painted Desert, and Mexico.

Sun Almost Always Shines.

One of the most pleasurable sensations of a visit to the Phoenix land of desert and oases, visitors relate, is the feeling of expansion, of room to breathe. There's no apology for the weather in "the valley of the sun," which is literally named, because the sun shines, according to statistics, 84 per cent of possible daylight hours. Rainfall is measured at less than eight inches in an entire year, and needless to say, blizzards just don't happen.

Accommodations for the traveler run the gamut of family and individual requirements. One may obtain completely furnished homes and apartments or rooms in both urban and resort hotels, ranches, and desert inns.

PENNSYLVANIA'S DEER SEASON ON UNTIL DEC. 12

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 1 [Special].—Sportsmen are eagerly availing themselves of the deer season in Pennsylvania's famous game areas. The season allows two Saturdays and closes Dec. 12.

Soldiers on furlough, it is said, are planning to keep their trigger fingers limber by trying their luck in the deer sections. Many war workers, both men and women, will find their relaxation on their day off in the woods following deer tracks. Many sportsmen already are preparing their camps.

The department of commerce will continue to fill requests for the hunting accommodations booklet which it published recently. It contains pertinent information for both the home state and out of state hunters. Included are lists of homes that cater to sportsmen during the deer season and locations and types of accommodations. Game laws and regulations also are given.

John Steinbeck Makes Worthy Contribution to War Effort in His New Book.

Dorothy Thompson Gives Interesting View of Germans and Their Future.

Steinbeck Tells Graphic Tale of a Bomber Crew

"Bombs Away," by John Steinbeck. [Viking, $2.50.] Published last Friday.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

One of the most spectacular contributions that any writer has made to the war effort is this "story of a bomber team" by the author of "Grapes of Wrath."

To "Bombs Away" John Steinbeck has brought his genius for making a life vivid to those who can never know it except thru words. To it he has brought his missionary spirit of making words exhort their readers without their readers' realizing it. To it he has brought his skill in giving a picture of a human being in less words than it takes to describe the physical man. To it he has brought his unique gift for precise description.

The result is a book which is as interesting to read as if it were not written to order, as it were, with a definite purpose, "for the United States army air forces"—that is, for boys who are as yet not in the army air forces and for their parents and kinfolk who are befuddled about what life there may be.

Mr. Steinbeck describes the training of each of the members of a bomber team thru what happens to individuals in the team during their training. When you have finished the book, those six men are not just a bombardier, an aerial gunner, a navigator, a pilot, an aerial engineer, and a radio engineer, but they are six live young men whom you know very well, and "Baby" is as real a bomber as if she were not a synthesis of all the bombers in the American air force.

You know Bombardier Bill from Idaho, who helped himself thru college by playing the trumpet in a dance orchestra, but left during his fourth year to join up; Aerial Gunner Al, a soda jerker in a small town in the middle west, and "not too happy about it," whose soda fountain had "put a brand on him because he thought of himself as a man of action"; Navigator Allan, who had done three months' post graduate work in electrical engineering, whose father was a county engineer in central Indiana, and who chose the air corps because he was getting into work that he could do for the rest of his life.

You also know Pilot Joe, a "big, slow-talking boy from South Carolina who was a farmer by birth and tradition," who came out of the university knowing more about scientific farming than his father did but after a week's furlough at home on his way back to camp "had a sense of elation when his week was up, because he wasn't leaving home—he was going home"; Aerial Engineer Abner, who left a little community in California desolate when he closed up his small garage and repair shop and joined the air corps and "got his wish to associate with the best engines in the world," and Radio Engineer Harris, who had worked days in a large chain grocery but spent all his time at night with his short wave "ham" set. All of them are typical American boys.

As the book closes and they set out on their mission, Mr. Steinbeck ends with these prophetic words: "Another deep growl of the engines shook the air, shook the world, shook the future."

Illustrating the book are countless actual photographs of young men in training, taken by John Swope, himself a flyer.

Both the photographer's and the author's royalties, as well as all publishing profits, will go to the Air Forces Aid Society Trust fund, which already has been given by John Steinbeck the $250,000 which he was paid for the moving picture rights. The Air Forces Aid Society Trust fund is perpetual—unlike the Army and Navy Relief societies, which end six months after the war—and will provide emergency aid for the families of flyers lost in the line of duty.

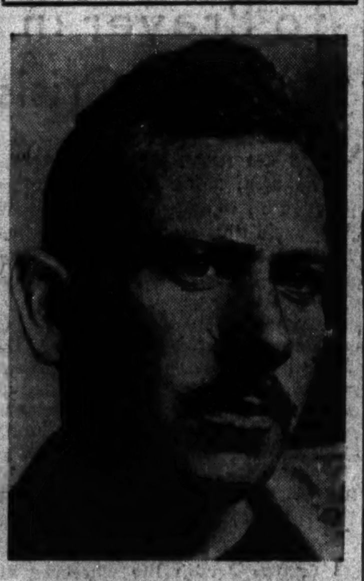
New Book Out



John Steinbeck, whose new book, "Bombs Away," the story of a bomber team, is reviewed today by Fanny Butcher.

Mme. Chiang Translates Noted Chinese Folk Tale

"Little Sister Su" [John Day, $2.50] is a remarkable book in more ways than its contents. Despite its title, it is not a juvenile, but a famous Chinese folk tale. It is translated by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek. It is made in the Chinese manner, with loose, accordion style pages. And finally, all of Mme. Chiang's royalties from "Little Sister Su" will be used for her War Orphan fund, and all profits of the John Day company are to be devoted to the same cause. It would make a unique Christmas gift . . . both to Americans and Chinese!

Here's a Plea to Germans—and Americans

"Listen, Hans," by Dorothy Thompson. [Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50.] Published last Friday.

"Listen, Hans" is divided into two parts, Dorothy Thompson's messages to a German Hans and her message to her fellow Americans. The messages to Hans are reprints of short wave broadcasts to Germany between March and September of this year. The message to her fellow Americans is in reality a sharp, carefully considered—even if succinct—analysis of the German mind, character, culture, and history and an application of the findings of that analysis to the future.

In the second part of the book, her "Conversations" with Hans, Miss Thompson uses her knowledge of Germans and Germany to appeal to the intelligence of her listeners, and Hans, she says, is not one lone intellectual German who had been her friend before the war but is typical of a large number of the German people. She talks to the German people thru Hans, disassociating them from the Nazis and showing them how Hitler is betraying German ideals and Germany.

To those who have felt that only by the complete and utter destruction of Germans and of Germany can the world be saved, Miss Thompson's words may be unwelcome. But her conclusions are studied and foundationed on long experience and a historical rather than a merely contemporary point of view. And when she talks about the German people she tells not only why they have not at this moment peace [why they are at war] but why they have "the passion for peace" [and the phrase is not ironic as Miss Thompson explains it].

She feels that a new world commonwealth must come if peace is to be preserved in the world. "The question to be posed is whether the world shall be governed by one or two nations, exploiting it in their own interests or mutually governed by all for the welfare of all. THAT IS THE BASIC ISSUE OF THIS WAR," she says.

To go into the many facets of Germany's past and possible future which Dorothy Thompson considers with brilliant if brief thoroness would take a review much longer than this can be. But be assured, readers will find her a writer and a thinker of good will as well as of good judgment, and they will themselves be of better will and better judgment with her help.

Let us all hope that she is right. Let us pray that there does exist in Germany today the kind of intelligent eagerness to permanent peace which she appeals to in Hans, the intelligent eagerness to see the last of a mad and doomed régime. F. B.

Slippers Take Rightful Place as Yule Gifts

BY REA SEEGER.

Christmas shopping is on "as usual," the same crowds, the same hazard to life, limb, and disposition unless you enter into the spirit of things — slow down and enjoy the color, lights, rub elbows quite literally with the rest of the world, and buy for others.

Long the receiving end of jokes, wisecracks, and quips of all varieties, the gift slipper collections this year reach a new peak for color, new fabric decorative outlines and beauty. All kinds of pastels and high colored satins are especially festive, some trimmed with beads, others with embroidery, others with feathers, and the newest sleek charmers cleverly trimmed with tiny frogs of braid to simulate a closing device.

There are bath slippers to match all chenille and terry cloth bath robes; there are cozy cuddly affairs of colored fleece thick as whipped cream in scuff models and the house slipper type with higher heels and side support. White bunny fur slippers also come in the scuffs and toe covered slippers. The leopard skin finds of stenciled fabric in beige with dark brown spots feature the wedge soled lounging models and the scuffs . . . still the ideal all-purpose slippers no matter what kind or the color of your house robes or lounging costumes.

Typically feminine and frivolous mules and boudoir slippers come with high heels and all kinds of toe accents. Big fluffy "mum" type flowers on the toes, yarn pompons, ostrich feathers in small curls, satin, silk and chiffon roses, gold and silver kidskin flowers, bows of lace and similar materials combined with shimmering satin brocade, crêpe, metallics in stripes, and the gold or silver kidskins . . . all ideal gift hints. Jewel tone velvets, soft suedes, bright smooth leathers soft as the fabrics come in scuff type and the boudoir as well as the old-fashioned house slipper models. Also check on the slippers made of felt, fleecy fabrics, and the trick knitted materials. The gift slippers are well worth all the excitement this year, and the money.

Laconicism.

British nonchalance is a legend the world over, but it was reaffirmed here last week when William Clark of the British Press service returned to his office from lunch and found the following message from his brother, a captain in the British army whom he has not seen for five years: "Was passing thru from Africa. Sorry to have missed you."

Class of 1950.

A scout, writing from a milk train in a handwriting that looked like a seismographic record of the destruction of Atlantis, tells of the lady who stopped at a pushcart in Peoria to buy some fruit. With the foresight of the housewife, she was feeling this piece and that to determine the ones she wanted. The vendor watched her with mounting anxiety. Finally, able to restrain himself no longer, he exclaimed, "Lady, pleez—don' pincha da fruit; pincha da coconut."

Dept. of Confusion.

It is perfectly allright, and it is all over now, anyway, but the Chicago opera program for "Manon" Saturday night stated on page 12 that it was an "opera in four acts by Giacomo Puccini." On page 14 it stated the opera was composed by Massenet, giving the circumstances and site. On page 16 it gave a synopsis of five acts.

Well! Well! Dept.

From a soldier in Great Britain comes a clipping from an English paper telling of an American sergeant who, when handed a Tommy gun for the first time, immediately and quickly reduced it to its many component parts. A major remarked that the sergeant seemed unduly familiar with the gun. We now quote the anonymous English paper:

"You see, sir," the sergeant explained, "I once had to take these things apart in the back seat of a car going 70 miles an hour."

The sergeant then went to the firing range, jammed the gun against his hip, and blew the target to bits.

Investigation disclosed that the sergeant, who had worked in Chicago, had served five and a half years in Atlanta penitentiary for bootlegging. He forgot to mention this in his enlistment papers.

And you believe that?

Overheard.

Repercussions of the coffee shortage now are heard in strange and obscure corners. Dar Steichen reports the woman in the china department of a loop store who said in sad, baffled tones, "I just don't know whether to get demi-tasses or drinking cups."

When try as you will you fail to remember

And find that you're greeting the strangest of men.

Summon Jews to Prayer in World Crisis

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chanukah lights of freedom to be kindled in Jewish homes tomorrow night will illuminate the darkest moment of Jewish history since the destruction of the temple by the Roman Titus in the year 70 A. D.

While Chanukah takes on the festive air of the Christian Feast of the Nativity, a proclamation making today a special occasion for fasting and prayer thruout the world of Judaism states that "the greatest calamity in Jewish history since the destruction of the temple has befallen all Jewish communities in the European lands occupied by the enemy."

"His deliberate and satanic purpose to destroy Jewish life wherever his power reaches has now been exposed to the world," the proclamation said. "Nearly 2,000,000 Jews already have cruelly been done to death and the remaining millions live in the shadow of impending doom."

Today's prayer and fasting were set to precede tomorrow's sundown opening of Chanukah, the feast of lights. All orthodox synagogues and many other Jewish groups will open tonight in compliance with the call. The ritual of the solemn day of atonement has been invoked with the blowing of the shofar, or ram's horn. The shofar is rarely blown except at Yom Kippur or in times of catastrophe or national sorrow.

The fasting and special services, in contrast with Chanukah's usually festive observances, were suddenly proclaimed when the state department made known the European Jewish tragedies to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise. The chief rabbinate of Palestine and the union of orthodox rabbis of America acted jointly in the call. It was also issued in the names of the American Jewish committee, the American Jewish congress, the American branches of the Mizrachi and Poale Zion, and the American branch of Agudath Israel.

Dr. Charles E. Shulman, spiritual leader of North Shore Congregation Israel, Glencoe, president of the Chicago Rabbinical association, representing most conservative and reform rabbis of the city, announced that many synagogues would assemble their congregations tonight.

Lamentations commemorative of the sorrows of Israel, and prayers and dirges from the Jewish liturgy will be read. Spiritual leaders will tell their congregations, Dr. Shulman said, about the gravity of the situation facing the Jews of Europe.

Judge Julius H. Miner of the Circuit court, chairman of the $150,000 "No Surrender" drive of the Board of Jewish Education, will be Chanukah eve host tomorrow night to several hundred drive workers at the Covenant club. The dinner will signalize the announcement made by Prof. Louis Gottschalk, president of the board, that 4,200 new subscribers to the fund had been secured to date.

Mrs. Judith Epstein, former national president of the Senior Hadassah, will be the principal speaker, and the blessings of the candle lighting ceremony will be chanted by Cantor Maurice Goldberg of St. Paul, Minn.

Women in War Work

—By Kate Massee

Fort Sheridan's newly constructed barracks, mess hall, and recreation lounge which will accommodate the post's first WAAC company were opened for inspection yesterday by Third Officer Doris Epperson, 6th service command director for the WAACs. The first company of auxiliaries, expected to arrive within the next two weeks from Fort Des Moines, Ia., will be under the command of Third Officer Edith Davis of Detroit.

The five new buildings—three barracks for 50 women each, a mess hall, and recreation lounge — are white wooden structures set in a wooded spot beside a ravine at the north end of the reservation. The cost, $100,000, represents savings effected by the use of plastics, wood, and concrete for metal, old fashioned stoves for heating the mess hall, and a finished fiber board for walls.

The recreation room, done in shocking pink, sapphire blue, and apple green, has been furnished by the Fort Sheridan Volunteers, a group of north shore women who also have furnished day rooms for the men, provided books for the post, and helped launch a post newspaper and other projects.

Mrs. Abel Davis of Glencoe and Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr. of Lake Forest, who headed the Volunteers' general fund raising campaign, are credited with making the recreation room possible. A refreshment bar and a rest room with roses painted on butter yellow walls are a part of the lounge, along with a piano, davenports, chairs, and lamps. The back room is destined to be a beauty parlor, but the furniture so far is a reconditioned barber chair. Miss Florence Clark and Miss Blanche Fulkerson, representing the American Institute of Decorators, have donated their services for the lounge.

Officers' quarters, a suite of three bedrooms, living room, orderly room, and supply room, are at one end of recreation hall. The mess hall has complete kitchen facilities even to a meat chopping block. The WAACs will do all of their own cooking and K. P. work.

Women who can qualify in the fields of medicine and finance are not only welcome but urgently needed in those two services of the WAVES, according to Lieut. Mary Daily, woman officer in charge of procurement for the 9th naval district.

Women doctors, also specialists in vital statistics, parasitology or medical research are eligible as officer candidates in the medical field. After one month of training they will be given probationary commissions, which will become permanent upon successful completion of training. Enlisted personnel in this same field must be laboratory technicians or have had experience in X-ray, occupational therapy, or physio-therapy.

Officer candidates in the financial branch—which handles supplies and accounts—are eligible for enrollment if they have had experience as office managers, bank or insurance cashiers, junior buyers, or assistants to a department head, or if they've had a background in economics or mathematics.

Women who are interested in these two specialized fields of the WAVES should write to Lieut. Daily, Board of Trade building, and ask for an interview.

The Lincoln park area of the OCD will observe the anniversary of Pearl Harbor on Friday evening, when a morale meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock at the Chicago Historical society. The subject of the meeting will be "Women Fight on Every Front." Chairman Percy Baines of the north side win-the-war committee will introduce Miss Pearl Hart, guest chairman for the evening.

The newly formed Oak Park unit of the Association of Army and Navy Wives will open headquarters in the Medical Arts building, 711 Lake street, Oak Park, next Monday. Members of the executive committee are Mrs. Earl H. Wise, Mrs. W. J. Stannard, Mrs. Lucius Cole, Mrs. Irwin P. Rieger, Mrs. A. H. Siljender, and Miss Elizabeth Anderson.

Helen Slutz, well known painter of portraits and miniatures, has turned her gift into war work by painting water color likenesses of men in the armed forces. For this she exacts no fee for herself, but requires that some member of the subject's family purchase a $100 war bond, which is presented to the subject.

Miss Slutz paints one portrait a month as her unusual contribution to the war effort. She recently completed one of Midshipman Daniel J. Raftis Jr. of Celwein, Ia., who is studying for his ensign's commission at Abbott hall.

Thru the Looking Glass

Two whacking good presents in one —that's what a recent find of ours constitutes. It's a manicure case within a case, and the outer one, we'll have you know, is as distinguished an evening bag as you could hope to find!

It struck us as an excellent idea. In these times gifts ought to do double duty whenever possible—but preferably at no sacrifice of good looks or glamor. The finger fixings in this one are tidily fitted into a removable tray. There is polish, quite good and in a lovely shade; a satiny base that makes polish last and shine for days longer, polish and cuticle remover AND some manicure oil that helps keep cuticle soft and subdued. There is also a good set of implements. A fine tempered scissors alone is a rich gift nowadays. And when these are gone there probably won't be any more!

The tray itself, fitted as it is with everything you need to keep your hard-working fingers looking ladylike and well groomed, would be nice to find under the Christmas tree. Set as it is in what can double as a stunning evening handbag, it's one of the shopper's exciting specials of the season. The bag is fine brocade, in soft pastel tones, and you can carry it of an evening with great pride. When it's not serving you for a big evening it makes a beautiful dressing table piece.

This should be one of the most popular manicure set gifts of the year. We hope its maker has lots of them. And we marvel at the price, which is unbelievably low!

To Relieve Bad Cough; Mix This Recipe, at Home

Big Saving. No Cooking. So Easy.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

This simple mixture takes right hold of a cough. For real results, you've never seen anything better. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Good Morale Also Needed on Home Front

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"So much has been written on the subject of what to do and not to do as far as keeping up the morale of the men in the service is concerned," writes Mrs. J. B. "But what about keeping up the morale of the women they leave behind? For them there is no USO. They are lonely, just as short of funds, but let one tear trickle down their cheeks and friends and relatives and neighbors say 'I told you so,' and 'that's what you get for marrying in wartime,' and 'what if he doesn't come back?' No matter how much she wants to be brave and proud, these crêpe hangers won't let her. I know

"When my husband was called into the army I kept my promise and didn't cry, until alone. We were glad I have a well paying job, and that there was no baby coming to increase our problems. Then we got a break. He was stationed near home, and I could see him fairly often. Now, months later, we have found that that baby is coming after all. We're glad! I am happier than I've ever been about anything. I know it will be hard financially, and that I'll be tied down. But I'm not afraid. I had visioned sharing my happiness with my friends, and that's where the picture went wrong. Instead of the congratulations and good wishes I expected, all I have gotten from every one is: 'How could you?' 'Why didn't you let well enough alone?' 'I'd hate to be in your shoes.' 'What did I tell you?'

"I want to talk of and plan for my baby, but no one seems to think of it as anything but a tragedy, except my husband, and he's away. Instead of dreaming happily, I cry. Why can't people understand? I don't want their financial help. But O! What it would mean to me to have just one person say: 'How wonderful!' Money couldn't buy what that would do for me! I still haven't told some, and I'm scared to now. If it weren't for my husband and mother being so happy for me, life would really be sour, just when it should be sweetest. Tell people to help us wives to smile, too!"

The Stage

—By Cecil Smith—

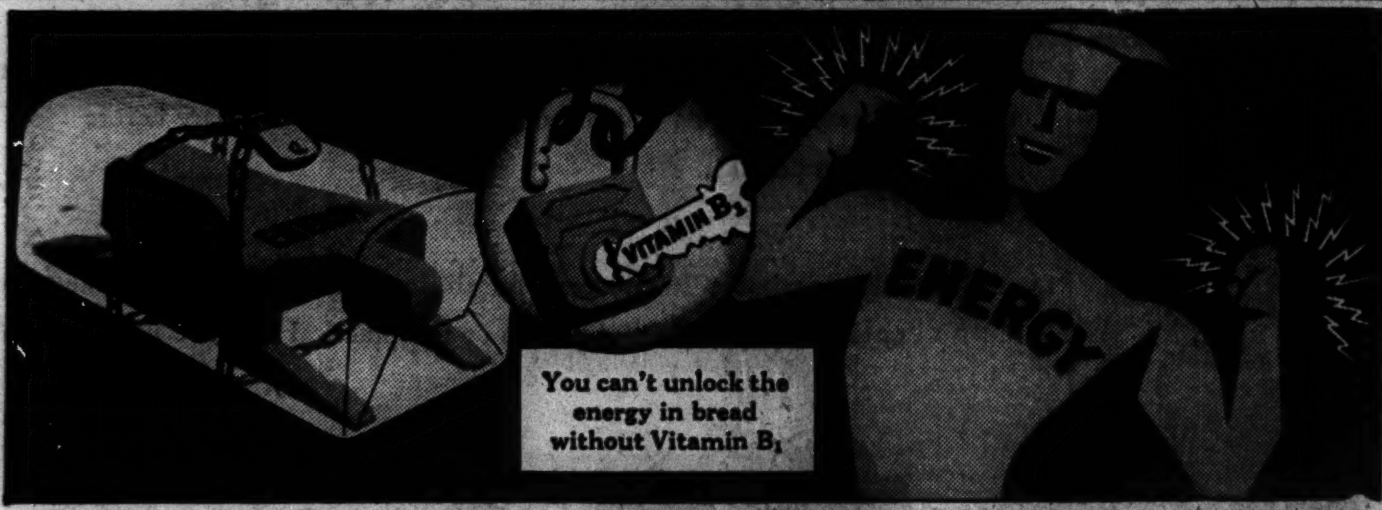
When you go to "Porgy and Bess" at the Studebaker theater, be sure to stay in your seat thru all the final curtain calls, in order to share in "The Star Spangled Banner" with the Eva Jessye choir and the singers of the cast. In their great outpouring of tone, and in Alexander Smallens' superbly singable tempo, you will lose your own inhibitions about attempting the national anthem, and you will find your voice scaling up to the high Fs as tho they were the easiest and most natural notes in the world to sing.

For sheer inspiration, both patriotic and musical, this nightly performance of the national anthem has no rival in the city, except at the concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, where Hans Lange and the players provide a similar stimulus to full-throated audience participation. The playing of the anthem at "priorities of 1942," in the Erlanger, is peppy and bright, but its quality is essentially vaudevillian, and the dignity of the music is sacrificed to mere energy and speed. The other, and smaller, theater orchestras in town usually play "The Star Spangled Banner" like a dreary duty which cannot be escaped.

The whole hearted way in which many theatrical and musical institutions have endeavored to promote good community singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" presents quite a contrast to the state of affairs during the last war. At that time the upper crust audiences in this country were more self-consciously highbrow than they are now, and they enjoyed looking down their noses at what seemed to them a proletarian enthusiasm for the national anthem.

The newspapers of 1917 raged with controversy over the inclusion of "The Star Spangled Banner" in serious concerts and theatrical events. One prominent conductor refused to conduct it, alleging that its musical values were not sufficient to permit him to do so without sacrificing his standards of taste. Readers wrote, pro and con, to the Voice of the People, and even at the end of the war the corporate mind of the people was not made up on the subject.

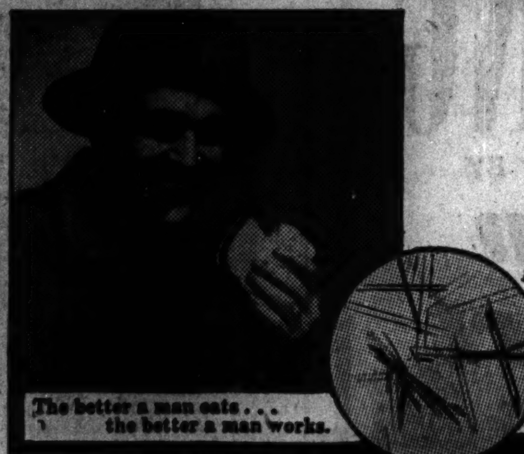
From our present point of vantage it is hard to imagine why any one should ever have objected to the sturdy, post-Handelian tune of "The Star Spangled Banner." If there are doubting Thomases left, a visit to "Porgy and Bess" is likely to straighten out their thinking.



Science Discovers Vitamin B_1 Necessary To Help Transform Bread Into Energy

Yet Of The Millions Who Rely Upon Bread For 35% Of Their Daily Energy —3 Out Of 4 Fail To Get Plenty Of Vitamin B_1, U. S. Officials Say

GOVERNMENT LOOKS TO THE WIVES AND MOTHERS OF NATION TO GIVE THEIR FAMILIES THE RIGHT KIND OF FOOD



The better a man eats . . . the better a man works.

New "Patented Flavor" Wonder Bread Now Proves Doubly Good

① Because It Contains Vitamin B_1 To Help Transform It Into Energy
② Because It Stays Fresh Longer

What everybody knows—bread is a major source of energy—millions rely upon it for 35% of their energy. But what you may not know is the scientific finding that you must have Vitamin B_1 to help transform the bread you eat into energy.

Now—according to U. S. Government Health Officials, 3 out of 4 people fail to eat the right foods for plenty of Vitamin B_1 and other health elements.

Now this does not mean that you do not get enough Vitamin B_1 so that the bread you eat every day does you no good. What it does mean is this—unless you have sufficient Vitamin B_1, you cannot properly transform bread into the energy you need.

It's Up To You

Washington experts estimate 90,000,000 man-days' work will be lost this year due to nutritional illnesses alone.

A New York State Committee estimates industrial production could be increased 25% by better food.

As Government authorities have been quick to point out—the problem will be solved when wives and mothers put better food on the table and in the lunch boxes of the nation. For example, better bread.

A New Kind Of Bread

Now, wise Mother Nature put Vitamin B_1 into wheat. But—in making bread whiter—man took it out. Then Theodore Earle patented a way to prepare wheat for milling to keep in flour more natural vitamins and minerals. Further additions provided the Vitamin B_1 needed in the bread.

It is called "patented flavor" Wonder Bread. Gone is the chalk-white look of ordinary baker's bread. Instead, this new "patented flavor" kind has the color of the cream on the top of a bottle of milk. A bread now better for flavor and better for health than before.

To obtain this amazing new "patented flavor" loaf—ask your grocer today for new Wonder Bread. And see for yourself why women everywhere are quitting ordinary white bread for this new creamy kind at the rate of over 5,000 weekly.

It's Doubly Fresh

Then too, this new "patented flavor" Wonder Bread is doubly fresh—fresh when you buy it; fresh when you eat it. Because slo-baked for lasting freshness—baked 13% longer than many ordinary kinds.

See how much longer "patented flavor" Wonder Bread stays fresh in the bread box; in the lunch box. Get it at your grocer's today. You'll be glad you did!

Only Wonder Bread has "patented flavor." Because only Wonder Bread is made this way from Earle Patented Process Flour—U. S. Pat. Nos. 2142806, 2222697, 2155219, 2222696.

INVITATIONS to parties for debutantes and brides-to-be are being delivered daily, promising a bit of gayety for the Christmas holidays and the weeks preceding them. Mr. and Mrs. John D. Farrington have sent out invitations to the debut tea of their daughter, Dorothy, on the afternoon of Dec. 26 at their Winnetka home. Miss Farrington, a graduate of Dobbs Ferry, attends Briarcliff Junior college.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kelly of Winnetka are mailing invitations to a buffet supper in their home on Dec. 27 for two other Winnetka debutantes, Miss Polly Goodrich and Miss Nancy Graff. Friends of Miss Barbara McClurg, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley's younger daughter, will be receiving invitations to a small and simple dinner-dance on Dec. 23 at the Casino. Miss McClurg, a Smith student, was introduced to Chicago society at a tea last summer. She is to have a Boston debut, too, and with four old friends, the Misses Penelope Griswold, Grace Lockwood, Joan Perrin, and Rosina Sherwood, will share a small dance on Dec. 18 at the Sheraton hotel, which is being much used for Boston debut parties this season since many of the old favorite places are no longer available.

Miss McClurg has been made a member of the Vincent club, which contributes to the support of Boston's Vincent hospital. Her elder sister, Miss Eleanor McClurg, who returns from Washington, D. C., and New York today, is a member of the same exclusive club, which gives a musical show each spring.

Two Weddings Will Take Place in Indian Hill Road.

Two weddings, a few doors apart in Indian Hill road, at about the same hour next Tuesday afternoon, are providing a round of gayety for the brides-to-be, Miss Mary Lyon and Miss Jane Shepard, and their families. Miss Lyon, daughter of the William Howard Lyons, and Gordon H. Ewen will be married at 4:30 o'clock in the Lyon residence, the Rev. Samuel D. Harkness of the Winnetka Congregational church officiating, with a reception following.

Mr. Ewen, son of Mrs. Malcolm Ewen of Evanston, is receiving his commission as a lieutenant in the army today and will return home tomorrow. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Robert Belknap of Boston, formerly of Lake Forest, and her son-in-law and daughter, the Palmer Scotts of New Bedford, are coming for the wedding, and it is hoped that Ensign Robert Belknap Jr., U. S. N. R., will be here as well. He was graduated from Yale in 1936, in the naval reserve, and enlisted for active duty on the day after Pearl Harbor. He is now on sea duty in the Atlantic.

Mrs. Victor Harding Jr. Entertains with Shower.

Mrs. Lyon's cousin, Mrs. Richard Deming of Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. August Gazenmuller of New York, who will be a bridesmaid, also will be here by the week-end. Mrs. Victor Harding Jr. gave a shower yesterday for Miss Lyon, whose sister, Kay, is to be her maid of honor, and two of the bridesmaids, Miss Nancy Bastien and Mrs. Edmund J. Doering II., are planning parties. The fourth bridesmaid is Mrs. Henry Higginbottom of Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. Lyon will give the bridal dinner at the Indian Hill club next Monday night.

Miss Shepard, daughter of Mrs. Seth Shepard, and Lieut. Kingsley Boyd, U. S. A., son of the T. Henry Boyds of New York, formerly of Evanston, will be married at 4 o'clock in the home of the bridegroom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. McNamara. Mr. McNamara's name was inadvertently omitted from the wed-

Arctic Is Next Great Frontier, Says Canadian

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

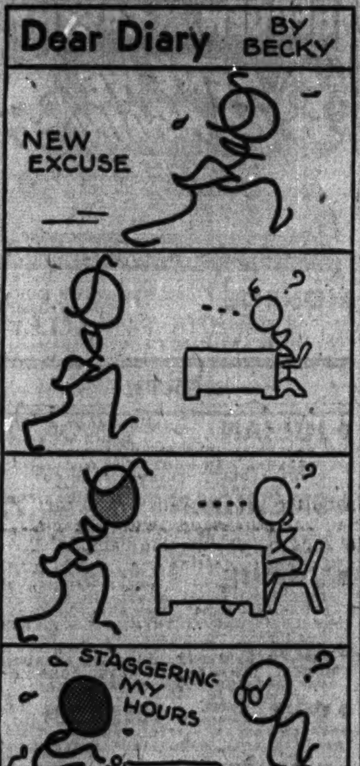
Sydney R. Montague, speaking yesterday on "Arctic Frontiers" before the Woman's Athletic club, predicted a stream of immigration to the far north after the war. A former member of the royal Canadian mounted police and one of the only 20 white men known to have traveled cross-country from Hudson's bay to the Mackenzie river, Mr. Montague told of the vast resources waiting to be tapped in northern Canada and Alaska after the present conflict.

The Yukon plateau alone could raise enough cattle to feed the entire continent, Mr. Montague said, and any one of Alaska's five huge valleys could produce eight times as much in raw material, minerals, and hydro-electric power as the Ruhr valley in Germany.

Mr. Montague visioned a bright future in transportation within the next 5 or 10 years, with transpolar planes linking the capitals of the world.

"Chicago will be the greatest air terminal in the world if you go after it," he told his audience. He said that Southampton, a flat island in Hudson's bay directly north of Chicago and larger than the state of Illinois, would make a logical concentration point for planes flying over the north pole. By flying over the pole Los Angeles is farther from Chungking, China, than Chicago is, he said.

Among those who discussed Mr. Montague's talk later over luncheon were Mrs. Fremont A. Chandler, who was hostess to the speaker at the guest table; Mrs. Alexander H. Revell Jr., Mrs. William F. Petersen, Mrs. Mark Trude, Mrs. John C. Slade, Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr., Mrs. Homer Stillwell, Mrs. Allan M. Clement, Mrs. Alvin Bastien, and Mrs. Charles Ward Seabury.



Time to Ponder on War Effort Set by Women

The Women's Supreme council of B'nai B'rith decided yesterday that the month of January should be set aside as a period for study and preparation to enter industry to relieve the labor shortage.

The action was taken in the Palmer House at the third annual midwest conference of the council, representing 50,000 women and girls. Mrs. Lenore Underwood, president of the council since its inception three years ago, reported that informative literature is now being prepared by Max Baer, national director of vocational service.

Mrs. Underwood said: "The need for vocational service and training is more apparent today than ever before. If we are to explode the theory that we 'give too little too late' we must release as many men from defense industries as possible and yet maintain full production capacity. It therefore devolves upon the women of the country to give their time and effort in this connection."

Maternity Center Group Giving Dessert Luncheon

Group two of the North Shore auxiliary of the Chicago Maternity center will give a dessert luncheon at 1 o'clock today in the home of the group's chairman, Mrs. K. A. Bevington of Evanston. Mrs. J. C. Wright will assist the hostess.

Music Notes

Jascha Heifetz, ill of pneumonia at a hospital in Atlanta, Ga., has been forced to cancel next week's scheduled performances with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He plans to appear at the concerts March 18 and 19.

A change has been made in the conductor who will take over the Studebaker's "Porgy and Bess" at the Studebaker Friday night when Alexander Smallens is guest conductor of "Carmen." It will be Charles Sanford, instead of Charles Emerson Schwartz, as previously announced.

The Marshall Field & Co. choral society will sing its 16th annual "Messiah" in the Walnut room of the department store this morning, starting at 9:45 o'clock. Edgar Nelson is the director, and soloists include Esther Hart, soprano, and R. H. Harper, bass. For the first time the performance will be "broadcast" over the store's public address system.

Handel's 'Messiah' Sung by Lutheran Chorus

The Lutheran Oratorio society, a small amateur chorus under the direction of Robert Reuper, appeared at Kimball hall last night in a performance of Handel's "The Messiah." Soloists were Paula Zwane, soprano; Gertrude Gressens substituted for Hazel Meisterling, the announced contralto; Ralph Nylund was the tenor, and Hermanns Baer, bass. Earl Mitchell, organist, was the accompanist.

Mr. Schnabel Plays for Artur and His Friends

Recital by Artur Schnabel, pianist, presented by the Musical Arts Piano series at Orchestra hall Tuesday evening, Dec. 1, 1942. The program:
Sonata, C minor [posthumous] . Schubert
Sonata, D major [K. C. 576] ...... Mozart
Sonata, A minor [K. C. 310] ...... Mozart
Sonata, B flat major [posthumous] .... Schubert

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Artur Schnabel's unusual recital of four piano sonatas packed Orchestra hall last night with an attentive audience sprinkled with students who marked their scores as if in response to revelation. And, in a way, it was as much a master class as a recital. Mr. Schnabel is never on trial before an audience—in fact, you might put it the other way around. He plays the music he wants to play the way he thinks it should be played. Either you listen, or you go home. It doesn't matter in the least to Mr. Schnabel.

This is not arrogance, nor is it even uncompromising in the sense of the inflexible. It is the mature decision of a man who has made up his mind about music and who, having settled that major matter, declines to be detoured or even deflected by the whims of the human race. If the average concertgoer wants a typical program ending with a flurry of show pieces, that is quite all right with Mr. Schnabel, providing that concertgoer goes to hear another concert.

So last night he sat with Olympian calm before his piano, leaning back comfortably in his chair, and he played Schubert and Mozart with contemplative precision that acknowledged the existence of an audience only by gravely courteous bows in response to applause—and by occasional pauses while that audience controled what seemed to be a mass attack of croup.

Having chosen such a program, he spent the evening in the subtleties of music, which he explored with fastidious precision in terms of a piano completely in command. Whether it was the galloping finale of the Schubert C minor sonata, the limpidity of the Mozart D major, the fire of the Mozart in A minor or the wonderful slow movement of the Schubert in B flat, he played them all as simply as if he were quietly at work in his own studio. Quite probably they do sound just that same way in that studious privacy, for Mr. Schnabel is no man to show one face to an audience and another to his own probing insight into what is right in music.

At Cordon Club

Those who were present at the Cordon club last evening were rewarded in good measure by the intelligent and artistic singing of Mrs. Annette Thorn Anderson, soprano. In a program that was designed to show varied musical styles Mrs. Anderson demonstrated good command of diction and a delightfully colored mezzo voce and pianissimo; she had somewhat less success with her full voice, especially in its upper register which showed rather less control of color and dynamics. This latter portion of the singer's voice had a tendency toward stridency in brilliant passages, tho in half voice use of it she contrived some delicate singing that was certainly pleasant to hear.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Admonition.

Noting the appeal for Red Cross evening workers for surgical dressings, a reader says it in rhyme:

Praise the Lord and
Read this admonition:
One and all,
Dressings are our mission!
Urgent is the need and Chicago workers all
Together must stand
In answering the call!
Only eight million by the end of December.
Now can we do it? Sure! Ask any member!

Morale with Music.

Ruth Kelso Peterson, "commonly known as Polly or just hey you" [she says], sends along some information which she prefaces with the remark: "You have been wondering out loud what white collar girls do with their off evenings, if any. I know some young women, busy with responsible daytime positions and extra curricular war work, who give many of their too few spare hours to build morale with music. They play with the Oak Park-River Forest Symphony orchestra, a group of some 80 musicians who tootle on their own time to give four concerts each year. These young women hold a diversity of jobs: Mary Brant is a registered nurse who is doing emergency nursing at the Chicago quartermaster depot; June Clark is a laboratory technician at St. Luke's hospital; Vera Blazek, a claim adjuster for a life insurance company; Doris Carey, a draftsman for a company which makes hydraulic pumps; Marie Goyette, a music supervisor in a Berwyn school; Dorothy Sutton, a bookkeeper in a large bank; Pauline Curtis, a stenographer for a steel company; her sister, Mabel, is a comptometer operator; Eda Rae is a secretary; Dorothy Rice, a switchboard operator; Katherine McDonald, a grade school music teacher; Helen Post works in the advertising department of a publishing firm, and even Gladys Welge, the director, is a white collar girl."

The Summing Up.

Walter Dietz: "Leading instead of bossing—teaching instead of telling—listening more, talking and arguing less—more frankness and less diplomacy—starting with trust in place of suspicion—understanding instead of logic."

Gladys Torson: "The technique of bringing a man to the point of offering you a job is important for a prospective secretary to master because a secretary without a job is like a duck dinner without the duck. It is probably as difficult a technique to learn as the one of landing a husband, and just as important if you need a job."

Donald A. Laird: "As Confucius might have said: Woman is good to work for one; it is harder to work with one, and most difficult of all for them to work together."

INSTALMENT XVI.

TOM'S STORY.

"Mr. Plaice is here, inspector, if you'd like to speak with him," Walter suggested. "He stayed the night instead of returning to the Falcon."

The inspector nodded and a few minutes later Jayson Plaice came into the little anteroom, where the two detectives were conducting the interviews. He looked done in, as if he had not slept, and his manner was quietly subdued to just the proper key as he greeted the two men.

He seemed a little puzzled by their questions, but he answered readily enough. Yes, Miss Devlin had started for a walk yesterday afternoon, but he had persuaded her to stay home and rest up for the wedding. No, he couldn't remember just what time it was. Between 4 and 5 some time. He'd been around the house himself until about 5:30 and then he had returned to the Falcon.

Alice Devlin, who was ushered in a few minutes later, looked on the verge of collapse, and was even more garrulously nervous than usual. As a witness she was almost completely useless, because she reversed her testimony a dozen times.

Yes, Tessa had told her she was going for a walk, but she hadn't actually seen her go because just then the florist—no, it was the caterer—no, no, that was all wrong, too, because it was after she had spoken to the caterer about the lunch cloth that she had seen Tessa. That must have been 4—no, 4:30, or was it?—because. . .

Steelman gave up and asked for Mr. William Boomer. He appeared so quickly that it was suspicious.

"Heard you asking Alice and Jay about that walk o' Tessa's," he explained cheerfully to account for what was undoubtedly just plain eavesdropping. "She never went. Started to but Jay wouldn't let her. Stopped her just as she was going out the music room door. At least I think he stopped her. I got called away just about then. Had to keep an eye on things here to keep the missus from upsetting 'em too much. You think she done it? I mean the murder?"

"Are you referring to Mrs. Devlin?"

"O, good lord, no. Alice can't think two thoughts in succession straight, let alone keepin' still about 'em after. I mean Tessa."

"You must understand, Mr. Boomer——"

"Call me Uncle Billy."

". . . understand, Mr. Boomer," Steelman insisted, "that we are accusing no one until we have made a proper investigation. We are seeking now to ascertain the facts."

"Baloney," Uncle Billy said, and his lips under his scraggy little gray moustache took on a skeptical line. "You remind me o' Elmer. Elmer Schreckengast. Friend o' mine. Elmer always says——"

Steelman found Uncle Billy suddenly irritating, and cut thru with a sharp question.

"May I ask, Mr. Boomer, whether you are Mr. Devlin's uncle or Mrs. Devlin's?"

"Neither one. I'm just everybody's uncle. I'd be yours even, if I'd a mind to."

"Meaning?"

"'Son'," Steelman snorted. Nunn chuckled. "Incidentally, Nunn, just who is he? What's his position in this house?"

Nunn promptly produced a flock of local details which ten years of operation in the Stapleton district had stored in the card index of his brain. Uncle Billy Boomer, more or less attached to the Devlin household for the past 12 years. Dabbled unsuccessfully in a lot of businesses including Stapleton real estate. Had sold Mrs. Carson her cottage last October.

Steelman was still mulling over that last point when Thomas Devlin entered. He shared the worn, run-thru-the-wringer appearance of the rest of the household.

He answered Steelman's inquiries about his daughter with weary monosyllables. He couldn't remember seeing her after he first greeted her on her return from the yacht along with Mrs. Devlin and Plaice. He had been very busy, naturally. He recalled the telegram incident, tho.

"It was in a bunch which Walter brought into the library. As soon as I leafed thru them I realized that there was one that didn't belong here, and I rang and handed it over to Walter and directed him to telephone the telegraph office."

"How was it addressed?"

"Just Mrs. Phoebe Carson, Old Lane Road, Stapleton."

"Tell me, Mr. Devlin, did any of you here know Mrs. Carson?"

"My wife, of course. She has known her for years. Always had her dresses made at Phoebe, Inc."

"And your daughter?"

"They met once, I believe, at the shop."

"And you?"

Devlin smiled and shook his head ruefully. "Only in a financial way. I just signed the checks."

"But what I mean," Steelman persisted, "is out of the shop, as a person, not as a dressmaker."

Devlin shook his head again.

"But here's a funny thing. Two or three weeks ago, I understand, Mrs. Carson called here."

Steelman's eyebrows went up. "And what did she want?"

"I don't know. I wasn't home at the time. Walter was the only one who spoke to her and she asked for me."

"Did she state her business?"

"No. She just said she'd call again. She came again the next afternoon, but I still wasn't in."

Steelman and Nunn were about to move on to the next port of call—Tessa Devlin—when the inspector suddenly remembered something.

"By the way, Devlin, just who is the old fellow who acts like he owned the place?"

Devlin smiled again that rueful smile. "You mean Uncle Billy?"

"Yes. Who is he and where'd he come from?"

"I knew him years ago. He once saved me from getting swept away in a landslide back in my prospecting days up north, so I've always had a soft spot in my heart for him. Ten or 12 years ago when he was down on his luck, I offered him a home here and he has been with us ever since."

"A rather exasperating old fellow to have around, I should think." That "son" still rankled in Steelman's soul.

"That's what my wife thinks, but she puts up with him for my sake."

"Funny," Steelman pointed out, "but he's the one responsible for Mrs. Carson's appearance in Stapleton. He sold her the place."

They had expected to see her in bed, still numbed by opiates, but she was dressed and standing albeit unsteadily, by the dresser as they knocked.

Her voice when she called, "Come," was steady even to hardness, but it was a hardness that was merely the thin enamel overlaying emotion which surged dangerously close to the surface.

Inspector Steelman and Detective Nunn paused in the doorway and looked at Tessa Devlin.

She stood there, one hand clutching the corner of the dresser and tragedy clung to her like an aura. Her face was deadly pale and her eyes were two dulled, staring circles as if she were still stunned by the memory of horror.

But she gave the two men before her glance for glance. She wasn't surprised. She wasn't startled. It was as if she had been waiting for them, knowing that some time they must come, longing with an awful weariness to have it over with.

She made a gesture and they seated themselves and she sank onto a bench in front of the dresser.

"You're—the police?" She saved them the trouble of explanations and introductions.

Steelman nodded. "We must ask you some questions."

"I know. You mean about—last night?"

"Yes, last night. But first tell me something about yesterday afternoon. You started to go for a walk?"

"Yes."

"At what time?"

"I don't know. Four o'clock. Perhaps half past."

"By what door did you propose leaving the house?"

"The east door, thru the music room."

"And you crossed the main foyer to get there?"

"Yes, I suppose so."

"Did you stop in the foyer for anything?"

"No, I don't think—I don't remember stopping in the foyer."

"Do you know anything of a telegram addressed to Mrs. Phoebe Carson which was delivered at this house by mistake yesterday afternoon?"

Her dulled eyes widened a little. "No. Was there?"

Tantrums Are Not Serious; Can Be Cured

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

You may remember that some days ago we told a story about a little boy who was out walking with the woman who was taking care of him, and who flopped right down on the sidewalk on a much traveled avenue and had a fine, big, loud tantrum.

In talking about it we went at some length into causes. Today I want to sum up and at the same time write in a more definite and concise way on the subject in a way that you can actually check on with a pencil if you care to clip out this column. Here we go, with short paragraphs for convenient checking:

Tantrums are only a behavior symptom of something awry in a child's reaction to his environment or more likely to the way he is managed.

Tantrums and tiredness go hand in hand. Watch and you'll see.

Tantrums and blocking or frustration go hand in hand almost always.

Tantrums and being hungry often go hand in hand tho the child doesn't know it. You're the one to check for a possible connection.

Tantrums and low physical tone may go hand in hand. We who are wise at all know that self-control drops as such things as chronic fatigue mount.

Tantrums and pent up energy go hand in hand. The child who is restricted on every hand sometimes uses these explosions as an outlet.

Tantrums are by no means necessary. By that I mean that they are not something you must expect of your child like dawdling, the "no" habit, the importation of startling "bad" words. But if tantrums do appear, scout around and see what you can put your finger on as a possible cause. Every kind of behavior has a cause.

To do this, notice when the tantrums appear, as to actual time or certain circumstances.

Do they come most often before a much needed nap or bedtime? If so, handle your child tactfully at the moment, and also see that she gets caught up on sleep or arrange for an earlier bed hour.

Do the tantrums come during play, in block building or working some complicated toy or running an engine that topples over? Then perhaps the toy is too difficult or badly made. Get the right playthings for your child's age and well made ones, too. We have suggestions. But sometimes a little help from you will untangle a trouble that the young child may not be equal to alone.

Do the tantrums come when your child is hungry or following a too light previous meal? Hunger pangs are real pangs. Scrutinize your schedule. Perhaps meals should be a little fuller or closer together. Also look out for "hidden hunger." Lots of children even today are undernourished as far as essential minerals and vitamins are concerned.

Too much indoor play or a rainy spell or putting the lid on is stultifying. It bottles up energy which may explode in the form of a tantrum. Notice this and plan for it. An indoor romp is possible on a rainy day or you might even fix the children up in boots, rainclothes, and umbrellas and let them go out for a short time. That sometimes works magic.

Low physical tone due to some ailment, or poor eating and sleeping, and insufficient outdoors play may little child's dinner or supper is late cause lack of nervous or emotional balance which shows itself in tantrums. Look over your child's day, but don't forget a regular physical checkup by a doctor.

Remember, tantrums are a symptom. Remove the cause.

The best way to get the green, leafy vegetables you need every day for good nutrition is in salads. Simple combinations of greens with a sharp oil, vinegar, salt and pepper dressing are best. The markets now offer a good deal of variety in greens.

Some Simple Green Salads.

1. Shred spinach, after washing well and drying, and toss with French dressing and a little minced onion. Hot bacon dressing is wonderful on shredded spinach, if you have the bacon for it. This amount will dress greens for six: Dice and cook 4 strips bacon, add ⅛ small onion, minced, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup vinegar, and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Pour over spinach while hot.

2. Shred head lettuce and add about a fourth as much clean, crisp watercress and a sliced green onion or two. Add well seasoned French dressing and toss.

3. Combine broken pieces of curly endive with shredded spinach or crisp pieces of watercress and add a French dressing seasoned with onion juice, and one or two hard cooked eggs, chopped fine.

4. Cut head lettuce into pieces and toss with French dressing to which finely chopped green pepper and onion, and crumbled blue cheese have been added.

5. Line a salad bowl with cold, clean sprigs of watercress and chicory. Place in one part of the bowl thin crisp slices of raw cauliflower which have been marinated in French dressing for an hour. Next arrange sliced pickled beets, or beets which have marinated in French dressing. Next to the beets arrange short celery curls. You make them by cutting 2 inch pieces of celery, fringing both ends and chilling in ice water until the ends curl. Place tomato wedges next, then a pile of crisp carrot sticks. Pass a dressing separately.

6. Arrange sliced celery cabbage on watercress, chopped spinach or broken curly endive. Add French dressing seasoned with chili sauce and chopped onion.

7. Combine as many greens as you can obtain in a salad bowl, for example, shredded lettuce, spinach, broken curly endive, sliced celery cabbage. Add sliced radishes, carrot curls, green pepper rings, and toss with tomato French dressing.

To make this dressing [a quart] combine 1 can condensed tomato soup, ¾ cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1½ cups salad oil, ¼ cup sugar, the juice of 1 lemon, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons mustard, and ¼ teaspoon black pepper. Shake or beat together and keep in a covered jar in the refrigerator to use as needed.

8. Mix equal parts sour cream and well seasoned French dressing and use to dress lettuce, spinach, watercress, curly endive, or any combination of these greens. Onion and green pepper rings are good additions to the leaves.

9. Mix equal parts finely shredded cabbage and sprigs of watercress. Add finely cut raw cauliflower, thin carrot slices, sliced radishes, and green onions. Toss with sharp French dressing.

10. Combine diced avocado, watercress, curly endive, sliced radishes, and grapefruit or orange sections. Toss with sharp French dressing.

The Housewife

Never mind if your living room doesn't have a fireplace. You can buy one ready made from the modest sum of $1 to $49.95. The dollar fireplace is of heavy paper made to look like red bricks and has a little mantel. For only a trifle more there is one that looks very much like dark walnut, but is of composition. And for around $23 there is a good looking one of real wood finished in cream white with facing and hearth of imitation marble. All these fireplaces are artificial and can't be used for a real fire. EDITH WEIGLE.

Poet Alfred Noyes to Be Carroll Forum Speaker

The Charles Carroll forum will present Alfred Noyes, the British poet, in a lecture at 3:30 o'clock Sunday in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House. "Literature and Life" will be the theme of Dr. Noyes' talk.

Styles for Youthful Figures

GIRLS' AND MISS' FASHIONS.

Certain styles are the prerogative of slim, youthful figures, and such are the models in today's two patterns. They're grand for "dates" and other informal social affairs.

Style No. 2630 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 8 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 inch material with ⅛ yard for belt.

Style No. 3558 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards of 39 inch fabric with ⅜ yard contrasting.

Each pattern costs 10 cents, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost.

Those broken scissors do you no good. If you have metal sewing implements which are beyond repair, toss them into the scrap drive.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost (coin preferred—wrap it carefully), for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT: Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The autumn pattern book costs 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 1.—It's dollars to doughnuts that when the story of Dr. Wassell gets rolling, Gary Cooper will be playing the star part. You'll never guess who gets the second lead. None other than Eddie Bracken. He's doing nip-ups over his good fortune. And working for De Mille is good fortune, as I found out when he made me look as nature intended me to look but didn't in "Reap the Wild Wind." Of course, this takes Bracken out of Bob Hope's "Let's Face It," which Bob will do in the near future, because both Bob's and Kay Kyser's trip overseas have been postponed.

Good News.

Frances Goldwyn is blooming since her New York trip. Tells me most beautiful girl there is Irving Berlin's 16 year old daughter, Mary Ellen. She's got everything. So has Irving, except that congressional medal which I thought he'd get during his stay in Washington, but I find he didn't. . . . Speaking of "This Is the Army," if Clark Gable consents to be in it, a special sequence won't be written for Gable, the star. He'll be just another member of the chorus—part of the army. . . . Actress Miriam Hopkins tells me Katharine Hepburn is a good housekeeper, too. She left Miriam's house shining like a newly scrubbed baby. . . . Edgar Selwyn is writing his autobiography, and will call it "My Brother Archie" by Edgar Selwyn.

The Last Straw.

Famous dress Designer Valentina arrived here with three of her prize creations for Ginger Rogers. They were all tested. Only one made the grade. Naturally she was downhearted when along came Frank Richardson, head of wardrobe, hoping to console her by saying, "Don't worry—we'll use the dresses on models." 'Twas then she cried out loud. . . . Writer Alfred Wright never got a scratch when he was in the Solomons. On his return he attended a Park avenue party, got into a row with Peter Arno. In the mêlée, a vase was knocked over, which cut a huge gash in Alfred's leg. . . . Seems Diana Barrymore has the peculiar family habit of coughing and hacking her way thru a scene. After working with her, Robert Cummings said, "You know, there's nothing wrong with any Barrymore that a good dose of cough medicine wouldn't cure!"

Others Didn't Matter.

Eddie Cantor tells of an incident at the Hollywood canteen. A big private, looking for all the world like the late Louis Wolheim, came up to Eddie and said, "Where's Garbo?" Eddie said, "I'm sure I don't know." "You mean she ain't here?" "Why, no!" stammered Eddie. "Then to hell with it!" and he walked out. . . . In speaking of gold, Eddie claims you'll find it in Jack Benny's bed. He's got the only mattress in town that goes jingle-jangle-jingle.

Praise Indeed.

When Sam Goldwyn saw Noel Coward's picture in "In Which We Serve," he yelled, "Get me that cameraman. I want to put him under a life contract." . . . After Lady Halifax saw the film, she exclaimed, "I fell so desperately sorry for all the mothers." Two hours later she had news of the death of her own son. . . . I hear the picture's technically perfect, and it's got Hollywood in a dither. Over there, all the props and the technical things are owned by the government—have to be given back when the picture's finished. But if they can turn out films like this during war, Hollywood, which still has everything, had better look to its laurels.

Good Luck Again.

John Golden will produce the life of the Goldbergs on the stage. It's the famous radio show, written by Gertrude Berg, who also plays the lead. After it hits Broadway, Hollywood will again be beating a path to her door, forgetting that it didn't treat her very well when she was here making a picture they hope you'll forget called "Make a Wish." . . . The only person who got a C card at my ration board while I was there was a politician. Might have known they'd come under the heading of an essential industry. . . . Harry Ritz tells me that as soon as he and his brothers make another picture at Universal, they're going overseas again. . . . John Garfield left for Ohio today. He'll sell war bonds in all war plants thruout the state, also appear at camps, and hopes to be sent overseas.

Stardust Helps.

Had a note from a soldier in a southern camp, claiming there was a guy there who said he was once married to Bette Davis. "We think he's a phoney. Please tell us the truth. His name is Ham Nelson." I wrote back 'twas true. Now Ham is the hero of the troop. . . . Producer Nunnally Johnson wants Crown Princess Martha of Norway to be guest of honor at first showing of "The Moon Is Down." . . . Jackie Coogan, here on leave, and Betty Grable were cutting rugs at the Palladium. . . . Lionel Stander, who played those comedy clucks in pictures before hitting for Broadway, is back, and doing a straight dramatic rôle in "Unconquered." In fact, he gets killed in it. . . . In view of the recent disaster, I'm surprised that no company has started a picture titled "Cocoanut Grove."

ding invitations in the confusion of arranging the ceremony on a few days' notice. Mrs. Boyd has arrived from New York and is staying with the McNamaras, and Mr. Boyd will arrive Saturday. Also expected is the bride's aunt, Mrs. John Faison of Brooklyn, N. Y. The bridegroom will not arrive until Monday, however, in time for the bridal supper to be given by Mrs. Percy Green and Mrs. William Warfield III., at the latter's home.

Miss Jeanne Mitchell, who will attend Miss Shepard, and Miss Elizabeth Attridge are giving a red and white kitchen shower on Friday. Lieut. Boyd's best man is to be Lieut. John D. Farrington Jr., U. S. A. As his debutante sister is arriving on Dec. 14, they will have a short reunion before Lieut. Farrington's leave is over. He will arrive next Monday from his army camp to be here until Dec. 17.

Marjorie Green Engaged to Jerry George Michael.

From Mr. and Mrs. John E. Green of Babylon, N. Y., comes the announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Marjorie Bell, to Jerry George Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Michael of Geneva. Miss Green is a senior at the Universty of Michigan, from which Mr. Michael was graduated in September. He now is attending an army air corps officers' training school.

Mr. Michael's brother, Bruce Michael, is a master pilot with an airlines company, flying transports in the Pacific, was among the many who joined in the search for Capt. Edward V. Rickenbacher. The Michaels' daughter, Betty, is at home with them while her husband, a captain in the army medical corps, is serving in Africa.

Friends of the junior I. Newton Perrys will gather at the senior Mrs. Perry's apartment on Saturday afternoon to bid "Newt" farewell. He departs the next day for Santa Ana, Cal., to begin training with the army air corps, leaving his pretty wife with his mother for the time being. Young Mr. Perry broke up his orchestra last May when he enlisted in the air corps and has been waiting ever since to be called.

Byrne-Cudney Wedding Taking Place Saturday.

The Harold N. Cudneys of the Medinah club are telephoning invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Jean, and Ensign Paul V. Byrne Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Byrne of the south side, on Saturday. The ceremony, which was arranged quickly, will take place at 11 o'clock in the Holy Name cathedral, with a reception that afternoon from 3 until 7 o'clock in the Cudney apartment. The bride will be attended by her sisters, Nancy, Dorothy, and Patricia, and by the bridegroom's sister, Miss Loretta Byrne, and their cousin, Miss Adelaide Byrne of California. Ensign Byrne and his bride will go to Pensacola, Fla., where he will be given his orders. He just has received his wings in the naval air corps.

Invitations have been received for the marriage of Miss Jean Ford Ginter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ginter of Evanston, and Lieut. William L. Monro III, son of Mrs. Monro Jr. of Pittsburgh, Pa. The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock on Sunday in St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Evanston, with a reception following at the Shawnee Country club. Lieut. Monro and his bride will live in Spartanburg, S. C. near his post, Camp Croft.

Service Club's Benefit Returns $11,074 Profit.

At a meeting of the Service club yesterday it was announced that the organization netted $11,074.49 from its benefit performance of the Ice Follies in October. Of that amount, the army and navy relief societies will receive 10 per cent each, and the club's list of charities will divide the remainder.

Mr. and Mrs. Whipple Jacobs and the John Schlotterbecks earned $376 for the Greek War Relief society at a cocktail party last Saturday in the Jacobses' apartment in the Seneca.

Members of the Illinois Opera guild will hear a talk by Ruth Page on "Opera and the Ballet" at 11 o'clock today at the Arts club. The special guests at luncheon following will be Giovanni Martinelli, Jan Kiepura, Carlo Morelli, Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Peroni, Mrs. Fortune Gallo, Mrs. John Charles Thomas, Miss Page, ballet director, and Patricia Bowman, prima ballerine of the opera ballet. They will be introduced by Mrs. James G. McMillan, president of the guild.

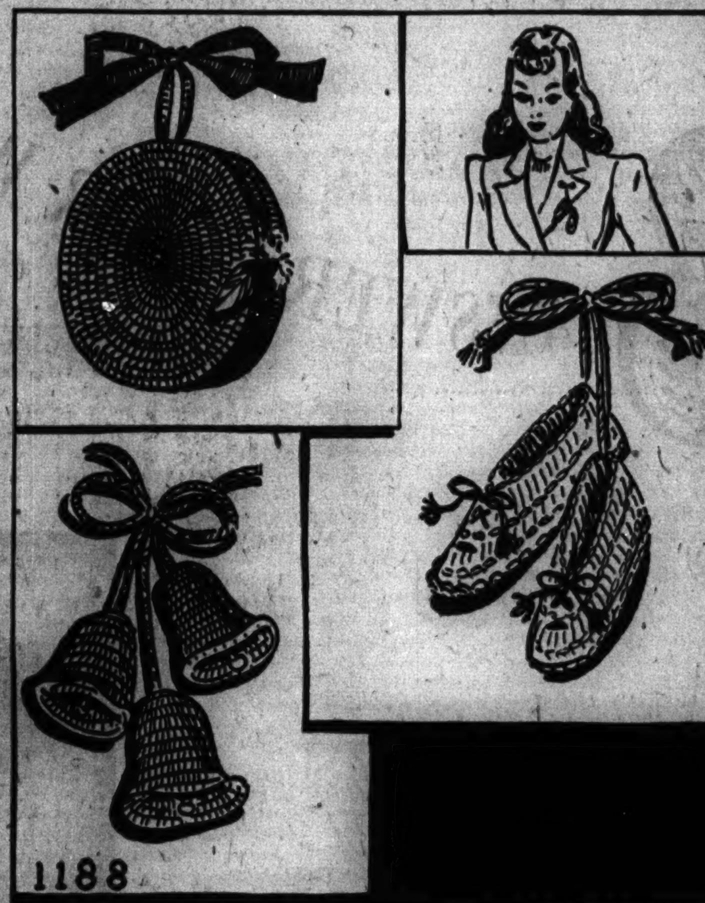
Lapel Ornamentation



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted lapel ornaments are exciting little accoutrements to the present day fashion for women and children. These crocheted items consist of a pair of shoes, a pill box hat, and three tiny bells. They are easy to make, an ideal gift suggestion. They require little time to make and a group of three offers a variety for any mood.

For instructions in crocheting the lapel ornaments, No. 1188, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents to cover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

When a vulnerable team is ready and able to bid a slam against non-vulnerable opponents, it should make every effort to discourage the opponents from "sacrificing." The potential value of the slam and rubber bonus is so great that it is rarely possible to penalize the non-vulnerable enemy a commensurate amount. Note South's crafty bidding in the following deal:

East, dealer.
Rubber bridge.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ J 8 5
♥ A K J 10 6 4 3
♦ 6

WEST
♠ 10 7 6 3 2
♥ 8
♦ K 10 9 8
♣ 8 6 4

EAST
♠ A K Q 9 4
♥ 9 5
♦ 5 4 3 2
♣ A J

SOUTH
♠ None
♥ Q 7 2
♦ A Q J 7
♣ K Q 10 7 3 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	2 clubs	Pass	3 hearts
3 spades	4 clubs	4 spades	Pass
Pass	5 hearts	5 spades	Pass
Pass	6 hearts	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

The first round of bidding requires little comment. South did not make a takeout double of the spade bid because he wanted a heart bid, if any, to come from North as a voluntary measure. If South doubled and North made the forced response of two hearts, South would have no idea of how far he could bid in support, since his own hearts would be urgently needed for spade ruffs and since North's heart suit might be extremely sketchy. The moment, however, that North not only entered the bidding freely with a heart call, but showed the strength of suit to jump from two clubs to three hearts, South was convinced that a slam was the next thing to certain. But at the same time he realized all too well that if he were to leap directly to that slam, the non-vulnerable opponents, who were marked with great length in spades, would be very apt to "save" at six spades. This, South was extremely anxious to forestall. So, far from showing great enthusiasm for partner's hearts, he deliberately refrained from supporting the suit at all on the second round, choosing instead to rebid the clubs. He felt absolutely sure that if West passed, North, who had been able to bid three hearts in response to a simple two club overcall, would now be able to bid four hearts after South had rebid at the four level.

West's belated support of spades made it impossible for North to come in with the expected four heart call, but South was now more convinced than ever that he had better go slowly if he expected to buy the contract. It was difficult to restrain himself and bid only five hearts when he felt that twelve tricks would be sure, but he managed this feat in the interest of strategy. To his eventual satisfaction, his campaign worked out perfectly. West bid five spades as a sacrifice, but then when South in his turn overcalled this with six hearts, West naturally felt that he had better leave the final decision to his partner, the opening bidder.

Obviously enough, East would have been shrewd to extend the sacrifice efforts to the six level, but in his defense it must be pointed out that South had made the heart slam "sound doubtful." Actually, of course, there was no defense against the slam contract.

Good Morning!

This is a more or less diverting piece of nonsense according to your mood.

It's comedy—if you think so—and is pleasing to the eyes because of smart settings, artistic photography, suave costuming. . . . The acting is in the hands of experts who make all there is to be made of featherweight rôles.

The O so debonair Mr. Ameche portrays the son of a South American rubber planter, in New York to obtain a 2 million dollar rubber contract and show papa that he has what it takes—which papa doubts. . . . Miss Bennett is June, an heiress suddenly bereft of her money and forced to rent her apartment. . . . Pedro enters her scheme of things when he comes to inspect her place. . . .

She is mistaken by him for a maid and forthwith engaged as his housekeeper. . . . Which puts June on a spot—she, of course, not having the faintest idea how to cook, work a vacuum, or run a fine seam. . . .

Enters June's jealous friend Helen to complicate matters and persuade Pedro that Miss Delaney, who's really going to town to help him put across his deal, is an A1 two-timer. . . . For a time the renter, who, in the meantime, has learned his housekeeper's true identity, believes the worst. BUT—H. E.!

Zat's zat.

See you tomorrow.

Delightful seasonings, too. And rich egg noodles made from Gold Medal Durum Flour. Enough ingredients in every package for six large bowlfuls! A thrifty soup, easy to make, and so delectable. My staff and I recommend this product to you. Won't you try it?

IRISH MENACE GREAT LAKES BID FOR 7 IN ROW

ABC CHAMPION ENTERS ALL-STAR BOWLING TOURNEY

STANLEY JOINS FIELD OF 100 IN BENEFIT EVENT

Open Play Saturday in Auditorium.

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

A champion and an ex-champion were among those whose names were added yesterday to the list of bowlers who will compete in the National All-Star tournament starting Saturday in the Auditorium Theater Service Men's center. Their names were presented at a meeting at which the general committee completed the schedule and prepared to list the competitors on squads.

The champion involved is John Stanley, who took part in the Cleveland elimination and who learned only yesterday that he would be able to make the trip to Chicago. Stanley is American Bowling congress singles champion, having dropped 756 pins with games of 258, 253, and 245 in last spring's tournament in Columbus. The ABC runner-up also will be in the All-Star field. He is Nelson Burton of St. Louis, who posted a 745 total at Columbus.

Braskich to Commute.

The ex-champion is young Charley Johnson of Bayonne, N. J., former American junior champion. Charley has competed thruout the nation and rolled high scores in a number of matches in Chicago.

Also added to the list was Joe Braskich of Valparaiso, Ind., who plans to commute, coming to Chicago to bowl after work each day. Braskich formerly bowled here.

Champion Ned Day arrived in Chicago yesterday and said he planned to roll not only his 90 game match with Johnny Crimmins of Detroit, but would shoot in the sweepstakes on Friday also. The sweeps will take place Friday afternoon and thruout the evening. The field will be limited to All-Stars, who will bowl four games each, and to 12 women's teams, the leading 12 teams in the Congress Women's All-Star league. The women's teams are scheduled to go on at 7 p. m. and to shoot three games each on pairs of alleys.

Crimmins Also in Sweeps.

The sweeps, designed to break in the alleys, which only yesterday got their last coat of shellac, also have attracted Crimmins. Both Johnny and Ned will shoot on night squads.

The mammoth Auditorium theater is to be decorated in the national colors for the event, and when ready for the show undoubtedly will prove the most distinguished center ever to house a bowling tournament. Fifteen rows of orchestra seats have been removed for the alleys and approaches.

The field of 100 All-Stars will bowl daily over a period of more than 13 hours, with only 45 minutes between afternoon and evening performances. The first squad of the day will go on for its five games at 11 a. m. and will be followed at 75 minute intervals by the next four squads, the fifth ending at 5:15.

Varipapa Meets Gramer.

Day and Crimmins will bowl 15 games daily, five in the afternoon and 10 in the evening. They will go on, using alleys 5 and 6 or 7 and 8, with the 2:45 squad each afternoon. Their first five-game evening block will start at 7:15 and the second at 9:45. The alleys assigned them will be used exclusively by them.

Andy Varipapa, teacher of the Tribune Bowling school, yesterday made it plain that he is still the teacher and Earl Gramer, North Dakota match game champion, is still the pupil. Bowling a match against Gramer, who is here to shoot as an All-Star, Andy piled up a 664 count against his for-

Baseball's Big Night in Chicago Loop

Corp. Johnny Beazley, St. Louis Cards' pitcher, who recaptured some of last season's baseball glory when he received the J. Louis Comiskey Memorial plaque last night at the Chicago baseball writers' show in the Morrison hotel. The award is for the outstanding rookie of the year. With Corp. Beazley is Billy Southworth, Cards' manager.

Writers' Show Peps Up Big League Session

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Attendance at the fifth Diamond dinner of the Chicago chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in the Morrison hotel last night became an overflow affair even before the hundreds of guests terminated what was billed on the formal program as the "Grand Assembly at the Mahogany."

The dinner and frolic, held in the Terrace Casino, usually has been limited to 400, but the presence of the major and minor league conventions in session in the Palmer House this week together with the entertainment reputation of the performers on last night's program, boomed the function to the point that early yesterday more than double the usual attendance was assured. The sellout sign was hung up at 6:30 o'clock, four hours before Charley Grimm and Bob Lewis, perennial stars of the show, made their first appearance of the evening.

Beazley Gets Comiskey Award.

Highlighting the dinner section of the night's didoes was the presentation of the J. Louis Comiskey Memorial award to Corp. Johnny Beazley as the rookie of the year. It was Pvt. Beazley just before he left for Chicago to receive the trophy but the star of the 1942 season was authorized to sew on his chevrons while en route from his air force assignment in Nashville, Tenn. Award of the trophy was made to the St. Louis Cards' pitcher by Howard Roberts, chairman of the writers' outfit.

A considerable number of distinguished guests from the armed forces and from baseball's official family were introduced by Warren Brown, toastmaster, after which the function moved on to the more playful episodes.

Tommy Richardson, president of the Eastern league and one of the pet story tellers of the filet mignon league as well, effected the transition from the banquet pomp to the frolic stage.

It's Judge Landis, Suh!

The "Educational Movie" was a startling composite of clippings from many of Lew Fonseca's American league movies, with Bill Anson and Jess Kirkpatrick of W-G-N supplying the voices and sound effects. The plot and dialog, very frank in nature, were written by members of the Chicago chapter of ball writers. While the film showed baseball notables in serious poses, they were made to say very quaint things in quaint ways. Judge Landis, for instance, speaking in a rich southern drawl, told a bedtime story. Ted Williams discussed Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon in startling double talk.

The cinema presented Connie Mack and Clark Griffith as a couple of traveling salesmen trying to get a room in a crowded Washington hotel. Other subject matter was handled in a similar vein.

One of the hits of the show was a radio audience quiz show in which Jack Ryan impersonated the Doc who propounds the questions. For the right answers Dr. Ryan gave such prizes as a "deed to the St. Louis ball park," the "Phils franchise," etc.

Grimm and Lewis Star.

Grimm and Lewis, the featured stars of the production, made appearances in two riotous travesties. The former Cub manager and the present Cub secretary, well known to all baseball folk, clowned as never before.

Virtually all major league managers were present to see Grimm in a mimicry of their own diversified ways of yelping at umpires. Lewis played the part of an umpire to throw Grimm into a series of caricatures of the long suffering baseball skippers.

YANKS REPORTED ANGLING FOR LEE, SOX SOUTHPAW

Philadelphia Awarded All Star Game July 7.

Set All-Star Date

THE 1943 major league all-star game will be played July 7 in Philadelphia, the American league announced last night. It will be held in Shibe park where both the Athletics and Phils play. It was the American league's turn to pick the site.

Only the one game will be played. This year, after the American league won the 10th all-star game from the National league in the Polo Grounds, it played the following night in Cleveland against a service team. Receipts again will be turned over to the Bat and Ball fund which provides equipment for service camps.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The big league magnates, separated according to leagues, conferred privately for hours yesterday at the Palmer House in the openers of their annual winter meetings. They were able to announce only that they had toyed with such items as the construction of the baseball, the number of night games and the suggested reduction of the player limit for the 1943 season.

They also considered suggestions for the further promotion of service funds in behalf of which they performed notably last season. But the matter of long training trips, which, according to the advice still officially awaited from Joseph B. Eastman of the Washington ODT office, might not be popular with federal authorities, wasn't formally considered either by the National or the American league as a whole. The owners were concerned about it but apparently preferred to ponder, involving as it does a possible change in spring plans already completed.

They're All After Dykes.

While the club owners were busy with their affairs, the managers, as usual, were scampering around the hotel lobby looking for possible victims. Joe McCarthy of the Yankees was seen talking seriously to James Dykes of the White Sox, indicating that what the Cards did to the Yanks in the last world series may have thrown a slight scare into their manager. Presumably McCarthy would be delighted to take over Thornton Lee, the southpaw pitcher, but Dykes' price for such a deal might be so high that McCarthy couldn't meet it. Luke Sewell of the Browns and Lou Boudreau of the Indians also were on the Dykes' trial.

Jim Wilson, the Cub field director, also was in demand. Mel Ott, the Giants' manager, conferred with Wilson, supposedly because the Giants are in such straitened circumstances that they will take players without asking any questions.

Cubs Send Out Feelers.

Somebody said the Cubs had submitted a waiver list including just about every athlete on the team. The Giants refused to waive on a half dozen, not appreciating that the Cubs had merely sent out a feeler on a possible trade. Wilson is willing enough to deal with Ott, but the latter, so far as is known, has no desirable chattels.

Connie Mack had submitted a 21 player limit proposed for consideration at Commissioner K. M. Landis' joint meeting, but the two leagues settled it by their separate action yesterday. The National voted to continue the maximum of 25. In the American league meeting, Mack withdrew his proposal and expressed himself in favor of the prevailing rule. The league vote was in accord with Connie's shift in sentiment.

Night Games Up to Landis.

Both leagues acted on the differences prevailing on the subject of night games and the decisions were so widely separated that Commissioner Landis probably will have to OWNER P. K. WRIGLEY of the Cubs is one of Chicago's busiest civilians in the war effort. . . . He at first was put on the pay roll as a penalty timer, but he still hasn't timed a penalty. . . . Only six White Sox homers were hit in Comiskey park last season and three of them were authored by Tom Turner. . . . The others were by Wally Moses, Don Kolloway, and Luke Appling. . . . In 1941 the Sox made 17 in their home lot. . . . Various coaches claim that the T formation is one of the oldest offensive formations in football. . . . How long do you suppose it will be until turtle neck sweaters and long haircuts are resurrected?

The Wake yesterday inquired why it was necessary for the University of Illinois to wait until after its last conference football game to take disciplinary action against two players who thought so little of the academic side of university life that they failed with more or less regularity to present themselves in the class room. . . . Director Seward C. Staley of the school of physical education at Illinois replied with this statement: "Action in accordance with prescribed university procedure was taken in these cases just as soon as the facts were known. The first official report on all students' class work is made at the middle of a semester. The midsemester reports for these two students, when compiled, showed they were failing all subjects they were taking and were not attending classes regularly. The students were called in for conference, after which they were dropped." . . .

There's only one answer: Isn't university procedure wonderful? The original criticism was directed at "university procedure," not at Doug Mills, Ray Eliot, or any other Illinois athletic official. . . . There's something wrong with a setup which permits young men to represent a university for an entire season without danger of detection in offenses so flagrant as refusal to appear in a class room.

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS.
Boston, 5; Detroit, 2.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 1 (AP).—The Boston Bruins upset the first place Detroit Red Wings, 5 to 2, tonight before 10,000 at Boston Garden to climb into a second place tie with the Chicago Blackhawks in the National Hockey league standing. A four-goal surge in the opening period did the damage, with the Wings never able to get back into the game after that outburst.

The Bruins scored in the opening minute and had another before the four minute mark. Buzz Boll opened the first period explosion and closed it with one in the final minute of same.

Jackson, Shill Score.

In between these shots Busher Jackson and Bill Shill, making his initial appearance on Boston ice, contributed tallies and the final marker was made in the second period by Don Gallinger.

Detroit was helpless until the 17th minute of the second, when Harry Watson finally averted a whitewashing with a pretty effort. Carl Liscombe contributed the second Detroit goal late in the final period.

Chamberlain Is Penalized.

Watson's goal came while the Bruins were shorthanded after Murph Chamberlain was jugged for tripping and it was the only time that the Wings were able to capitalize on three such opportunities. Lineups:

THREE BENTLEYS TO PLAY

Brother pairs on National Hockey league teams have not been uncommon, but a three brother act is. Tomorrow night at the Chicago Stadium, in the Blackhawks-New York Rangers game, one of the Hawks' three forward lines will consist entirely of brothers. Max Bentley will perform as pivot man and he will be flanked by relative Doug on his left and brother Reg on his right.

In other seasons the Canadiens had their Manthas, the Rangers their Cooks, Colvilles, and Patricks, and the Hawks their Carses and Bentleys, but it is the first time in the history of pro hockey when three brothers will man all three forward string positions.

It will be the major league debut for Reg, who became a pro last season and played with the Hawks' farm team, the Kansas City Americans of the American association under Johnny Gottselig. He finished the season with a point total of 32, made up of 16 goals and 16 assists.

EXPECT 45,000 AT BATTLE IN SOLDIERS' FIELD

Sailors Hold Last 6 Foes Scoreless.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

When Capt. Jim Barber leads the Great Lakes football team against Notre Dame Saturday afternoon in Soldiers' field, the Bluejackets will be seeking a victory by which they can validate a claim to highest ranking of all service elevens. Six weeks ago, after the Sailors had lost three of their first five contests, this possibility could not be envisioned but since Oct. 31 Great Lakes has won six games and has not been scored on.

Up to this climactic game with the Irish, which will be seen by at least 45,000, the Bluejackets have won 8 of their 11 games and have amassed the astounding totals of 209 points and 3,396 yards from scrimmage. Victory over Notre Dame not only will erase memory of the Sailors' ineffectual performances in October but it will serve to rank them ahead of the Fred Preston. John Popov. Rudy Mucha.

Iowa Preflight team that was beaten by Notre Dame and overwhelmed last Saturday, 41 to 12, by Ohio State, champion of the Western conference.

Strong Line Material.

The Great Lakes veteran line material was good defensively almost from the start of the season. The Bluejacket line, which averaged 214 pounds, yielded only six touchdowns in the first five games, but in this period the line did not block accurately on attack and the timing of the Sailors' plays was erratic. The forward pass defense of the secondary line also was lusterless and directly contributed to defeats by Wisconsin and Michigan State.

Beginning with the victory over Missouri, Great Lakes has improved steadily in execution of its plays and success has built up morale of a squad that suffered in the early weeks from constant comparison with the undefeated Great Lakes eleven of World War 1.

No Secrets Now.

It is unlikely that either Great Lakes or Notre Dame has any secrets at this stage of the campaign. Lieut. Hinkle personally scouted the Irish when they played Michigan and Coach Frank Leahy returned the compliment when the Bluejackets whipped Marquette. Hinkle knows, of course, that the Sailors must stop Corwin Clatt, Jerry Cowhig, and Jim Mello and cover Irish pass receivers. Notre Dame's problem is to halt Bob Sweiger thru the line and keep Bruce Smith under surveillance.

Smith and Sweiger dominate the Sailors' attack. Now in top form, Smith has gained 793 yards by running in 133 attempts and he has completed 29 of his 95 forward passes. Sweiger has carried 131 times and gained 365 yards thru the line.

These players are ably supported by Quarter Back Rudy Mucha, Half Back John Popov, and the pass catching end, Fred Preston.

Tickets for the game are on sale at the Hub, State and Jackson, in the loop. They are priced at $4.40, $3.30, $2.20, and $1.10.

NOTRE DAME HOME.

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 1 [Special].—Notre Dame's football squad returned here late this afternoon, following its 13 to 0 victory over Southern California, and Coach Frank Leahy met with his staff this evening to map plans for Saturday's game in Chicago, which will conclude the Irish schedule.

Players and coaches alike expressed surprise at charges of dirty play that emanated from Los Angeles after the game. They blamed the unpleasantness that resulted in a brief free-for-all at the conclusion of the game on the attitude of the officials, but expressed no resentment over any action by Trojan players or coaches.

Then More Trouble.

Five players—three from Notre Dame and two from U. S. C.—were ejected from the game. Bob McBride of Notre Dame who was removed with Bill Seixas of the Trojans, said that he had merely blocked Seixas out of a play, whereupon both were banished. "Seixas interceded with Referee [Louis G.] Conlan, and told him I had done nothing wrong," said McBride, "and I tried to tell him that Seixas had done nothing. After the game Seixas said the action was entirely uncalled for."

Later Tobin of Notre Dame and Hubie Kerns of Southern California were ejected when the former blocked Bill Bledsoe head-on, and Kerns, thinking trouble might start, tackled Tobin. Jim White, Irish sophomore left tackle, was banished for questioning a decision of Umpire Alan Williams, he said.

AUSTIN DEFEATS FENGER, 22-21, IN TWO OVERTIMES

Marshall High Wins from Kelly, 41-28.

Austin and Fenger High school seniors battled two extra periods in their basketball game on the Fenger court yesterday before Austin was able to gain a 22 to 21 victory. Walter Wyrzykowski of Fenger tied the score at 21 to 21 with a free throw in the last minute of the regular game, but, after neither team had scored in the first overtime, Bill Mann made the winning free toss for Austin in the second. HUTSON NEEDS 2 POINTS TO SET ANOTHER MARK

Don Hutson, the Green Bay Packers' end who has set nearly every conceivable scoring record this season in the National Football league, needs only one more kick for extra point to equal a mark that has stood for eight years. Thirty of Hutson's 132 points in 10 games were scored on place kicks after touchdowns. Jack Manders of the Chicago Bears booted 31 in 1934.

BIERMAN SHIFTS PERSONNEL FOR MISSOURI GAME

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 1 [Special].—Coach Bernie Bierman continued to shift personnel on the Iowa preflight team today as the squad rushed into preparations for its final game of the season with Missouri Saturday in Kansas City, Mo.

Bierman sent an almost entirely new team thru a brisk offensive dummy scrimmage. Bus Mertes, former Iowa star again was at right half thruout the session. Jim Langhurst was at the other half with Forrest Evashevski at quarter and Ed Jankowski at full competing the backfield.

In the line, Fred Gage took the guard slot of injured Henry Schrenker and Marshall Wells was at tackle for Charles Schultz. Schrenker, Schultz, and Dick Fisher, all three injured, were on the practice field but remained on the sidelines thruout the afternoon.

U. OF C., DE PAUL FIVES TO OPEN SEASON TONIGHT

Demons Meet Navy Pier, Maroons Face Glenview.

Two new Chicago varsity basketball coaches will receive their first tests tonight as De Paul's Blue Demons play Navy Pier and the University of Chicago quintet meets the Glenview naval reserve aviation base team. Ray Meyer, former assistant Notre Dame coach, will direct De Paul, while Chicago will be led by Kyle Anderson, for 10 years Maroon freshman coach.

Both games, scheduled to start at 7:30 in the naval bases, will furnish the setting for the debut of almost completely veteran De Paul and Chicago varsities. Meyer and Anderson indicated yesterday that their squads would have experienced players in every position but center. The service teams will feature a number of one time college stars.

Demons List 21 Games.

Coach Meyer's Blue Demons have 10 letter men. This evening's game will be the first in a 21 game De Paul schedule. They will appear in all 10 of the collegiate double headers in the Stadium beginning with Purdue on Dec. 12.

The sophomore who will start this evening for De Paul is George Mikan, a 6 foot 8 inch youngster from Joliet. He will be spelled in his chores by Frank Wiscons, a letter winner from last season. The balance of the team will include Forwards Mel Frailey and Jimmy Cominsky, and Guards Tony Kelly and Dick Starzyk. Kelly is captain.

Four Maroons Letter Men.

Chicago will center its hopes this evening upon a quartet of letter men. They are Ed Nelson and Dave Zimmerman, forwards, and Bob Oakley and George Krakowski, guards. A fifth returning letter winner, Jim Crosby, will be on hand to supply relief. The gap at center left thru the graduation of Jack Fons will be filled by either of two sophomores, Leo Nagy of Hammond, or Harold Ellman of Hyde Park.

For the service teams, Coaches Lieut. John Murphy of Navy Pier and Lieut [j. g.] Tom Scott will name teams tonight comprised of players from the collegiate ranks. The Piersmen will be paced by Bob Curran, former Holy Cross star, who will start at a forward post. Jack O'Hara, who was a member of the Michigan team last season, and Chuck Epperson of Wisconsin, will be the starting forwards for the Flying Cadets. The lineup:

NOMINATE CARDS AS BRAVEST PRO TEAM OF SEASON

They'll Show Up to Play Bears Sunday.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

This being the time of year when the various traditional football awards are being passed out right and left to individuals and teams, how about a couple of new ones, as follows:

Bravest team of the year—Chicago Cardinals.

Ditto coach of the year—Jim Conzelman, Cardinals' coach.

The Cardinals and Conzelman are going to show up Sunday afternoon in Comiskey park to play the Chicago Bears. It is on the basis of this that the two awards have been made. For the first time in his three years as coach of the red shirted south siders, Coach Conzelman, with all his oratorical gifts, cannot work up a logical argument pointing to a possible upset victory.

Cards Have Hard Luck.

The closest he could come last night to anything approaching optimism was:

"Since I've been with the Cards we've played the Bears two close games in Comiskey park. We beat 'em two years ago, 21 to 7, and last year had 'em down until late in the fourth quarter."

Injuries and the war have bored into the Cardinal personnel which was so promising early in the fall. The latest casualty is Steve Lach, the slick half back from Duke, who will not play because of an injury suffered in the losing game Sunday with New York. The next you will hear of Steve is when he becomes a navy flier.

"It's a funny feeling to look around on the bench for a substitute and find out you haven't any," mourned Conzelman.

Seventeen Cardinals reported for practice yesterday on snow-covered Comiskey park. They'll continue working out all week, even tho there are not enough for a good scrimmage.

Last for Goldberg.

Marshall Goldberg, the Cards' great back, probably will be making his farewell appearance in football against the National league champions. Only a last minute decision kept him in the game this year.

The Bears will return to work this morning at Wrigley field. They can break their own scoring record for one season set last year by making 42 points against the Cardinals, whom they whipped earlier in the campaign 41 to 14. Forty-two points would give them 397 for the 11 league games. The Bears will be after their 23d straight victory.

Two More Good Men

Elmer Engel. [Illinois end.] Al Wistert. [Michigan tackle.]

Wistert and Engel Named Most Valuable

The Honor Roll

SEVEN Western conference schools have chosen the players considered most valuable to their respective teams. They now are eligible for the full size silver football awarded each year by The Tribune to the man voted most valuable in the Western conference. The list of nominees follows:

ILLINOIS—Elmer Engel, end.
MICHIGAN—Al Wistert, tackle.
INDIANA—Lou Saban, quarter back.
PURDUE—Bill Buffington, full back.
WISCONSIN—Dave Schreiner, end.
MINNESOTA—Dick Wildung, tackle.
IOWA—Tom Farmer, quarter back.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 1 [Special].—Al Wistert, Michigan's hard charging left tackle, today became the second member of his family in a decade to receive acclaim as one of football's modern greats when teammates elected him the Wolverines' most valuable player of the 1942 season.

Wistert, a Chicago boy who didn't even play football in high school, follows in the steps of his brother, Whitey, who made All-American honors as a tackle at Michigan back in 1933.

Al, nicknamed "The Ox" by his teammates, has been proclaimed one of the outstanding linemen of the country this year because of his vicious downfield play and his knack of cracking thru opposing forward walls consistently to nail runners for big losses.

He Makes a Comeback.

Despite his spectacular play this year, the Ox's college grid career wasn't glory all the way. As a sophomore he took over a regular tackle berth in the face of veteran competition, and it appeared he would be one of the toughest linemen in the conference the following year.

But something happened to Wistert last year. He frankly says he became so impressed with his ability he didn't bear down. Then he became so discouraged that at the end of last season he was ready to give up football.

Head Coach Fritz Crisler and Line Coach Clarence Munn stepped in, however, and persuaded the Ox that he had the ability to beat his way back. Wistert got a new hold on himself, and after a somewhat slow start this year, soon became the Wistert of 1940.

Father a Police Hero.

A good indication of where Al gets his fight and determination is the story told of his father, a former Chicago police sergeant. In 1925 Sergt. Wistert engaged a bandit in a gun duel and was mortally wounded, leaving his two boys, Al and Whitey, to carry on the family name.

At his high school, Foreman [also Whitey's school], Al played both baseball and basketball, winning three letters in each sport and captaining the diamond squad in 1938, his senior year.

ENGEL ILLINOIS CHOICE

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 1 [Special].—Elmer Engel of the University of Illinois football squad was voted the team's most valuable player by his teammates today.

Elmer gained fame this season as a ballhawk along with his teammate, Alex Agase. Against Northwestern he neatly snatched the ball from the arms of Nick Vodick, who was trying to complete a statue of liberty play, and ran 50 yards for a touchdown.

His Second Touchdown.

This was the second touchdown he had scored in his gridiron career. Against Michigan he caught a pass from Don Griffin to score his first.

He immediately made good in freshman football, impressing the coaches with his hard hitting and aggressiveness. He carried this competitive spirit with him when he reported for the varsity as a sophomore.

Starts Off Strong.

Altho Bob O'Neill and Jim Phillips, seniors, had precedence as starters that season, Engel was right on their heels. When O'Neill was injured on the first play of the Michigan game in 1940, Engel stepped in and played the best defensive game of any Illini, thrice throwing Tom Harmon for large losses.

Coach Ray Eliot picked Engel as right end at the start of last season and he played straight thru. In six consecutive major games, five Big Nine and Notre Dame, Engel played 342 out of a possible 360. He played the entire 60 minutes of the Minnesota, Iowa, and Notre Dame games on successive Saturdays.

ILLINI ELECT GENIS CAPTAIN OF '43 ELEVEN

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 1 [Special].—John F. Genis, junior left tackle, today was elected captain of the University of Illinois football team for next season.

Genis is a product of Fenger High school in Chicago and is a student in the school of physical education. He played regular left tackle in all of the 1942 games, winning his second varsity letter.

Genis is a member of Delta Upsilon social fraternity.

Gov. Dwight H. Green was chief speaker tonight at the 24th annual dinner given by the Champaign Rotary club to the Illinois squad. Other speakers were President Arthur C. Willard, Director Doug Mills, Capt. Jimmie Smith, and Coach Ray Eliot. Ralph Fletcher, assistant coach, presented varsity letters to 20 players.

So Many of Them Are.

Item from the Dixon [Ill.] Evening Telegraph via Effie Why:

A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd De Shazo at Stillman Valley for a delirious Thanksgiving dinner Sunday afternoon.

Hymn for Victory.

Some, like me, are poor at singing,
But can join in this refrain
That our loved ones in the service
Soon will be with us again.

Let us drink this toast together
With no sugar in our tea
To those boys who guard our ramparts
In the air, on land, and sea.

Every one should write a letter
To those men so brave and fine,
Who, from Iceland to Australia,
Hold our roaring battle line.

All should send this Christmas message
That would cause them great delight,
Proving that there is no shortage
In our love for them tonight.

Remember, too, our gallant allies
Fighting hard in many lands,
From the frozen plains of Russia
Down to Egypt's burning sands.

All should join in this petition
That our Father, just and wise,
Will return each one in triumph
Home, where freedom's banner flies.

Great Lakes Wins, 55 to 36, Over Teachers

The Great Lakes basketball team picked up where it left off at the end of its successful season a year ago by opening its current campaign with a 55 to 36 victory over the Milwaukee Teachers before 5,000 recruits last night at the training station.

Dick Klein, one of the ranking members of last year's traveling troupe, who learned his basketball at Northwestern, sparked the Bluejackets last night. From the time he tapped in his first rebound to put his mates ahead, Great Lakes never trailed, thanks mainly to his artful maneuvering for rebound shots. Dick got 10 baskets for 20 points.

Norman Geske was the losers' only serious threat as he led the Milwaukee quintet in scoring with six field goals and a free throw for 13 points. The lineup:

cast the deciding vote tomorrow. The National voted down the proposal of Clark Griffith, Washington club president, that the leagues be permitted to do as they please about the electric lights in one club towns. The National also expressed determination to perpetuate the seven night game rule, which was winked at last season, but not removed from the books.

The American league rejected Griffith's free for all suggestion, but voted for another season of 14 night games for clubs with lights, except Washington, which was granted 28. Griffith demanded 28 games a year ago, figuring the mandate from the White House had opened the road. The upshot was 14 games per club in each league, except that Griffith drew 21. Tomorrow's joint meeting may result in a similar compromise. However, the Cincinnati club, which pioneered big league night ball under Larry MacPhail, announced that it would schedule only seven games under the lights at Crosley field next season.

Discuss 1943 Ball.

The construction of the baseball was taken up because of the rubber and cork shortage. Approximately one million rubber cores for golf balls, the manufacturing of which was halted months ago, are available for baseballs. The magnates, by their actions yesterday, seemed to think that the use of a composition known as balata, a layer of which would separate the core from the woolen yarn, would prove an excellent substitute, the liveliness of the ball depending on the tension of the yarn winding. The two leagues, before the meetings break up, will agree on this so as to assure a standard baseball.

PONZI DEFEATS GREENLEAF IN CUE TOURNEY

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 1 (AP).—Philadelphia's Andrew Ponzie tonight defeated the veteran Ralph Greenleaf of New York, 125 to 95, in eight innings in a world pocket billiards tournament match.

It was Ponzi's third victory against one defeat and put him in a position to challenge the lead of the only remaining undefeated contestant, Willie Mosconi of Jackson, Mich., the man who shut him out in his first start yesterday. Scores:

BEARS TAKE LEAD OVER CARDINALS IN CADET DRIVE

Recruiting Campaign Ends Saturday.

Almost as close as some of their football games—that's the story of the tussle between the Chicago Bears and Cardinals to sign up navy pilot cadets before their game Sunday in Comiskey park.

A week ago the recruiting score between the two pro elevens was 18 cadets in the Flying Cardinals, naval air squadron and 13 prospective pilots in the Flying Bears squadron. But since then the Bears, led by Frank Maznicki and Bill Geyer, have been signing up youths at the same rate that they score touchdowns.

Lach Still Hopeful.

Today the count is Flying Bears squadron, 30 members; Flying Cardinals squadron, 28, with Saturday the deadline for enlistments. Both squadrons will receive the navy oath in a special ceremony between halves of Sunday's game, with officers of the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection board in charge.

Steve Lach, the Cardinals back, who has been heading his team's procurement program, expects a late rush of enlistments as a result of some intensive work at recent naval aviation rallies. Lach, Maznicki, and Geyer are navy pilot cadets in their own right and are awaiting training orders.

The youths enlisted in the two squadrons since last week's report are:

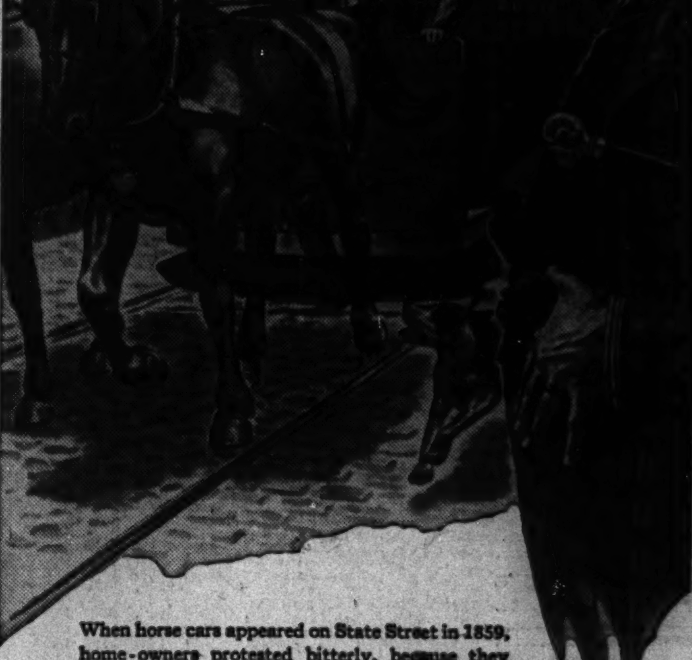
Chicago knew mellow CHAPIN & GORE when "Hay-burners" were new



When horse cars appeared on State Street in 1859, home-owners protested bitterly, because they "hated to see State become a business street"!

EVEN in horse car days, Chapin & Gore Kentucky distilled Bourbon was enjoyed by Chicagoans. They were proud to introduce visitors to Chicago's own prized whiskey—mellow, smooth C&G, made by the slow, careful "sour mash" method.

Entertain your friends with C & G, and ask for it at your favorite tavern the next time. You'll find it reasonable in price, and delightful whether you prefer it straight or in mixed drinks.

STOCK MARKET IRREGULAR; PRICE CHANGES NARROW

Aircraft Issues Active, Some Making Gains.

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—The stock market today started the new month without a definite trend.

Assorted specialties, including air transports, did fairly well from the start but the war-peace influence seemed to have faded as a price motivator. Shifts were narrow and irregular thruout. Dealings were slow, except for sizable blocks of a few issues of both high and low price. Adjustments for income tax returns continued to cloud the situation.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished up 0.1 at 39.8. Transfers totaled 561,220 shares compared with 472,100 yesterday, the lowest since Oct. 29.

Aviation Issue Most Active.

Fastest mover of the day was National Aviation corporation, which turned over in blocks of as much as 19,600 shares. This investment company has large holdings of both air line and aviation manufacturing stocks. The issue was off as much as ⅜ in the morning but ended down only ⅛.

United Airlines and American Airlines edged into new high ground for the year but closed below their best prices. Twentieth Century-Fox was up ⅜ as directors voted a larger common dividend.

Sears Roebuck dropped a point as it was reported that a 30,000 share special offering of this stock was being considered by a member firm.

CHICAGO LIST NARROW.

Trading on the Chicago Stock exchange expanded to 30,000 shares yesterday, but prices moved within a narrow range. Of the 101 issues traded, 35 closed higher, 30 declined, and 36 closed unchanged. Midland United preferred sold at a new 1942 high of 3¾ and closed at 9⅝ for a net gain of ⅛ point.

The exchange announced its November trading was 485,000 shares, against 557,000 in October, and 766,000 in November, 1941. Transactions for the first 11 months of 1942 aggregated 4,002,000 shares, compared with 5,488,000 for the corresponding 1941 period.

BOND TRADE SMALL.

New York, Dec. 1 (AP).—Bonds today continued the indecisive price swings that have marked the list for the last week and volume was the smallest since August.

Special buying lifted certain rails fractions or more, but many carriers continued to back down from October peak levels. Utility and industrial loans were generally steady.

Bonds of some of the captive European countries were up a point or two on small dealings, tho foreign issues generally were irregular.

Trading in United States government loans continued slow, with prices showing little change.

RYE SCORES GAIN OF 2 CENTS; CORN AND WHEAT RISE

Trading Volume Continues at Faster Pace.

Rye futures advanced 1⅛ to 2⅛ cents a bushel in active trading on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Wheat and corn moved up nearly a cent. Broad demand and short covering, combined with a letup in December liquidation, were responsible for the brisk rise.

Wheat closed ¾ to ⅞ cent higher, and corn, ⅝ to ⅞ cent. Oats finished mixed within a range of ¼ cent. Soy beans were ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower.

Volume was estimated to be 25 to 30 million bushels. The Monday turnover was 34,191,000 bushels, largest since April 30 and more than double the previous daily average for November.

Rye Prices Gain Strength.

Rye opened irregular, ⅛ cent lower to ⅜ cent higher, then became strong as demand developed. Commission houses began buying, and shorts covered when liquidation failed to appear. Prices advanced sharply to the best levels in more than a month as buying continued. Offerings were absorbed readily.

Traders attributed this strength to the relatively low price of the grain and optimism regarding resumption of export trade after the war.

Wheat futures opened unchanged to ¼ cent lower, with some liquidation of the December delivery. Most trading was confined to transfer operations until scattered buying strengthened prices.

Hope for Higher Ceiling.

Operators appeared hopeful that permanent flour ceilings to be announced today or tomorrow by the Office of Price Administration will be higher than present temporary limits.

Buying by cash interests raised opening corn prices nearly ½ cent. The upturn continued on strength in the cash market and small country offerings.

December oats were up about ⅜ cent at one time, but the market generally was unsettled.

Soy bean trade was moderate, but prices showed little change.

WPB MATERIALS PLAN TO REVEAL STEEL POSITION

Civilian Prospects to Be Determined.

The nation soon will know definitely whether the steel shortage has eased sufficiently to make supplies available for civilian needs, Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the board of Inland Steel company, told Illinois war contractors yesterday at a luncheon meeting in the Palmer House.

The business men had gathered for a day of conferences and discussions sponsored by the War Production board to explain publicly the new WPB "controled materials" plan [CMP] for channeling scarce materials into war production. About 2,500 Chicago and downstate industrialists and plant officials attended a CMP conference during the morning at the Civic Opera house, and about 1,500 were at the luncheon.

Plan to Give the Answers.

Ryerson, who with other steel men helped formulate the materials plan, said the program will make it possible for the first time to know whether there is enough steel to meet war needs and leave a margin for nonwar uses.

"Rumors have been heard that the steel supply is becoming easy," said Ryerson.

"I cannot tell you the answer to that question, and nobody can yet, because it is not known. But CMP will give the answer . . . shortly and we will know positively whether we will have civilian steel."

Ryerson said that the plan, which will go into effect in the second quarter of 1943, is the first program to attack the problem from these basic angles: What are the steel requirements? How can they be balanced with the supplies?

Industry Responsibility Told.

"Industry helped develop the plan, and industry must assume the responsibility of helping to carry it out," Ryerson said.

"The agencies representing war activities and civilian supply must determine requirements in detail, put them on a definite schedule, and determine when they will be needed. That is a complicated job, and the agencies will have to have industry's aid."

Industry also must help the agencies determine the needs of subcontractors, said Ryerson.

He predicted the plan will work, asserting: "A plan such as CMP will help win the war, particularly because it will help solve the problem of time."

WPB will act as a clearing house and control room for the entire program, said Ryerson.

Replaces Priority Systems.

CMP gradually will replace the present priority system and the "production requirements plan," under which each firm submits its requirements to WPB and receives individual authorization to get materials. ials where they are required."

Under CMP, allotments of scarce materials—starting with carbon and alloy steel, copper, and aluminum—will be made thru seven "claimant agencies," such as the army, the navy, the Office of Civilian supply, and the maritime commission, to prime contractors making essential goods. Prime contractors, in turn, will divide the allotments with their subcontractors and suppliers. The aim is to adjust production schedules to available materials.

Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Hammond, chief of the Chicago Ordnance district, told the luncheon meeting that the priorities system worked well as long as the supply of materials exceeded the demand, but that after Pearl Harbor industry "chewed up metals so fast" that another system has become necessary.

"Have Every Hope."

"Now we are attempting to deliver materials where they will best contribute to the war effort," said Gen. Hammond. "We have every hope that the new plan will put the materials where they are required."

The morning conference at the Civic Opera house was addressed by Joseph L. Overlock, regional WPB director; Harold Boeschenstein of Washington, D. C., director of the CMP division of WPB, and Stanley B. Adams, also of Washington, a special WPB assistant.

The Illinois Manufacturers association, the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Purchasing Agents Association of Chicago, and the Trade Association Executives forum, Chicago, assisted in arranging the gathering.

WLB [illegible]ks Ward to Explain Duress [illegible]hrase in Contract

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—The War Labor board directed Chairman William H. Davis today to seek an explanation from counsel for Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago, of a CIO union charge that the company had insisted upon inserting in a contract with the union a statement that the agreement was arrived at "under duress." The charge was made in a telegram yesterday by Samuel Wolchok, president of the United Retail, Wholesale, and Department Store Employés.

Former Judge Raps Midland Case Proposal

Former Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who retired from the bench two years ago, entered the long fight over settlement of Midland United-Midland Utilities claims yesterday with a statement attacking a proposed plan for a distribution of assets of the companies.

Judge Wilkerson termed the proposal submitted by counsel for Midland United company unfair to Midland Utilities company's security holders. He asserted that if the proposal is pressed for adoption he will enter the litigation on behalf of holders of more than a million dollars in Utilities debentures—a group including Eugene R. Pike. Outstanding are debentures with a face value of 6 million dollars.

Raps Swiren Proposal.

The settlement proposal, reportedly prepared by Max Swiren, counsel for the Midland United trustees, "is not acceptable to the group which I represent," Judge Wilkerson wrote in a statement to George I. Haight and Benjamin F. Goldstein, counsel for Midland Utilities' trustees.

"We shall oppose any plan which is based upon it, or any attempt to liquidate the properties by having the Utilities company adjudged a bankrupt," Judge Wilkerson said. "The proposal appears to assume a grossly inadequate valuation of the assets of the Utilities' estate."

The estate has a minimum valuation of 15 million dollars, he said, including Utilities' 98.97 per cent interest in common stock of the Northern Indiana Public Service company, which he placed at $9,897,500. The value of these holdings, Judge Wilkerson wrote, has been enhanced by the recent payment of dividend arrearages on the Northern Indiana preferred stocks.

Provides Partial Payment.

The Swiren proposal provided that 40 per cent of all Utilities assets be distributed directly to the debenture holders. Another 3¾ per cent would be distributed from two Utilities holdings, and the remaining assets would be placed in a liquidating trust, to which United would pay $1,500,000.

Funds from the liquidation would be applied against claims of bank and Chicago utility interests, and any remaining balance would be distributed among Midland United preferred shareholders.

Judge Wilkerson said the statement of the Securities and Exchange commission, filed May 6, 1941, represents "the minimum of relief to which the security holders of Midland Utilities are entitled." This statement, filed with Daniel O. Hastings, federal master at Wilmington, Del., provided for the subordination of Midland United claims, thereby favoring Utilities, whereas the current proposal reverses the situation and favors United, according to the letter.

In discussions with Hastings as recently as Oct. 17 the SEC recommendations had been accepted as a basis for any proposed settlement, Judge Wilkerson said.

RENTAL CAR BUSINESS 'FROZEN' AT PRESENT SIZE THRU ODT ORDER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—The Office of Defense Transportation today "froze" the rental car industry. Approximately 300,000 livery cars, 26,000 funeral cars, and 5,200 drive-yourself cars are affected.

The order provides that no person or company not licensed in the rental car business now may engage in it and that no person or company may increase the number of vehicles now engaged in rental service.

ODT said special permits waiving provisions of the order may be issued "to meet exceptional circumstance or to prevent undue public hardship."

Illinois Orders Terminal Line to Add Service

Cross purposes at which the War Production board and the Illinois Commerce commission have been working in the case of the Illinois Terminal railroad were given a sharper cleavage yesterday. The commission formally ordered the railroad to increase its passenger service on certain lines which the WPB had requisitioned for scrap metal.

The WPB had demanded the tearing up of the Terminal rail lines between Decatur and Danville and between Decatur and Bloomington—about 150 miles of main line—in September, after the commission had already commanded the road to show cause why it should not have better service on the lines in question. The ICC was not notified of the WPB action until Oct. 3.

Need for Railroad Cited.

It was stated in the commission order, a long, detailed document, that the Illinois Terminal's facilities were needed to transport workers to war plants, that its present service could not reasonably be supplanted by bus operations, and that great hardships would be thrust upon the shippers patronizing the branches slated for destruction.

Further, it was shown that the track and other construction to be scrapped would not bring more than $700,000 as old metal, while the capitalized values of the whole railroad would be lowered from 33⅓ million dollars to 29 millions.

Scrapping Order Arouses Storm.

The original WPB order aroused a storm of opposition in the affected cities, including Champaign. Sen. Wayland Brooks protested to the WPB and to the Office of Defense Transportation against scrapping the lines without consulting the Illinois commission or the road's patrons.

Later two investigators for ODT examined the situation and opined the scrapping was desirable. Members of the commission staff said they were hopeful higher ODT authority, which has been working with the ICC on other problems, would overrule this opinion of their investigators.

Senators Told WPB Should Lift Silver Ban

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—The senate banking committee, in a tumultuous session during which Sen. Pat McCarran [D., Nev.] said his life had been threatened, was told today by the nation's largest commercial silver buyer that removal of government restrictions would provide ample foreign supplies of the metal for manufacture of jewelry and tableware.

The committee is studying a bill to permit release of treasury held silver for such manufacturing.

Selling to Government.

Francis H. Brownell of New York, chairman of American Smelting and Refining company, testified his plants bought 30 per cent of the domestic ores and concentrates and 45 per cent of foreign silver entering the country.

In November, he said, the company sold 1,049,000 ounces of foreign silver to war industries under WPB priorities and 2,075,000 to the Metals Reserve corporation for storage.

"If the WPB would lift restrictions against granting priorities to the commercial users there would be enough foreign silver available for their needs, provided the OPA also lifted ceiling prices on jewelry and tableware to permit their purchase of domestic silver at the floor price of 71.11 cents an ounce," Brownell said.

Attacks Author of Article.

Earlier McCarran told Walter E. Spahr, secretary of the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy, that he "questioned the motives" behind a Saturday Evening Post story in which Spahr criticized silver state senators.

Spahr refused to answer when McCarran demanded to know "how much did you get for that article" in which "you reviled us" and attempted "to brand 12 United States senators as traitors."

Testifying in opposition to a bill by Sen. Theodore Green [D., R. I.] to permit release of so-called free silver at 50 cents an ounce, McCarran disclosed that the secret service had sent him a copy of a letter received by President Roosevelt.

Tells of Death Threat.

The "ill advised" sender, McCarran testified, threatened to "come to Washington and kill me if certain events occurred."

McCarran also charged the editor of the Saturday Evening Post had said some one should "come into a meeting of the 12 senators and use a lead pipe."

Under the Green bill the government would be authorized to sell treasury held silver, not specifically deposited against outstanding silver certificates, for nonconsumptive purposes not detrimental to the war effort.

A. T. & T. DENIES LONG DISTANCE RATES ARE HIGH

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—The American Telephone and Telegraph company today denied allegations that its long distance telephone rates were burdensome to the public and asked the Federal Communications commission to dismiss its investigation, or at least postpone the hearing until April 1.

FCC ordered A. T. & T. on Nov. 21 to show cause at a hearing Dec. 16 why its long distance tolls and other charges should not be materially reduced.

The A. T. & T. answer said reduction in charges would "stimulate traffic at a time when such stimulation would be contrary to public interest."

Rubber Output Estimate Boosted

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—A statement that the production rate of synthetic rubber would reach "something like" one million tons annually by the end of 1943 was attributed to Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones today as nation-wide rationing of gasoline went into effect to save tires.

Jones' estimate—much higher than goals previously discussed—was disclosed by Chairman Henry B. Steagall [D., Ala.] after on executive session on the house committee on banking and currency.

Steagall said the government now has a rubber stockpile of between 600,000 and 700,000 tons, and added: "This is my personal opinion—I think that we ought to be pretty well out of the woods as far as rubber is concerned by the middle of next year."

Just how far the expanded production of synthetic rubber, if realized, would go toward meeting the rubber shortage obviously would be dependent upon military needs. The nation's needs in normal times, it has been estimated, amount to nearly 700,000 tons.

Meanwhile, the banking committee swiftly and unanimously approved a measure increasing the Reconstruction Finance corporation lending authority by 5 billion dollars.

Jones, behind closed doors, outlined the RFC's need, but later declined to specify the uses to which the additional loans would be put beyond saying they would be "entirely for war purposes."

In view of his references to rubber made public by Steagall, however, it appeared likely that some of the money would be used to develop the synthetic rubber program.

PREDICT F. D. R. WILL ASK WIDER INCOME CEILING

$25,000 Limit May Hit Investments.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—A plan to broaden the application of President Roosevelt's $25,000 salary limitation to include income from investments is expected to be laid before the new congress, convening next month. The limitation now applies only to remuneration for service.

An informed official said today the President would ask congress to make the restriction effective thru the new tax bill.

Mr. Roosevelt said at his press conference that he was curious to know what congress would do about investment income, now that salaries have been restricted. He objected to references to the limitation as a $25,000 ceiling, asserting that people thus gained the impression this was the gross limit.

Plans Radio Address.

He said he planned an address before Jan. 1, explaining the situation.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] said today that any such pro-investment income would encounter congressional opposition. The salary limit, applied thru an executive order, already has been widely criticized in congress.

As put in force by James F. Byrnes, director of economic stabilization, the restriction forbids the payment or receipt of any gross annual salary of more than $67,200. It was estimated that payments of insurance premiums, debts and federal taxes out of this gross salary would leave a net income of about $25,000.

Explain Lack of Curb.

It was explained that no such limitation was placed on income from investments, because Mr. Roosevelt doubted he had legal authority to impose it. The lack of a restriction on investment income was one point raised by Chairman Walter F. George [D., Ga.] of the senate finance committee in criticizing the salary limit as "unwise and unnecessary."

Meanwhile, there were reports that the limitation order might be enforced thru insistence upon the $67,000 gross salary maximum rather than the $25,000 net.

VICTORY FOR NELSON INDICATED IN FIGHT TO DIRECT ARMS OUTPUT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP).—Victory for Donald M. Nelson was indicated tonight following President Roosevelt's disclosure that agreement had been reached between the WPB and the armed services on control over the scheduling of munitions production.

A spokesman for the WPB chairman said the agreement had not been reduced to writing and refused to confirm or deny a report that WPB Vice Chairman Charles E. Wilson, had been fully confirmed as the new boss of aircraft production.

However, a government official said this power had been assigned Wilson, and that production scheduling for all other munitions would be managed by the armed services as in the past, but under a delegation of authority from Wilson, who would supervise and review the scheduling programs of the army, navy, and maritime commission.

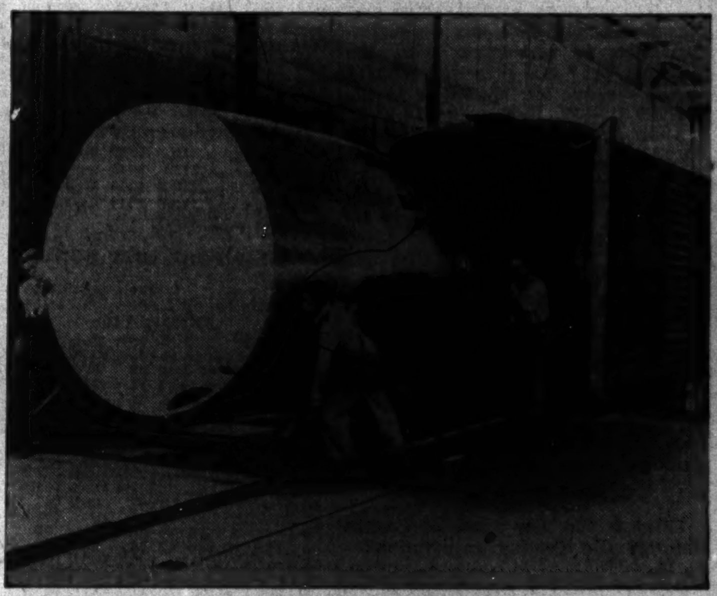
Railroad 'Assembly Line'



The assembly line end of a "railroad conveyor" extending over hundreds of miles and used in the mass production of military aircraft.

Railroads Act as Plane Plant Conveyor Belt

How the railroads are being used successfully as "conveyor systems" for the assembly line in the mass production of military airplanes was told yesterday by L. R. Capron, traffic vice president of the Burlington railroad. Capron described the way the Burlington is being used in the assembly of airplanes at the Fort Crook bomber plant, near Omaha, Neb. The operation is similar to that used by other roads and war plants.

The plant was built by the government and is operated by the Glenn L. Martin-Nebraska company, whose home office is in Baltimore, Md. Its location gives it protection from enemy attack, but its remoteness from principal sources of aeronautical materials created numerous problems.

Timing of Parts a Problem.

One of the most difficult was that of arranging to converge all supplies from distances up to 750 miles on the Fort Crook plant at the proper moment. Wing sections, ailerons, rudders, fins and stabilizers, center sections, nose and tail assemblies, motors and other parts are sent to Fort Crook from widely scattered and distant automotive plants.

So Burlington and Martin officials collaborated in developing a transportation system which would do the job. In effect the Burlington, together with other railroads, had to take the rôle of the conveyor systems operating in mass production automobile assembly plants. Only instead of moving materials a few blocks at the most the railroads had to move them hundreds of miles.

Special Equipment Used.

Subcontractors were called into consultation and soon the transportation problem was solved. A pool of freight cars was set up and made ready by the Burlington and connecting lines to assure a steady, dependable flow of materials.

Special cradles that roll easily in and out of the cars, eliminating crating and uncrating, were developed by the railroad and factory engineers. The roofs of some cars were raised 26 inches to accommodate big wing sections. Capron said the system is operating like clockwork.

PLANTS URGED TO PICK CANDIDATES FOR NEW WAR WORKER AWARD

War plants were urged yesterday to submit the names of candidates for the Tribune's War Workers Award for November. The award is made monthly to a worker for a notable contribution to the nation's war effort. It consists of a solid gold pin, studded with diamonds, on the back of which is engraved the names of the winner and his company.

The service to be honored may consist of an improvement in a machine turning out war materials, or the development of a better method on the assembly line, the saving of critical materials, the development of a substitute material to take the place of a critical material. Or it may consist of unusual devotion to duty.

Workers in plants in Illinois and in Lake county, Indiana, and Kenosha and Racine counties, Wisconsin, are eligible to compete.

Nominations may be submitted by labor-management committees, labor committees, by the management, or in any way best suited to the various plants. Nominations should be sent to the War Workers Award Editor, Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

MAINE SHIPYARD TIED UP ANEW IN WAGE DISPUTE

Making of Liberty Vessels Halted.

South Portland, Me., Dec. 1 (AP).—Liberty ship construction virtually ceased tonight at the South Portland Shipbuilding corporation plant as night shift employés joined day workers in a walkout stemming from a wage dispute.

Edward Miller, president of the AFL Machinists' local, asserted that the walkout was "unauthorized" and that the men "went out on their own."

The AFL is the workers' bargaining agent at the plant, whose production record has been termed by congressional investigators as the "worst" of any building Liberty freighters.

Wage Hike Delay the Issue.

The walkout was orderly, Yard Police Chief Harold A. Miller said. At the change of shifts at 3 p. m. [EWT] he estimated that more than 2,500 workers gathered at the gates, but they dispersed quickly.

Gen. Sherman Miles, chief of the first service command, Boston, visited the plant briefly this afternoon after a trip to Augusta on another matter.

Both management and union officials agreed that the trouble center was classification of employés and delay in applying interim wage rates approved by the War Labor board.

Ready to Negotiate.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Elinor Herrick, personnel director for the Todd Shipyards corporation with which the South Portland yard is affiliated, whom Miller said had been "giving us the run-around," was scheduled to meet AFL representatives tomorrow.

"I am ready to negotiate with them tomorrow," she declared, adding that the meeting was called to clarify classification and "certain clauses the United States Maritime commission objected to."

Thatcher Pinkham, company general manager, said, "We have no dispute over this wage scale. In fact, many workers have already received increases based on the new scale. We do, however, disagree firmly with the union as to what employés should gain."

HALSEY, STUART JOINS CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE

Application of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., for membership was approved yesterday by the executive committee of the Chicago Stock exchange. The investment banking house becomes the fifth corporation member of the exchange. Its president, Harold L. Stuart, has been an individual member since 1905.

For many years membership on the exchange was restricted to private individuals or parternships. Because of changed conditions in the securities markets and because of the desire to obtain new sources of business to offset the decline in trading, the Chicago exchange voted to admit corporations.

SEC Withholds Approval of Curtiss Stock Issuance

Asserting the Curtiss Candy company had made "untrue statements" in a 3 million dollar stock registration, the Securities and Exchange commission yesterday withheld approval of the securities' issuance pending a hearing on Dec. 9. The commission did not elaborate on the charges. Curtiss representatives in Chicago said the company had been required to file additional data to supplement the original statement.

BIG BOND DRIVE'S IMPORTANCE TOLD TO 600 BANKERS

More than 600 commercial and investment bankers attended a dinner in the Palmer House last night given by the metropolitan Chicago Victory fund committee in connection with the nation-wide campaign to provide 9 billion dollars for the war thru the sale of government securities during December.

The importance of this unprecedented financing to final victory was emphasized by several speakers, including Capt. Edward J. Moran, commander of the cruiser Boise; Mayor Kelly; Clifford S. Young, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago; Jay N. Whipple, chairman of the metropolitan committee, and Mark A. Brown, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

Whipple said that the share of the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district in the campaign is 810 million dollars, and the metropolitan area's allotment is more than half that amount. R. Winfield Ellis, sales manager for the metropolitan Victory fund drive, predicted that on the basis of results since the campaign began Monday, the goal will be surpassed.

INCREASED HOG SHIPMENTS FAIL TO LOWER PRICES

Increased supplies of hogs, consisting almost entirely of 1942 spring pigs, failed to change the general level of the prices at the Chicago Stock yards yesterday. Both the top and the average remained steady, at $13.60 and $13.50 a hundred pounds. Some weakness appeared late in the day, however, and prices declined 5 to 10 cents in some instances.

Most steers brought $14.25 to $15.75, against $14.75 to $16.25 the middle of last week. Heifers were weak to 25 cents lower. Bulls advanced 10 to 15 cents.

Lambs sold strong to 10 cents higher yesterday, with top loads bringing $15.60. This equaled the high since last June.

Inland Steel to Redeem 2.8 Million Serial Notes

The Inland Steel company will call for redemption this month $2,800,000 of 1¼ per cent serial notes which were to have been paid off in installments by Jan. 1, 1945, it was learned yesterday. This operation, together with retirement of $6,500,000 in series E bonds last July, will cut the company's debt by $10,720,000.

Start Detinning Plant Dec. 15

BY AL CHASE.

Construction is scheduled to begin Dec. 15 on a government financed detinning plant in Chicago which will be able to handle 60,000 tons of used tin cans per year. It will be operated by the Metal and Thermit corporation. This, with five similar plants and 19 shredding plants to be built in various parts of the country, will increase the nation's recovery of tin from used cans by 65 per cent within seven months and double it within a year, it was said. The Chicago plant is to be in operation by late spring.

Recovery of tin from 60,000 tons of used cans would be about 616 long tons. The residue would be sold as scrap to be used in making steel. The H. K. Ferguson company has been awarded the construction contract for all of the detinning and shredding plants.

The new plant will be built on a 13 acre tract with railroad facilities, on the southwest side of Chicago, alongside the sanitary district canal. The site was selected, said William L. McFetridge, metropolitan area salvage director, so that barge shipments of tin cans could reach the plant from towns along the Illinois waterway.

The plant will have approximately 50,000 square feet of floor space and will be similar to plants to be built in Buffalo, Birmingham, Long Island City, Los Angeles, and Dallas.

According to tentative construction plans it will consist of seven buildings. These include a detinning plant, a preparation building, a chemical building, boiler house, utility building, office, and a gate house. Noncritical construction materials such as concrete, masonry, and timber will be used, it was said.

Six major detinning plants are in full operation in various parts of the country, altho processing of used cans was started only this year.

RELEASE OF FUND IN BRITAIN LIFTS FOX FILM PROFIT

Dividend of $1 Declared; Second Since 1939.

England's recent action in releasing sterling balances of American motion picture companies which had been frozen under British government orders resulted in a substantial gain in 20th Century-Fox Film corporation earnings, a statement showed yesterday.

With the transfer of earnings previously tied up in England, directors of the corporation declared a common dividend of $1 a share, the first since 25 cents was paid last March. This, in turn, was the first dividend since 1939.

20th Century-Fox credited its income account $5,900,000 as the result of the British agreement, and earnings for the quarter ended Sept. 26 were lifted to $5,065,109, equal to $2.71 a common share, from $687,886, or 20 cents a share, in the corresponding 1941 period.

39 Week Profit Also Rises.

Earnings for the 39 weeks ended Sept. 26 rose to $7,256,003, equal to $3.57 a share, from $1,549,164, or 30 cents a share, a year earlier. Money returned to the income account included $2,900,000 withheld from the 1941 account.

A. O. Smith corporation, Milwaukee manufacturing company largely converted to war work, announced net income of $3,703,114 for the fiscal year ended July 31. This was equal to $7.42 a share, and compared with $2,734,657, or $5.49 a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

North West Utilities company, a part of the Middle West corporation system, had September quarter net income of $259,159, against $129,370 a year ago. American Public Service company, another Middle West unit, had third quarter net income of $339,206, compared with $313,128 last year.

HALSEY, STUART JOINS CHICAGO STOCK EXCHANGE

Application of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., for membership was approved yesterday by the executive committee of the Chicago Stock exchange. The investment banking house becomes the fifth corporation member of the exchange. Its president, Harold L. Stuart, has been an individual member since 1905.

For many years membership on the exchange was restricted to private individuals or parterships. Because of changed conditions in the securities markets and because of the desire to obtain new sources of business to offset the decline in trading, the Chicago exchange voted to admit corporations.

SEC Withholds Approval of Curtiss Stock Issuance

Asserting the Curtiss Candy company had made "untrue statements" in a 3 million dollar stock registration, the Securities and Exchange commission yesterday withheld approval of the securities' issuance pending a hearing on Dec. 9. The commission did not elaborate on the charges. Curtiss representatives in Chicago said the company had been required to file additional data to supplement the original statement.

Answer: Yes, 50 cents a share will be paid on Dec. 15.

BIG BOND DRIVE'S IMPORTANCE TOLD TO 600 BANKERS

More than 600 commercial and investment bankers attended a dinner in the Palmer House last night given by the metropolitan Chicago Victory fund committee in connection with the nation-wide campaign to provide 9 billion dollars for the war thru the sale of government securities during December.

The importance of this unprecedented financing to final victory was emphasized by several speakers, including Capt. Edward J. Moran, commander of the cruiser Boise; Mayor Kelly; Clifford S. Young, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago; Jay N. Whipple, chairman of the metropolitan committee, and Mark A. Brown, vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

Whipple said that the share of the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district in the campaign is 810 million dollars, and the metropolitan area's allotment is more than half that amount. R. Winfield Ellis, sales manager for the metropolitan Victory fund drive, predicted that on the basis of results since the campaign began Monday, the goal will be surpassed.

INCREASED HOG SHIPMENTS FAIL TO LOWER PRICES

Increased supplies of hogs, consisting almost entirely of 1942 spring pigs, failed to change the general level of the prices at the Chicago Stock yards yesterday. Both the top and the average remained steady, at $13.60 and $13.50 a hundred pounds. Some weakness appeared late in the day, however, and prices declined 5 to 10 cents in some instances.

Most steers brought $14.25 to $15.75, against $14.75 to $16.25 the middle of last week. Heifers were weak to 25 cents lower. Bulls advanced 10 to 15 cents.

Lambs sold strong to 10 cents higher yesterday, with top loads bringing $15.60. This equaled the high since last June.

Inland Steel to Redeem 2.8 Million Serial Notes

The Inland Steel company will call for redemption this month $2,800,000 of 1¼ per cent serial notes which were to have been paid off in installments by Jan. 1, 1945, it was learned yesterday. This operation, together with retirement of $6,500,000 in series E bonds last July, will cut the company's debt by $10,720,000.

Start Detinning Plant Dec. 15

BY AL CHASE.

Construction is scheduled to begin Dec. 15 on a government financed detinning plant in Chicago which will be able to handle 60,000 tons of used tin cans per year. It will be operated by the Metal and Thermit corporation. This, with five similar plants and 19 shredding plants to be built in various parts of the country, will increase the nation's recovery of tin from used cans by 65 per cent within seven months and double it within a year, it was said. The Chicago plant is to be in operation by late spring.

Recovery of tin from 60,000 tons of used cans would be about 616 long tons. The residue would be sold as scrap to be used in making steel. The H. K. Ferguson company has been awarded the construction contract for all of the detinning and shredding plants.

The new plant will be built on a 13 acre tract with railroad facilities, on the southwest side of Chicago, alongside the sanitary district canal. The site was selected, said William L. McFetridge, metropolitan area salvage director, so that barge shipments of tin cans could reach the plant from towns along the Illinois waterway.

The plant will have approximately 50,000 square feet of floor space and will be similar to plants to be built in Buffalo, Birmingham, Long Island City, Los Angeles, and Dallas.

According to tentative construction plans it will consist of seven buildings. These include a detinning plant, a preparation building, a chemical building, boiler house, utility building, office, and a gate house. Noncritical construction materials such as concrete, masonry, and timber will be used, it was said.

Six major detinning plants are in full operation in various parts of the country, altho processing of used cans was started only this year.

RELEASE OF FUND IN BRITAIN LIFTS FOX FILM PROFIT

Dividend of $1 Declared; Second Since 1939.

England's recent action in releasing sterling balances of American motion picture companies which had been frozen under British government orders resulted in a substantial gain in 20th Century-Fox Film corporation earnings, a statement showed yesterday.

With the transfer of earnings previously tied up in England, directors of the corporation declared a common dividend of $1 a share, the first since 25 cents was paid last March. This, in turn, was the first dividend since 1939.

20th Century-Fox credited its income account $5,900,000 as the result of the British agreement, and earnings for the quarter ended Sept. 26 were lifted to $5,065,109, equal to $2.71 a common share, from $687,886, or 20 cents a share, in the corresponding 1941 period.

39 Week Profit Also Rises.

Earnings for the 39 weeks ended Sept. 26 rose to $7,256,003, equal to $3.57 a share, from $1,549,164, or 30 cents a share, a year earlier. Money returned to the income account included $2,900,000 withheld from the 1941 account.

A. O. Smith corporation, Milwaukee manufacturing company largely converted to war work, announced net income of $3,703,114 for the fiscal year ended July 31. This was equal to $7.42 a share, and compared with $2,734,657, or $5.49 a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

North West Utilities company, a part of the Middle West corporation system, had September quarter net income of $259,159, against $129,370 a year ago. American Public Service company, another Middle West unit, had third quarter net income of $339,206, compared with $313,128 last year.

DON'T BORROW

Borrowing is not always the proper solution to a money shortage. But there are times when a loan is both provident and wise. For instance you might borrow to move into a more economical house, nearer to work . . . to pay cash for medical and dental attention before your favorite doctor is called into the armed forces . . . to buy winter fuel and clothing . . . to clean up past due charge accounts and other bills . . . to buy tools, to pay union dues, or to take special courses for a new job on war production . . . and for many other purposes equally worthy. Loans $10 to $300. "While you wait" service to those who phone ahead or come prepared to present proper identification and evidence of employment.
